Rev. Mr. Neal took two old testament passages for his text, one from Genesis 8-22 and the other from Exodus 23-16, both being Biblical references to the seasons. In opening Mr. Neal pointed out that the Harvest Festival service was practically as old as man. The Jews held regular harvest feasts to give thanks for the bounteous afforded by the soil, a lapse period followed and it was not until about 1859 that it was said the festival was again revived," said Mr. Neal in stressing the importance of Thanksgiving at this time of the year. While outlining a picture of the evolution of grain Mr. Neal explained that wheat alone was known to ten 10,000 years old, while through cultivation and selection the present fine growth of wheat had become possible.

Never Universal Famine

After stating that there had never been a universal famine the speaker pointed out there had been partial or regional famines throughout the centuries and that "from year to year and from generation to generation always kept His truth through provided sufficiently for our needs. Mr. Neal referred to our bounteous forest and goods as being "God's gifts in bulk" but not so with the harvest as it is left to the annual nature, "Agriculture and architecture are two of the oldest arts, from which all others have grown mankind," said the speaker, "after the final analysis it is said that wealth is dependant on products of the soil," he continued, In reference to the conditions of the past he referred to the manner in which man had been conquer of the universe at the close of the last century but owing to the many discoveries of today this was practically impossible with electricity and other inventions taking the place of the wind. "Laws are being broken both, mentally and morally, while governments try in vain to solve today's problems, he stated. Later, he pointed out that we today are but reaping the harvest of the seed we had sown during the past. He referred to the late war and its aftermath. Why it was that even after the Napoleonic wars before the pound sterling was restored to par," pointed out Mr. Neal.

God Has Not Failed

"God has not failed us but rather we have failed Him and it is now up to us to lead others," he stated as he closed by referring to this earth as the Heavens for the good each person must seek his own way to make this a world of God. "Therefore let us designate ourselves that His will may be done on earth as it is in Heaven," he said in conclusion.

During the service the choir rendered appropriate harvest choruses while Organist Alec Gordon, playing the last hymn, closed Holloway Street United Church ages three delightful organ numbers.

OBITUARY

LATE MISS F. HOWDEN

The funeral of the late Miss Pauline Howden was held Saturday last from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Charles Wilmot, Trent Road. The Rev. R. Cornelius, pastor of the Rev. Thomas Church, conducted the service at the home, and the Rev. H. Simpson of Milton, officiated at the place of interment in St. James cemetery, Ida. Ont.

BABY FRANK W. AITKEN

Frank William Aitken, one year old baby son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Aitken, 153 Bell Street, passed away Sunday in the Belleville General Hospital. Besides the parents he is survived to mourn the little one's loss are two sisters and four brothers, Mary, Irene, Jessie and Alfred, Clifford and Harold, all at home.

LATE ADAM BURNETT

Carman, Manitoba, Sept. 24.—Reg. Adam Burnett was shocked on Wednesday last, September 6, to learn of the fatal accident causing the death of Adam Burnett, farmer of the Rosebank district.

Mr. Burnett was driving with a tractor and had gone to the field after dinner. He had made a half round on a strike out and turned at the other end of the field to strike out another land when the fatal accident occurred.

The tractor had might explain the tragedy is that the seat of the machine was empty and was lying just where he had turned in to make his new strike out. When he found the breaking of the land caused him to fall off remains a matter of conjecture, however, where the seat was found the plow, still out of the ground, commenced to drag Mr. Burnett, and after making one or two large circles, turned him up and for some time in a small circle, dragging Mr. Burnett beneath the plow—just how long is not known.

A Mr. Dowell, a traveller for the Massey-Harris Co., passing along the road, noticed the peculiar actions of the tractor, and breaking of the land over and stopped it. After looking about for a moment or two he discovered Mr. Burnett underneath the plow, the centre share piercing his right side, below the arm and his head and body practically buried in the sand, life being extinct. Mr. Dowell hastened to Carman for help for assistance and telephoned for a doctor, Dr. Jamieson and Constable Hamlin of Carman arriving in due time.

This is one of the most tragic accidents that has ever occurred in the community and the sad end of a good citizen over everybody. It is the third death in the Burnett family since Christmas when Mr. Burnett's mother died, on and August 8th, Mr. Wm. Burnett, his father, passed away.

The late Adam Burnett was born June 28, 1877, in the 5th line north of Huntingdon Township, Hastings County, Ontario. He moved in early 1900, he married Elizabeth Tanner of the same place. He left Ontario in the spring of 1900 and went to Manitoba, settling in the Tobacco Creek district, on what was then known as the Harry Black farm. In 1914 he moved again, to his present home, two miles south and one west of Rosebank.

Mr. Burnett was a member of the Thompson municipal council for 13 years, being first elected in 1919. On several occasions he was returned to office by acclamation. He was an active member of the Orange Lodge and an adherent of the Anglican Church. He was a splendid all round public fellow, well met, with a glad hand and happy smile for every one he met. He was a man, in a real sense and always willing and anxious to help anyone worthy of the cause. He was an enthusiastic curler and his presence will be greatly missed by his many friends and neighboring clubs.

Besides his widow he leaves three daughters, one son and five grandchildren. His immediate family being Earl, Cecil and Dorothy, all married, Sask.; Jean, teacher, Blackwoth, Ont., Ethel, teacher, Rosebank, and John, in California. There were also twins which died in infancy. He also leaves two brothers, William, Thomas and Richard of Sperling, Man., and Wm. Gordon of Rosebank. One sister predeceased him exactly 97 years ago on the very same day of Mr. Burnett's death, also due to a fatal accident; and one brother, Thomas, killed in the war. His father and mother both passed away since last Christmas.

The funeral was held at his late home on Friday afternoon, interment being made in the Rosebank cemetery, Rev. Mr. Boyd of the Anglican Church, officiating. Those at the service, as well as the local Orange Lodge paying their last respects in a body, were Messrs. Wm. and Thomas, and two nephews, John and Thomas, Jr.

The sympathy of the community goes out whole heartedly to Mrs. Burnett and family in their sudden bereavement, and particularly to Mrs. Burnett at this time.

Floral tributes were many from friends far and near, and showed in no small way the high esteem in which Mr. Burnett was held. Among those were wreaths from Manitou Orange Lodge, the Rosebank Curling Club and the Rosebank school of which he was a trustee.

ARNOLD BROWN RETURNS HOME

Tells Large Audience Advancements Made in England

Bandsman Arnold Brown, of the Salvation Army in this city, who has been on a visit to England for the past six months, returned to the city on Saturday afternoon last, and was accorded a most hearty welcome during the Sunday services yesterday.

This young man has travelled hither extensively in England, in Salvation Army work, and brings back interesting data concerning the advance and development of the Army in the land of its birth.

A parish each service was given to him yesterday—leading devotions and testimony at the morning and afternoon meeting, giving a breezy resume of his doings in England, at the afternoon service and to a large congregation he delivered the Bible address at night.

The young man will also take part in the Sunday night service, "Popular Monday Night" conducted by the young men and women connected with the Citadel. Special readings and singing will form part of the Monday evening programme.

It was announced at the Citadel last night that the St. Catharines, Ont., Congress Hall of the Salvation Army will visit Belleville for Thanksgiving week-end, October 7-8-9, for special musical and Evangelistic engagements. Adjutant Winnie Adams, of Toronto, will be present and conduct the public meetings, assisted by Ensign and be conducted by Leader Eric Beard. A great treat is in store for local citizens.

PRESENT TROPHY AT CLUB TONIGHT

A presentation of the cup trophy donated by Mr. Walter Patterson to the winners of the twenty-mile race between "snipe" class sailing punt and the "smoothing iron" class in which Mr. Harry Whalen of the Ron Wallace defeated the Eagle owned by Mr. Leo Flagler, will be made this evening at the South Bay Mouth Athletic Club. At the meeting which will follow official speechifications will also be drawn up by the various builders, who may wish to enter their craft in the next season's races.

FARMER HURT LEADING CALF

Peter Murray Sr. Sustains Broken Leg and Ribs in Accident

A peculiar accident with serious results befell Mr. Peter Murray, Sr., Foxboro Road, early Sunday evening. Mr. Murray was leading a young calf by a chain in his barnyard, when the calf became entangled in his legs and frightened calf hauled him about. In falling, and what caused Mr. Murray to sustained several fractured ribs and had both bones in his left leg broken. Martin and Son's ambulance was summoned and the unfortunate victim of the accident brought to the Belleville General Hospital, where Dr. J. A. Faulkner with Dr. Morgan assisting, reduced the fractures after X-ray photographs had been taken. Mr. Murray is resting comfortably today) morning as is a serious condition.

POLICE COURT

Charged with reckless driving, Bruce Richardson, Belleville, pleaded guilty in Monday morning's police court proceedings and was fined $25.00 and costs by Magistrate Mikel. The charge was laid following an accident that happened at the corner of Ann and East Bridge Sts. last Saturday evening when Richardson and Miss Hennessey failed to stop at a designated stop sign.

Mr. Wright gave evidence as to severe reprimand relative to the underwiring of the stop signs in cities, pointing out the danger that usually ensued.

Following information received the local police apprehended four youths of a tender age on Saturday last who admitted the theft of a basket of grapes from a car parked on Campbell St. They were charged by their eating of the grapes. They were given a lecture and allowed their liberty.

Activities in the local and provincial departments were at a minimum over the week end, no serious infractions of the law being reported.

"RED" HARRIGAN SEEKS BERTH ON LINER

One of Workers, Who Walked Out at Lakeview Camp

"Red" Harrigan, erstwhile boxer of this city, is again in Belleville for a few days, having arrived here on Saturday last. "Red" was a member of the Lakeview camp that went on strike, and went on strike with the other men there last week. He told a reporter of this paper that everything was going splendidly at the camp until the men were put on construction work, to which the unionists objected.

"Red", after a day or two in Belleville, expects to jaygrey on to Montreal where he hopes to find employment on an 'ocean-going vessel.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, Sept. 25, 1933

Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Dear Sir—

Belleville seems to be threatened with a winter season of utter boredom for many of the citizens.

No skating, no hockey?

Perish the thought!

With a fine artificial ice rink, which should be open and in operation by October first, continuing until late spring, is it possible that Belleville should be allowed to slip back to village status dependent upon the weather, as the creeks and ponds for that grand Canadian exercise, skating?

Really but Belleville the Bay Bridge, which became a private monopoly Belleville went up and bought the bridge back, but the quality cost a lot of money needlessly.

Part of the population have done their share in providing the artificial ice rink, a few citizens have said more than their share, and stand to pay still more if all the citizens do not take a helpful interest in this matter.

The rink is a civic asset, and is needed for recreation and entertainment for the young folks of Belleville, with a little effort the young hearts who never lose their youthfulness, will get going and have the rink for all of the citizens.

Looking Ahead

Mr. Justice W. E. Raney Dies Suddenly at Home From a Heart Attack

Former Attorney General In The Drury Government

74 YEARS OLD

Ontario Loses Zealous Temperance Advocate, Fearless Fighter

Toronto, Sept. 25—Hon. William Edgar Raney, Justice of the High Court Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and Attorney General for the province in the Drury administration of 1919-1923, died on Sunday at his Toronto residence, 223 Forest Hill Road, in his 74th year.

Death was attributed to heart trouble from which he had been suffering for several years, and which forced his withdrawal from judicial work early last May. This retirement, it had been hoped, was only temporary. In fact he had been convalescing so well that on Friday he had decided to leave the city for a short holiday. Saturday, however, he was not nearly so well, and from then on his condition slowly but steadily worsened with the physicians in attendance powerless to rally him.

In his passing Ontario loses one of her most outstanding and generous advocates and supporters of temperance; a man whose firmness of conviction and steadfastness of purpose were truly remarkable; a doughty but fair fighter in the political field with which he was for so long identified; a fearless administrator as a public servant; and a judge whose worth to the Bench became more and more recognized as his career in that capacity lengthened.

Lost Son in War.

Mrs. Raney, formerly Miss Jessie A. Fraser, of Northumberland and Mrs. Fraser, Norman and Alice Fraser, Ontario. Another daughter, Mrs. Paul, dashing young pilot with the Royal Flying Corps, was killed in a memorable duel-combat with German aces Fokkers over Roulers in 1917. His death was a severe and crushing blow to his father.

The remains will lie in State at Undertaker Parlors, 2026 Dundas Street West, until the funeral which will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock from Bloor Street United Church, with Rev. Dr. George Jackson conducting the service. Interment will be made in the Necropolis plot, Riverside Cemetery, Weston.

Mr. Justice Raney's career was in many ways both romantic and remarkable. A native son of Canada, of Huguenot-United Empire Loyalist ancestry, he was born in Centreville, Stormont County, on December 8, 1859. His father was Norman Raney, farmer and lumberman, whose property adjoined that on which the late Sir James Whitney, former Prime Minister of Ontario, was born.

Mr. Raney acquired his primary education in the old log school house near his home; in St. Catharines Collegiate; at Trinity University, Toronto, where he took his B. C.L. degree; and at Osgoode Hall, where he took the senalship of the years. For a while he clerked in the village store near his birthplace. At the age of 18 he was teaching school, later gaining a place on the staff of the St. Catharines school in which previously he had been a student. Then he became two years whirl at the newspaper reporting game, reading his law books industriously between assignments and somehow or other contriving to continue his law studies. Called to the Bar in 1882, he commenced his practice in Kingston soon transferred his office to Toronto.

Retained Independence

Here it was that he got his first taste of things political and developed the taste for public life that was to carry him high in the ranks of the province's governing administrators. In the founding of the Toronto Young Men's Liberal Club he took a prominent part, and inclined to become a Liberal partisan—preferring, it is said, to retain his independence so that he might support measures with which he was in sympathy, rather than conform to the dictates of any particular leadership.

The independence thus manifested he carried still further in 1904 when he supported the Conservative party in the general election of that year, and helped to turn out a Liberal administration that had had the reins of control for nearly two decades. In 1914, however, he underwent another change of heart and unswervingly supported R. W. Rowell, Liberal leader, and his "Abolish the bar" policy. In 1919—and by this time his attitude on the liquor question was clearly manifest—he endorsed Sir William Hearst, the Conservative Premier, and the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act.

With the advent to power in that election of Premier E. C. Drury and his United Farmers following, Mr. Raney became a member of the Drury administration, with the high ranking portfolio of Attorney General.

He was provided a seat in the Legislature through an unopposed by-election in the then riding of East Wellington. In the general election of 1923 when the Farmers' Government went down to defeat, and the Ferguson (Conservative) administration succeeded at Queen's Park, Mr. Raney was re-elected in East Wellington. Eventually he came into the leadership of the Progressive party, which developed from the U.F.O. and in that capacity he waged, each session, until his elevation to the bench, a strenuous fight against the Ferguson government and its policies.

Fought Control Policy

In particular, he fought bitterly, in the 1926 election, the proposed substitution of Government Control of Liquor for the old O.T.A. Although the Ferguson "control" policy was adopted by the electors in overwhelming fashion, Mr. Raney was again elected, if by a little majority, in the riding of Prince Edward, and came to the House, at the 1927 session, when the L.C.A. was enacted, to continue his fight against what he considered to be a "letting down" of the flood gates of liquor in this province.

In September, 1837, Mr. Raney was appointed to the Ontario Supreme Court Bench and promptly resigned his Legislature seat, and vacated his Progressive party leadership to John Lee Lethbridge, M.P.P., West Middlesex. His appointment was everywhere enthusiastically commended and no man was more outspoken at the time in commending the Premier's duties which Mr. Raney was to bring to the bench than Mr. Ferguson himself. Other Legislature arguments with the former were the highlight of many Drury Budget sessions.

Mr. Justice Raney was a member of the University of Toronto Senate, and a faithful adherent of the United Church of Canada.

Tribute from Price

"I regret very much the passing of Mr. Justice Raney," declared Hon. William R. Price, Premier, Minister and acting Premier, last night, in voicing to the bereaved family of the late jurist sympathy from all of the province he represented.

"He was a man of firm convictions, and pressed them home. He made sacrifices to attain what he considered would benefit the country, irrespective of what it might mean to his personal security or the fortunes of his party group. He was a doughty fighter.

"Former Attorney General of the Farmer-Labor Government of which I was a member, he stood the brunt of the battle which Mr. Raney was to bring to the bench than Mr. Ferguson himself. Legislature arguments with the former were the highlight of many Drury Budget sessions.

"Mr. Justice Raney was a member of the University of Toronto Senate, and a faithful adherent of the United Church of Canada."

PILOT OF TUG IS ARRESTED

Held in Connection With Death of Captain Lizotte

Montreal, Sept. 25 (CP)—Alphonse Portelance, pilot of the tug Drago, was arrested in Montreal over the week end in connection with the death near Grenville, Que., Sept. 11 of Captain Edmond Lizotte, chief of the Quebec Provincial Police Marine.

Chief Lalonde stated that the Lizotte family had appealed to the Quebec Attorney General (Premier L. A. Taschereau) and that an investigation had been ordered.

A coroner's inquest at Hawkesbury on September 11 returned a verdict of "death without criminal intent on the part of anyone."

Captain Lizotte, aged 65, of Pierrefille, Que., was in command of the barge J. W. Todd, carrying coal from Montreal to, Ottawa and was being towed by the tug Drago. Both Portelance and Capt. Lizotte went overboard, the captain being pinned between the barge and wall of the lock.

FAMOUS FLIERS KEPT ON GROUND

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP)—Unfavorable weather over a considerable portion of their projected route from Wasaga Beach to Bagdad, Iraq, today kept Amy and James Mollison, Canadian flyers, on the ground in Toronto. Meanwhile it was revealed they will postpone their attempt to set a world distance flight record until next year if they do not get good weather by October 5.

The Molliesons took their Seafarer II, new edition of the ship in which they cracked up at Bridgeport, Conn. two months ago at the end of a trans-Atlantic jump, into the air Sunday and pronounced it in perfect shape for the longest flight of their careers.

The receipt of two consecutive good weather reports the hiers will leave their plane to Wasaga, fuel it with enough gasoline to take them to Bagdad and be ready to leave early in the morning.

SUPERVISOR IS ATTACKED

Archie Dodds of Ontario Hospital Sustains Fractured Skull

Woodstock, Ont., Sept. 25 (CP)—Archie Dodds, chief supervisor of the Ontario Hospital here, was recovering in hospital today from injuries received when attacked by an irresponsible patient whom he attempted to calm during an argument with other inmates.

The incident occurred Saturday afternoon while Dr. Harry Gaould, one of the staff physicians, was conversing with a patient. A second patient joined in the conversation and an argument ensued in which Dodds tried to pacify them.

As Dodds attempted to lead the man aside, the patient developed a violent fit or rage and picked up a chair which he brought down over the supervisor's head, fracturing his skull.

Dodds was taken to hospital where last night he was resting easily with every indication of recovery.

Dr. C. B. Tennant, superintendent, last night denied there had been any serious disturbance among the patients.

LATE JOHN OSTROM

The funeral of the late John Ostrom was held Saturday afternoon from the Martin and Son Funeral Home, 249 Church Street. The Rev. J. S. McMullen conducted the service there and at the graveside in the Belleville cemetery.

JUDGMENT FOR $11,141.82 TO ROY F. McLEAN

Henry Willis Also Awarded Sum of $5,000 by Jury

14 QUESTIONS

Globe Printing Company Found 75% Negligent in Accident

Peterboro, Sept. 25—Judgment for $11,141.82 against the Globe Printing Company and in favour of Roy F. McLean, 23, Belleville bank clerk, injured in a headon collision last November near Centreville on Highway 28 Antwerp bus car and a Globe newspaper truck, and in which three men were fatally injured, was returned Friday night by the verdict of the jury which listened for three days to totalled evidence presented in the case. McLean's claim was for $25,000 and the Globe Company had a counter claim for $1,000.

Judgment for $5,000 against the Globe Printing Company and Roy F. McLean combined, and in favour of Henry Willis, of Ottawa, administrator of the estate of John C. Willis, who died of injury received in the crash, was given by the verdict of the same jury. Willis claim was for $10,000.

All three claims were tried together before Mr. Justice Wright. The hearing started at 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and concluded at 9.30 o'clock Friday evening. After three hours deliberation the jury returned shortly after 9 o'clock with its verdict, which consisted of answers to 14 questions prepared by Mr. Justice Wright.

The jury found that the Globe Printing Company was 75 per cent. negligent and Roy F. McLean, 25 per cent. on that basis apportioned damages in McLean's full claim for $25,000. The Globe was apportioned to pay Henry Willis' judgment of $5,000 and Roy F. McLean 25 per cent. of the same judgment.

Hon. O. N. Gordon, K.C. acted for McLean; L. V. Rheinstedt, K.C. of Brockville, for Willis, and J. C. McCrae, K.C. of Toronto, for the Globe Company.

The personnel of the jury: Earl Hitchens, Stirling; Ernest Waldon, Lakefield; Harry Galvin, Douro; Thomas Mountain, Monaghan; Thomas Best, 569 Gilmour Street; Sylvanus Bridge, 565 Weller Street; Frank Bell, Thurlow; Frederick E. McGee, Asphodel; Gordon Moore, 256 Bubbles Street; Gerald Andrews, Dummer; Claude Bongard, Norwood; and Reuben Mowry, 208 Lansdowne.

After the jury's verdict had been read by the registrar the full text of the evidence presented had not shown that the Globe Company was negligent on any of the grounds set forth by the jury, and moved that judgment be entered in the case in favour of the Globe Company. Mr. Justice Wright said that judgment be given in accordance with the jury's verdict. Mr. McCrae stated that he took notice of and appealed the judgments.

The 14 questions submitted by His Lordship to the jury and the jury's answers follow:

1—Was the accident due solely or the fault and negligence of the Globe Printing Company or its servants? Answer—No.

2—Was it due solely to the fault and negligence of Roy F. McLean? Answer—No.

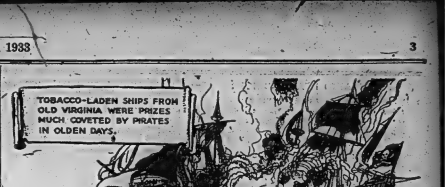
3—Was the Globe Printing Company or its servants guilty of any negligence which caused the accident? Answer—Yes.

4—If so wherein did such negligence consist? Answer—When negligently approaching truck some short distance from the point of collision that he, McLean, unconsciously swerved to the east.

7—Was the accident due to the common fault and negligence of both Roy F. McLean and the Globe Printing Company or its servants? Answer—Yes.

8—What is the entire amount of damages to which Roy F. McLean would have been entitled had there been no contributory negligence on his part? Answer 75 per cent. of his claim. The jury amended this to hospital $855.75, attendant $355, injuries and disability $13,600, total $15,005.75.

9—Is it practicable on the evidence to determine the respective degree of fault? Answer—Yes.



10—If so what are the degrees in per cent? Answer—Globe Printing Company 75 per cent., Roy F. McLean, 25 per cent.

11—What was the entire amount of damage suffered by the Globe Printing Company? Answer — Approximately $400.

12—What was the entire amount of damages suffered by Henry Willis, administrator of the estate of J. C. Willis, deceased? Answer $5,000.

13—Did John C. Willis voluntarily assume the risk of the negligence, if any, of the Globe Printing Company or its servants?. Answer —no.

14—Did John C. Willis, deceased, take any part in the actual management of the Globe truck? Answer—No.

DISORDER IN STRIKE AREA

Pickets Seize Truck Load of Furniture Rushing it Back to Plant

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 25.—(CP)—Eight hundred Stratford furniture workers remained on strike today after efforts to settle a dispute over wages and working conditions had failed. The strikers and their Furniture and Chesterfield Workers' Union refused to accept offers of manufacturers aimed at ending the deadlock.

Meanwhile in the packing plant of the Canadian Swift Company, 12,000 live chickens waited to be killed and plucked, but pluckers, striking for an increase in pay, refused to return to work. The packers, most of them girls, asked four cents apiece for denuding the chickens, instead of the three they now receive.

Disorder flared in the strike Saturday, when officials of the Preston-Noelting Company attempted to ship some small radio cabinets to Toronto. As a truckload of the cabinets left the yard of the factory it was seized by strike pickets and pushed back into the yard. The key of the truck was removed from the ignition switch.

James Preston, president of the company, called for police protection and said the cabinets would be manufactured since the strike. Preston's statement was followed by the truth of Mr. Preston's statement, but the truck driver by that time refused to carry the load. Finally Mr. Preston transferred the cabinets to his own automobile and drove them to Toronto.

PREMIER OF NORWAY PRESIDES AT PARLEY

Disarmament Likely to Relegate Other Subjects to Background

Geneva, Sept. 25 —(AP) — Dr. Johan Mowinckel, Premier of Norway, as president opened the 74th assembly of the League of Nations today.

Outstanding among the subjects destined for discussion was the disarmament problem, which appeared to be relegating to the background the Manchurian and Chaco dispute situation and the condition of Jews in Germany.

Those present as the session began including Chancellor Engibert Dollfuss of Austria, American Ambassador Norman H. Davis, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour of France, and Joseph Goebbels, German Minister of Propaganda.

Dollfuss, it was learned, planned to address the assembly, stressing Austria's determination to maintain economic and political independence. His group in a statement said they were ready to confer with the German Foreign Minister, Konstantin on Neurath, if invited.

Referring to reports that Prince Otto of Hapsburg advocates an Austrian constitutional monarchy, Chancellor Dollfuss said there can be no question in Austria of restoration of the pretender to the throne. He said he was trying to rebuild Austria on strong economic lines.

ADVERTISING THAT SCORED

Figures in regard to recent newspaper advertising in the United States tell a significant story to all who give them a moment's thought, says the Peterboro Examiner, which continues:

In the first place newspaper display advertising in 25 representative American cities showed an average increase of 16 per cent. in August of this year as compared with the same month in 1932.

That increase undoubtedly reflected increased confidence on the part of American business men and it is interesting to note that the confidence thus displayed is already being vindicated.

There is no more accurate barometer of business than the weekly report of car loadings and that barometer's latest reading shows the business mercury rising rapidly. September started her brief career by running the car loadings total to the highest point in two years.

The loadings for the week were 105,327 cars in excess of those of the corresponding week of 1932 and the highest weekly total since November, 1931.

That showing offers corroborative evidence not only that newspaper advertising gains reflected business gains but accounted for them, at least in part.

More car loadings can mean only one thing: more business done, and more goods sold, and it is obvious that the big increase in advertising space had a large share in bringing about that condition.

NEW YORK'S BIGGEST LAND VALUES.

Even in these days of depreciated values, centrally located New York real estate is not exactly cheap. It seems that ten of the most expensive parcels of land lie between Wall Street and Fifty-seventh street. The New York Times names them, giving the prices on a front foot basis:

"Number 1 Wall, $30,000; southeast and southwest corners of Broad and Wall, $28,000; northwest corner Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, $27,000; southwest corner of Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, $25,000; the southeast and northeast corners of Forty-second Street and Broadway, $22,000; northwest corner of Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue, $22,000; Grand Central Station, $21,000; northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, $21,000; three corners at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, $21,000 (the southeast corner is rated at $22,000); both sides of Fifth Avenue from Forty-eighth to Fiftieth Street, $20,000."

A MANCHU AMAZON

"Black Panther" would have been a more appropriate name for her than Chun Ling, or "Spirit of Spring." Half-a-head taller than her husband, the Manchurian bandit General Tmui, Chun Ling wore a riding outfit entirely of black. On both hips she carried automatic pistols, and her black leather belt held a supply of cartridges.

The Manchurian bandit general assigned to his junior wife the duties of chief of staff and commander of cavalry.

A Mukden correspondent of the London Times paints an attractive portrait of this dashing Manchu Amazon. Chun Ling is reputed to be a dead shot; and has accounted for many a marauder, in policing a turbulent district less than an hour by train from Mukden.

Bowing gravely to her interviewers, Chun Ling buckled on pistols, stepped into the courtyard, and with a single crisp command, summoned her cavalrymen. Swinging neatly into her saddle, this descendant of the Manchu horsemen who once captured all China, cantered swiftly away at the head of "as hard-looking a gang of mounted warriors as one could be privileged to see."

FOODS OF ANCIENT PEOPLE

The inhabitants of Germany in the Iron Age, about 800 B.C., ate ground grains, milk, and butter made from hazelnuts, according to Dr. Johannes Gruss, of Berlin-Rahnsdorf, who examined recent archaeological finds discovered near Muhlbach, Germany. The relics consisted chiefly of the remains of a man and food urns that had been buried with him.

The body had been cremated before burial, and an urn containing hazelnut butter was in the fire. This sterilized the contents, and Dr. Gruss found the butter still in good condition, though 2,700 years old.

TO BE A CHILD

To be a child, how blest a thing
When bird or bloom or wave can bring
That sudden rapture
Nor soul can capture
When life has drifted past its spring!

To be a child and know always
Through dream-filled nights and song-filled days
No hint of sorrow,
No fear tomorrow
Can blur or shadow earth's bright ways!

To see creation undefiled,
Unscarred by passions fierce and wild,
To find truth's traces
In all men's faces,
How blest a thing, to be a child!

SENTENCED TO GO TO CHURCH

Because he beat his wife when he found her reading the Bible, a Kansas resident has been sentenced to attend church twice every Sunday for six weeks in succession. "Evidently," observes the Philadelphia Inquirer, "the magistrate thought that he was making the punishment fit the crime, a rather dubious proposition.

Many people think it a privilege to attend worship, says The Inquirer, and it reminds us that "some years ago naval officers strongly protested when a man accused of a crime was sentenced to enlist in the Navy as a punishment. They rightly contended that it was a reflection on the service. Church members may have the same feeling regarding the Kansas incident."

BELLEVILLE KILTIE BAND which toured the world under the management and direction of the late Mr. T. P. J. Power, has been disbanded after covering more territory than any other band, before or since, besides advertising Belleville in every part of the world. A reunion of musicians who were connected with the Belleville Kilties Band, as originally organized, will be held in Hamilton next month and promises to be an event of rare interest and novelty. Two hundred invitations are being sent out to those, still surviving, who were connected at one time or another with the original Belleville Kilties. Of those who made the trip around the world with Tom Power, as a bandsman, Reg. Hinchey, is, we believe, the only one in Belleville representative. Reg. was quite a youngster on the round-the-world trip and nearly died in India from malarial fever, was unconscious until the ship was well out at sea and in a cooler clime. Reg. is now superintendent of the Deacon Shirt Factory in Belleville, and still interested in band music, being the leader of the Belleville Citizens Band. He also served as bandmaster of the Argyll Light Infantry Band of Belleville, and was bandmaster of the band of the 155th Battalion in training at Barrisfield Camp, Kingston, afterwards the 21st. Battalion Band, on active service overseas. Mrs. Zita Power Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. J. Power, accompanied her parents on the world tour of the Belleville Band, a little girl. Mrs. Ryan is living in Belleville and the promoters of the Belleville Kilties Reunion are very anxious that she should be present on this reunion occasion.

JAPAN GOES JIG-SAW

East is East and West is West, but games know neither the meridian nor the compass, and in a Tokyo department store, behold what crowds surround that latest importation—the jig-saw puzzle!

A demonstrator is on hand to tell the crowds what the game is all about, says the Tokyo Trans-Pacific, when asks editor remarks, "Japan has a lot of time, because her traditions are so, because efficiency has not become an idol. Will Japan have time for jig-saw?"

Despite the demonstrator's elucidations and the large explanatory poster on the wall behind her, sales resistance is pretty vigorous. "A childish game!" says one Jap in three. But the jig-saw puzzle is selling well, for all that, we are assured, and its American origin seems to help it along. Japan adopted yo-yo. It adopted pee-wee golf. Label any game American, and, as the Tokyo journalist observes, Japan will gobble it up."

A certain millionaire used to boast that he had never been interviewed, and would never allow such an intrusion. On one occasion, however, while visiting a large city, a newspaper reporter sought to interview him at his hotel, but would not take "No" for an answer. "Tell the man my time is worth ten pounds a minute," said the millionaire. "Maybe he says he'll take two minutes at that," was the reply. The interviewer handed over twenty pounds talked just two minutes by both their watches, doing all the talking himself, and rose to go on the instant. "Why did you want to see me?" the millionaire asked. "Oh, I wagered one hundred pounds that I would interview you personally, that's all!" was the reply.

The drill shed was a veritable "bons of beauty" Friday night when nearly four hundred delighted guests enjoyed the gallant hospitality of the officers of the 15th. Battalion. The floor of polished maple offered more available space for dancing and promenading than has ever been seen in Belleville, while the decorations illuminated by gas and electric light radiance the most ideal conception. Every lady present, both in loveliness of costume, in gracious affability and in keen spirited enjoyment was worthy of the occasion and the occasion was worthy of the universal tribute of praise and congratulation bestowed on the officers for their energy and public spirit in thus utilizing one of the most magnificent halls in Canada for the benefit and pleasure of their fellow citizens and the many guests from a distance who graced the evening by their presence. The officers in full dress and most appropriate added to the brightness of the surroundings and circulated among the guests with the fullest appreciation of the enjoyment of the happy gatherings.

The organ committee of Bridge Street Methodist Church has engaged Mr. W. Philip, organist of Grace Church, Winnipeg, to fill the position of organist in the church here. We congratulate the committee in securing the services of such a superior musician.

The attendance at the Harvest Festival services at St. Thomas' Church yesterday was very large, at the evening service hundreds of people were unable to gain admittance. Rev. Mr. Burke, Rev. Mr. Spencer officiated and the services were followed by the Rev. Arthur Baldwin of All Saints Church, Toronto. The musical portions of the services were magnificent and elicited unbounded praise. Mr. Gillman, the organist, was assisted by a full orchestra and his choir was largely augmented.

THE BURNING OF THE NIAGARA

ON THIS DATE, in 1856 Ontario was staggered with the news that the steamer Niagara had been burned on Lake Huron, with heavy loss of life. The facilities for getting news were meagre; the newspapers were slow in printing what news there was; and much anxiety prevailed through the province; for there was hardly a district which had not sent, or was sending, people to settle in the new western States, the basis of whose permanent settlement was it should not be forgotten largely laid by farmers from Ontario and parts of Quebec.

The Niagara, a steamer 355 feet over all, fully laden with merchandise and carrying 100 cabin and 200 deck passengers, had left Collingwood on the 22nd and called at Owen Sound, Kincardine, Port Elgin and Sheboygan on her way to Chicago. Soon after leaving Sheboygan the ship was discovered to be on fire. A panic followed; there were too few life boats; those there were were in bad condition; only one got to land. Over 150 are known to have perished; the actual total was never known; the passenger list was faulty and for years there was a belief in certain sections of the Huron and Bruce Peninsula a man were missing he must have been lost on the Niagara.

There was at that time considerable rivalry between American and British steamers for the title of humanly flowing westward; th-re were people in Collingwood who asserted that the Niagara was set afire by emissaries of a rival line, but this was never confirmed and the evidence at the meagre enquiry went to prove that the burning was the result of accident.

A Family of Half-a Million

THE London Life's "family" of policyholders numbers over 500,000 residents of Canada.

Last Year more persons joined the London Life family than in any other year of its long history.

This Year still more Canadians are selecting the London Life—and the high record of 1932 to this date is already broken.

This increasingly large family of policyholders indicates the development of the London Life, but even more gratifying evidence of its solid growth is found in its financial strength and stability.

LEADERSHIP IN BALANCE

Quebec, Sept. 25 (CP)—A battle for control of the Quebec Conservative party loomed today following an announcement last night that Onesime Gagnon, K.C., member of parliament for Dorchester and a Quebec City lawyer, would be a contender for the post of Provincial party leader at the convention to be held at Sherbrooke, Quebec, October 3 and 4.

The main struggle at the convention, it was believed, would be between Maurice Duplessi, K.C., of Three Rivers, temporary Conservative leader and member of the Legislature for his native city, and Mr. Gagnon.

The new candidate already has drawn the support of Ex-Guertin, Hull, Conservative Whip for several sessions. Mr. Guertin stated: "I will support Mr. Gagnon gladly. The election of Mr. Duplessis would mean a serious division in the ranks of the Provincial Conservative party."

Mr. Gagnon announced his candidature in a formal statement after several days of consultation with friends in Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa.

"IMPORTS" WILL FORM BACKBONE OF MANY MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS DURING APPROACHING SEASON

More Than Score With U.S. Football Experience Already In Evidence

BIG SEASON SEEN

Interprovincial 'Big Four' Better Balanced Than For Many Years

By MARCUS J. ADAMS
Central Press Canadian Writer.

Rainy football, lacrosse, of autumn sports, most thrilling of all Canadian sports—unless you are a hockey addict.

The word "Canadian" is used with some fear of contradiction this year. There are so many U. S. players on the big Canadian teams that it begins to look as though the Canadian game were going to be played by American stars.

And the season's forecast?

Much brighter, thank you.

Last year there were many disappointments. The complete flop of Ottawa in the Interprovincial Big Four and flop doesn't include the Masters' victory, the rough ride Toronto Argonauts took, and the failure of Montreal Winged Wheelers to come through, were a few of the disappointments.

But the biggest flop was the Canadian final, in which the highly touted Regina Roughriders took it on the chin plenty from the champion Hamilton Tigers.

The Intercollegiate Union in the East also proved poor, with a few isle as none of the teams showed much in the way of championship stuff.

But that was last year. What about 1933?

This year we have a new coach at Argonauts in the person of Lou Lee of Lee Hayman, an American star. To Queen's University goes Teddy Reeve, star middle wing of the Ottawa Senators. "All-American" candidate from Detroit.

Billy Hughes will be holding forth again at Hamilton with his far-famed and much feared Tigers. Cory Foran is looking for new world's to conquer with his speedy Winged Wheelers in Montreal; and Warren Stevens is coming back to Toronto Varsity with the hope that all his last year's coaching will not have been lost on his men.

And in the west, what of Al Dipke of Regina and Winnipeg, the two big centres of football in the prairie provinces? Maybe Al will make good his threat and retire from football.

Will it be Winnipeg this year who will come east to challenge for the Dominion title? They nearly did it last year. Perhaps this year they'll have even more "imports" from the U. S. to strengthen their hands.

Influx of American Players.

In the east, St. Michael's College, Toronto, leads the field so far with American Captain Wood having called the roll for the first practice they found Captain Frank Shaughnessy from Pontiac, Mich.; Jack Dark and Ted Medley, from Assumption College, Sandwich, Ont., where they play U. S. football; Ken McCrimmon, a leading half from the Windsor Greyhounds, and Nick Nickerson from the Border Cities. This names only four of the newcomers with U. S. football experience.

Last year St. Michael's had one of the most dangerous half-lines in Canada, but had a tissue-paper line. This year, they are concentrating on the wing line.

Look out for the "fighting Irish" in the Intercollegiate, it looks like McGill's year. Frank Shaughnessy has nearly all last year's team together, while Joe Breen at Western, Teddy Reeve at Queen's, and Stevens at Toronto, will have to start almost from scratch. The only redeeming feature about Toronto is that Jack Sinclair, one of the greatest kicking halves in the game, will be back.

NEW COACH IN INTERCOLLEGIATE

Frank Shaughnessy

Teddy Reeve

Joe Breen

Warren Stevens

Another new coach makes his debut into the exalted circle of intercollegiate football in the person of Joe Breen, star lacrosse player and peerless middle-wing with the once-champion Balmy Beach team. He will try to form a winning team at Queen's this year, succeeding Warren Stevens at Toronto University, with little of last year's team to work on. Shaughnessy at McGill has nearly the same crop of last years players and have finished their schedule, while Toronto has only about 15 or 20 available lads attending the University, the majority others are of junior O.R.F.U. calibre. As one player remarked recently: "We should worry about the rough stuff, good junior O.R.F.U. team except uniforms."

As a rule its what is inside the uniform that counts, not the sweaters, stockings, etc., but in a few cases many of the above by suggestions we do not know but they say that either one of them are realization soon.

One week from tomorrow (Tuesday) the Intercollegiate Union will be out for all and sundry. They have at least three U. S. stars on their roster.

Montreal is still an unknown quantity, but if Harold Baysinger doesn't run and does not start getting someone else just as good, they're going to find the road to the finals a rocky one, despite the efforts of one speedy and tricky Gordon Perry. In fact it looks like Shaughnessy's year, with Bill Markham, Earnie Smith, Ken Mackenzie, Stan Bayne, Ken Doherty, Ken Ketchum, Bill Bell, Bill Terry, Jack Wilson, Bill Bell, Bill Terry, Jack Wilson, Bill Bell, Bill Terry, Jack Wilson

Executive Meeting of Conference Branch of W. M. S. Held in City

Resume of Activities During Session Given

The executive committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church, met in "The Barracks", Bellevill, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 20, 21, 22, with the president, Mrs. W. L. Smyth, B.A., of Belleville in the chair.

The theme throughout the various sessions was "Widening Horizons" and the interpretation of this given in the service of worship which opened each session was both helpful and inspiring.

The opening service of worship was conducted by Mrs. S. E. Reeves of Kingston, after which Miss Nellie Bell presented report of the annual meeting held in Cobourg last April was given by the recording Secretary, Mrs. B. L. Darns, of Peterborough.

In her interesting report of the work, since Branch meeting, the corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. G. Smith of Perkboro, said there were 2 new Auxiliaries and 2 new organizations: 1 Evening Auxiliary, 1 Associate Society, 1 Mission Circle, 3 Mission Bands, 2 Baby Bands.

$1,200 autumn thank-offering envelopes have been sent out. Letters of appreciation had been written to the Literature Secretaries since the Branch meeting so helpful, to Mrs. Ackerman for kindly assisting the books, to Miss Haig wishing her bon voyage in Japan, and to Miss Cole a welcome sent to new officers.

Regarding the spread of the Kingdom Message, Mrs. Smith's report still stressed strongly the great need of personal service.

Financial Statement

Miss Laura Hyrem gave the financial statement, showing the amount contributed each quarter, amount contributed for the second quarter had exceeded $15,000.

Mrs. H. Thompson of Whitby, secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance, spoke appreciatively of the generous time allowed to the different phases of Stewardship on Decision Day program at Cobourg. It had been a wonderful impetus to the progress and development of this department.

Each speaker had dealt sympathetically and so comprehensively that every listener was inspired by its great possibilities and the Gospel of Christian Stewardship has been spread more widely through the Branch

Christening Library

Mrs. J. T. Daley, Port Hope, received 123 books in circulation. This is an increase of 27 books and 3 organizations, since the Branch meeting in Cobourg.

With the $15.00 voted by the executive at the Branch meeting, and $2.00 donated by two literature secretaries, 16 new books were purchased, several of which are already in circulation.

Besides these 14 books have been donated by members.

It has been suggested that a Missionary reading contest be carried out among the Presbyterials. Mrs. Daley gave a list of new books purchased.

Mrs. J. E. Maybee of Odessa, Literature Secretary, reported that 1,120 copies of the "Guide to Prayer" had been sent out, also 264 copies of "Suggested Plans for Literature Secretaries" and same number of Mrs Phillips' letter, the Branch came third in the sale of study books. In all 5,187 copies of "His Dominion of Canada" were sold last year, the largest number on record.

Rev. I. B. Nayler

The evening service of worship was in charge of Rev. I. B. Nayler, pastor of "The Tabernacle" who gave a most inspiring address on "Eternal Life". Life itself is a great mystery and "All that a man hath will he give for his life," yet the highest life is the "Eternal Life". This is the life that is in the soul. All other is a mere existence. We must be in the right relation with His heart, His mind, this union there is the Eternal Life. Union with His heart, His mind, His will.

"Eternal Life" is three-fold.

1. It is a present life. It is not limited to the future, but is daily round lived in perfect union with Jesus.

2. It is a dependent life. Not dependent on the things of earth or anything that can earthly nature but sustained daily by the very spirit of Christ within. Not under the law but under grace.

3. It is a progressive life. It is a continuous growth from the lower to the higher, serving to the newness of spirit. Life in Jesus Christ cannot be a mere existence but a standing still, but a living, growing growth ever onward and upward. "Alive unto God, through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

How is "Eternal Life" obtained? It is not a material possession. Apart from Christ, the soul is dead. The soul must be contact with Christ before we become living souls. We must be touched. With a living faith and willing to have our lives controlled, by Him, yielding ourselves to Him and led by His spirit.

The gift of God is Eternal Life, through Jesus Christ.

Mrs. D. E. Clare, Brachin, secretary for the "Missionary Monthly" and "World Friends" reported a decrease in the subscriptions to the magazine in 1933 but 41 new subscriptions were secured through the six months' offer.

Mrs. S. E. Reeves, Literature Secretary, reported increasing interest in the publication of articles on the missionary work. Rural districts are especially active along this line.

The session closed with prayer by Mrs. C. H. Carscallen.

The service of worship on Thursday morning was conducted by Mrs. R. M. Seymour of Cataraqui.

Miss T. Duncon, of Lindsay, said the report she had to present was that of the most important department of the Women's Missionary Society—the Associate Helpers' Department.

Membership

One of the chief purposes of the W. M. S. is an increased membership, and one of the most fruitful ways should be through the Associate Department. It is the link between the women who do not attend the meetings and those who take part in the work and those who do. We need them and they need us. We carry on, the great work is the obligation, of all the women in the church, not of the few.

Miss Duncon outlined a systematic and well-planned effort of the Presbyterial secretary to enlist every woman within her territory. She urged secretaries to exercise care in reporting and by correspondence to avoid errors.

Mrs. J. O. Sills reported for Recruiting Committee. In Branch there are 31 auxiliaries, with a membership of 904. In 1932 they contributed $7300. Everything should be done to make the recruiting auxiliaries feel that they are a vital part of the adult department. They also wish to be co-workers in the Kingdom of God movement and to share in the responsibility of the missionary education of children and young people.

In the report of young women's work, Miss T. S. Sparge, of Colborne, recently stated there had been progress so far in 1933.

One new Mission Circle has been organized at Foxboro.

C. G. I. T. Work

Miss Robina Templeton, Belleville, spoke enthusiastically of the work of the C.G.I.T. groups. The "World Friendship" Rallies, originating in this Branch, are being recognized as one of the greatest helps in promoting the work in this department. They are being taken up by Toronto and other Conferences.

The C.G.I.T. groups have no new literature this year, but another months but at all the camps missionary education will be given. An effort is made to have at each camp a visit from a missionary on furlough or to have in attendance a girl from another country.

At one of the camps were Ukrainian girls who put on a most interesting programme, at the camp fire one night.

Miss Templeton was invited to Beau Rivage camp this summer as representative of the Bay of Quinte.

Interesting features at this camp were an "Around the World" Friendship song and a radio "World Friendship" group broadcasting Miss Secretary Macdonald, Premier Bennett and other world characters.

Books recommended for "Adventuring With Young Chins" and "Fellowship Building".

Mrs. E. W. Rowland reported eight new organizations, seven Mission Bands and one Baby Band.

Thank Offering

All conducting the Thank-Offering this year are to be used for work among the children.

Miss Gilmore was enrolled in the Mission Band department and also in the auxiliary study group, auxiliary education which helps Christians with the ideals of brotherhood taught by Christ.

Prayer by Mrs. Allen closed the session.

The opening service of worship in the afternoon was conducted by Mrs. J. G. Sills.

World Peace

A very interesting and profitable feature of the afternoon session was ed the meeting among the line of "World Peace". Mrs. W. J. Garland, Peace Secretary, Mrs. A. J. Gaetz the work being carried out by the different Presbyterian bureaus and promotion of World Peace, introduced Miss Mary Osborn, of Toronto, President of the Woman's League of Nations Association, who in a spirited manner exhorted the women to support this great cause. She outlined clearly the aims of the League and the worthy task they are attempting in the interest of the whole brotherhood of man.

A vivid vision was given by the provisions of the League at Geneva," by Mrs. Addy, of Toronto who thoroughly and clearly showed which clearly illustrated the aim and work the League of Nations are struggling and what they have already accomplished, six of the ladies, Mrs. Scrimgeon, Miss Brown Miss Duncon, Mrs. Sarno, Mrs. Stevelle and Mrs. Wallz took an part of the enquirers, who sought to "decide" Mrs. Kelly, the Advocate for the League of Nations.

Strangers' Secretary

Mrs. N. S. Robertson. Arnprior, distributed literature, described the work of her department as a "work of love". Each case requires sympathy, tact and a sincere desire to help.

Generally, the work is finding out and giving a welcome to newcomers in our local districts. Establish a church connection at once if possible, give assistance in every way to get them established comfortably, as to work, schools, etc.

Removals should be noted, write the Presbyterial telling of removals to his vicinity. Give the good points of these people. Good work can be done by following up students leaving small towns to go to cities.

Though the immigration problem is not so outstanding as ten years ago, yet the second generation need our sympathetic help to make them good Canadian citizens and good Christians.

There are 380 Strangers' Secretaries in this Branch.

The Supply Secretary, Mrs. J. C. Wells, of Colborne, said this year this Branch is asked to send bales to five Alberta Indian reserves—Duffield, Hobbema, Morley, Saddle Lake, Good Fish Lake, also to Lac and Lake, Man. There will also be appeals for aid within our own Dominion and from our neighbours in Western Canada.

The service of worship Thursday evening was conducted by Miss E. Simpson.

Mrs. R. O. Jolliffe, Kingston, Candidate Secretary, told of the two missionaries from this Branch commissioned recently and told of the places they are going to. Miss Marion Anglin, of Kingston, goes to Trumbleville, Alta., and Miss Lillian Hinton goes to Chengtu, Szechuan, China.

Brings Greetings

Greetings from the Home Missionary Board of the Presbyterian brought to the meeting by Rev. D. Harrison.

Mrs. C. R. Carscallen, told of the splendid work which has been developed in Oshawa over the Church of All Nations. A chain of institutional churches, with a view to the sale of the church and the Dominion, young people and children were without a church home. Out of the unsatisfactory conditions that this Branch again undertake this work if it can be arranged and letters from the views of the W.M.S. on the matter are being sent to Mrs. Spohton, Mission Secretary, Toronto.

The importance of the Temperance question at the present time was urged strongly. Mrs. T. H. P. Sills, Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Cullan, were asked to draw up a resolution to be sent to Premier Henry.

Mrs. W. J. Garland told an interesting story of the Dominion Board, held in Toronto in June, in which she was a delegate. Her report filled with charming details and vivid pictures, listened to with great pleasure.

Mrs. J. A. Allen, Peterborough, closed the evening session with prayer.

On the Friday morning service of worship, the President brought to the meeting, inspiring message of hope and encouragement. The morning session was closed in on every side by the high calling of God in Christ Jesus as described by the Psalmist—"like a tree planted by the river".

Mrs. W. J. Garland announced the budget for next year with the sum of $5,000 allocated to each Presbyterial.

In this closing session the chief topic for discussion was the Kingdom of God movement.

Kingdom of God

Mrs. C. H. P. Anderson, President of Belleville Presbyterial, reported many encouraging features in the Kingdom of God movement in this Presbyterial. There was an increase in membership.

Mrs. W. J. Garland reported for Cobourg Presbyterial; Mrs. R. M. Seymour, President of Kingston Presbyterial, for Kingston; Miss E. Duncon Vepected for Lindsay Presbyterial, and Mrs. C. R. Carscallen President of Oshawa Presbyterial, for Oshawa; Mrs. J. A. Berry, President of Peterborough Presbyterial, gave a report, as did also Mrs. J. Cullan, President of Renfrew Presbyterial.

It was resolved to have a central committee of the Kingdom of God movement from the Branch down. The President announced that in every issue of the "Missionary Monthly" this year would be constructive suggestions along this line.

Miss E. Duncon, of Lindsay, presented the report of the Nominee Committee. Thanks were tendered.

1. Officials of the Church for use of building.

2. The pastor, Rev. I. B. Naylor for his inspiring message.

3. The janitor for the comforts provided.

4. The choir, who led in the service of praise.

5. Miss Clowen and Mrs. Kelly, who in such a forceful way brought before us the work of the League of Nations.

6. Mr. Harrison for greetings from Mission Board.

7. Mrs. Horton, president of the "Tabernacle" Auxiliary, and the ladies who shared for us and provided such delicious meals and to those who placed the beautiful flowers everywhere.

8. The business who kindly entertained us.

9. The President whose gracious personality and fine executive ability dominated the sessions.

10. The Recording, Corresponding and Press Secretaries.

Mrs. R. M. Seymour of Cataraqui was chosen as representative to the next conference, to be held in Brockville.

There will be no annual Branch Meeting in 1934, but a full executive meeting will be held in Trinity Church, Peterborough, March 6, 7, 8, 1934.

Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson closed the meeting with prayer.

Resolutions Passed

1. That owing to the late date at which the "Guide to Prayer" is received and the expense of printing and distribution, this leaflet be discontinued and the information contained therein be incorporated in the "Missionary Monthly."

2. That the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch, now in session in Belleville, request the Canadian Government to appoint its delegate to the Disarmament Conference in Geneva, Oct. 10, to be a woman, and that it be discussed there.

3. That we, the members of the Executive Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch in session here in Belleville, wish to express to you, Mr. Henry, our honoured leader, our unchanged attitude on the temperance question and pledge ourselves to use our franchise and every other influence to oppose the whole system of traffic in intoxicating liquor and especially the sale of beer and wine by the glass."

Backache Gone Neuritis Stops

Mother of Four Praises Dodd's

"I am 26 years of age and mother of four children." writes Mrs. D. E. Judd, Glen Sutton, P.Q. "When I was 17 I fell from a horse and bruised one of my kidneys. Consequently I suffered a good deal from a severe pain in my back. My mother gave me Dodd's Kidney Pills and I felt better. After my three children were born I again suffered terribly from Backache and Neuritis in my arms and shoulders so I could not work. I again used Dodd's Kidney Pills and I soon felt like myself again."

LUMBAGO

In a case of lumbago, we have a condition where the excretory organs are not functioning as they should and as a result there is a damming back into the body of waste material.

Of all the excretory organs the kidneys are considered the most in this eliminating process and in the majority of cases it will be found that they are at fault. As a chiropractor, by scientific adjustments, restores the full element to the organs that are at fault and the pain subsides and disappears.

Long Skirts Flatter the Silhouette

Fashion played magician. She something of an art to pick up a dropped the skirt hem and the flapper vanished. Just like that! Say what you will, the old lady who bosses the city goods wants our color makes clothes, but she reconstructs figures and influences the texture and character of woman.

It's only now, looking back, that we can regret the kneecap like it's true light. Cute as a baby's head it was—on the young fry with pretty little slender limbers. But the fat gal with the huge shanks wore it, too—and was it a revelation? Aged dames who, clothed and in their right minds, would look grand also rung up their hem curtains. It was too much of a good thing really.

Long skirts are flattering to all figures. They slenderize the poor dears who are fated to fatness and haven't the spirit to do anything about it. On the reedy, svelte shape they are lovely. Even the pulchritic gal looks pretty in them. Oh, please, Mama Fashion, don't cut 'em off again!

Retrograde properties put a quick stop to lolling around, sitting on tables, acting like tomboys. The girls got back their dignity in appearance, but in manners. They became interested in general movement, wearing clothes beautifully. It's all to the good. Hooray a couple of times.

In the period of the abbreviated skirt, legs were in the public eye. One saw legs before one looked at faces. The beauty waiter forgot her tints and complexion worries settled down to the business of slicing down fatted calves or building up skinny legs. Fashion was a real now. Though I will say that eyebrow torture takes up a lot of time I'll say anyhow, from high kicking and rope jumping.

Not that legs are being entirely overlooked by the beauty contingent. Bathing season's roll round: legs must be kept in form. But they are not, at the present time, the first consideration.

The long skirt has made woman mindful of her back, critical of the line that runs downward from lower ribs to waist—to hip, to thigh —line that should be snappy if that little one is going to get by. I hate all that's coming to it in the way of help.

Rumors are burning around about trains, and draperies that sweep the floor. That's the way things go. Skirts went as high as they could; now maybe they'll go longer than they can. They say that Hollywood is taking lessons in graceful train swishing. Grandma remembers all about that; she'll tell you it was

Stocks Sag in Early Persistent Selling—Prices Ease Back as Much as 3 Points on Toronto Board

Trading Under Quiet But Weakness in Gold Shares Apparent; Awaiting News From New York.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP)— Prices for mining shares were scaled down in today's transactions at the Standard Exchange, scarcity of buying orders forcing a disposition to avail developments on the New York Board.

Gold shares dropped $1 to $2.50, weakness appearing chiefly in McIntyre, Lake Shore and Dome while Hollinger, Teck and Wright-Hargreaves were off about 25 cents each. In the base metal group Nickel showed a loss of 50 cents while Noranda slipped to $35.50.

A lower price for silver had a weakening influence on Eldorado, Mining and Milling Corporation, all down 5 to 10 cents.

The mining market appeared to be dull today, the aftermath apparently of last week's break. A lower bid in the final three hours gave the gold shares a substantial set-back. Hollinger, a big part of the day $2.50 down from Saturday's close, while Lake Shore, and Dome were down over $1. Hollinger, Teck and Hargreaves off about 30 cents each. Of the other base metals had a burst of activity, particularly in Noranda, San Antonio, McWatte and Central Patricia, all marking up gains which were not fully retained.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 25—(CP)— The selling, while light, was nevertheless heavier than the buying demand today on Toronto exchange and prices ceased to function. Base metals, Waters Common, Nickel and Bud Breweries turned over in fair volume with the liquor and metal issues generally weak.

Dealers of Bell Telephone were heavier than usual and the price fell off a fraction to 131 1-4. Simultaneously, Canada Bread, preferred, which has been inactive for months, changed hands at 50 cents.

Other utilities were steady, with Montreal Power unchanged at 16 1-2 and Ottawa Light, Heat and Power at 50. Brazilian, Canada Northern Power and Gatineau Power were also unchanged.

Banks were steady, with Royal at 200 and Toronto at 100 1-2. Loan issues were unchanged, Canada Permanent at 150 and Dominion Mortgage at 50.

Insurance stocks were steady, with Canada Life at 200 and Confederation at 30.

Industrials were quiet and generally lower. Steel Co. of Canada was off a point at 100 1-2. Canada Cement, preferred, was down 2 points at 90 and Canada Cement, common, off a point at 30. Dominion Bridge was down a point at 50 1-2. Price Bros. was off a point at 20 1-2. Abitibi, preferred, was down 2 points at 20 and Abitibi, common, off a point at 2 1-2. Brewers and Distillers, Canada Malting, Dominion Glass, Dominion Textile, Imperial Oil, Massey-Harris, Montreal Light, Heat and Power, Steel of Canada, Wabasso Cotton and Windsor Hotel were unchanged.

Golds were generally lower. Lake Shore was off $1.50 at $245, Dome Mines off $1 at $24.50, Hollinger off $2.50 at $21.50, McIntyre off $1 at $2.50, Teck-Hughes off $1 at $2.50, Wright-Hargreaves off $1 at $2.50, Base metals were mixed. Beatty Bros. preferred was up 2 points at 50, Bell Telephone off 1-4 at 131 1-4, Brazilian off 1-4 at 7 1-4, Canada Bread, preferred, up 50 at 50, Canada Cement, preferred, off 2 at 90, Canada Cement, common, off 1 at 30, Canada Malting off 1 at 70, Canada Northern Power off 1-4 at 7 1-4, Dominion Bridge off 1 at 50 1-2, Dominion Glass, preferred, off 1 at 110, Dominion Glass, common, off 1 at 30, Dominion Textile off 1 at 70, Gatineau Power off 1-4 at 7 1-4, Imperial Oil off 1-4 at 7 1-4, Massey-Harris off 1-4 at 7 1-4, Montreal Light, Heat and Power off 1-4 at 16 1-2, Ottawa Light, Heat and Power off 1 at 50, Price Bros. off 1 at 20 1-2, Steel of Canada off 1 at 100 1-2, Wabasso Cotton off 1 at 20, Windsor Hotel off 1 at 70, Abitibi, preferred, off 2 at 20, Abitibi, common, off 1-4 at 2 1-2, Bathurst Power off 1 at 20, Brewers and Distillers off 1 at 20, Canada Bread, preferred, off 1 at 50, Canada Bread, common, off 1 at 5, Canada Northern Power, preferred, off 1 at 50, Canada Vinegars off 1 at 50, Consolidated Paper off 1 at 50

"The car, reaching the top of a hill, presented a view of the sound. It was a view Barrett had come to like, giving a magnificent, as it did, of English downs and their tranquillity.

Barrett laughed at that. "I miss you, Bob!" he announced. "Why not?" the other asked, adding, "It's easier to like people. I do personally, having a weakness for peace and comfort."

"It's not always easy," Barrett said, "for an older man to like a young man—whom his wife likes!"

"How do you get that way?" Bob asked indignantly. Then he turned, grinning, "Say, was that your complaint at Aiken?"

"Yes," Barrett admitted.

"But, good Lord—why, Elinor never would look at me if you were on the same room! And she didn't before you stepped into the picture either. I guess I used to make myself pretty much of a pest. You see, I was crazy over her and I still am, but it needn't trouble you, nor her either. She never gave me the slightest encouragement. You know how Elinor is. Square as they make 'em. I remember one time I lost my head and kissed her—"

"Bob boy was speaking the truth, Barrett knew. And he also knew that his was seeing the world misstep, that he had never been so happy nor felt so humble, and that he must be on guard lest he give himself away completely!

Bob went on. "Speaking frankly," he said, "you're as an old friend of Elinor's. I hope you'll forgive me for saying this—I have often wondered how she could be the kind of a girl she is. Her mother's the biggest fool in Palm Hill. By the way, can the kid back there hear what I'm saying?"

Barrett assured him that he could not.

Aside from the Thropes," Bob went on, "they're all bad eggs in their various ways. Her father adored Elinor but he had his weaknesses and she knew all about them. That's not so nice for a decent girl. And you know how he drank — stewed to the gills every night, lurching all over the place—"

"Yes," Barrett conceded, not quite steadily.

"Then there's Philip Sexton. After Elinor settled that $100,000 on him he was whining all the time for more."

Barrett was all attention. Philip Sexton! So that was where the $100,000 had gone! He had thought Elinor kept the money for herself after pretending such scorn for Miss Ella's money.

"I met her one day last winter in Palm," Bob went on, "and we sort of kept in touch with Phil because I did think he had a way with him. Elinor used to go to him often. Philip was sick and whenever she came all he did was to talk of how much you and she had and how little he had. He's a bum if there ever was one!"

"I didn't know he was in New York," Barrett heard himself say.

"That was Phil's agent. He did not want anyone to know. He was awfully sensitive about that scandal he was mixed up in. Forgive Miss Sexton's check, you know. You did know about that, didn't you?"

"Yes, I knew that."

Bob considered the matter in his slow way. "Look here," he said finally, "I'm afraid I'm a bit the cat out of the bag. I supposed of course you know Elinor went to see Philip and that he has been down here."

"I didn't, but I'm very glad to know it now."

"I'll have to confess to Elinor," Bob said. "But, I guess she'll forgive me."

Elinor was waiting for them on the terrace that ran before the house.

"Here's our friend," Barrett called as he put on the brakes. Elinor did not understand Barrett's eyes—the reverent, humble apology that was written in them.

"Bob!" she said, looking up and smiling.

"He brought me a present," Gerald reminded, his eyes on the luggage and boxes.

At dinner that night Bob was pleasantly, reassured of Elinor's happiness. She glowed. Barrett's heart went down anew as he saw such a change in her made by another man. He breathed deeply, reminded himself that her happiness was the one thing he wished, and was able to force a smile.

Bob made his confession about "spilling the beans" concerning Philip.

"I didn't know that Barrett did not know about it, Elinor," Bob said sheepishly.

"It doesn't matter," she assured him. "I didn't tell him because Philip was so insistent that no one must know. And he was so good to me when I was a child that I felt I had to respect his wishes. He did not want anyone to know he was in New York or that I had given him the money. Philip has so much pride—not the right kind of pride, either. It's the kind that exists as long as facts are kept hidden, so long as he can pretend that no one helps him. It's difficult to explain but I felt I owed him a good deal. And so I promised. I've often thought it was a mistake. Am I forgiven, Barry?" she finished.

"My dear!" Barrett stammered. "You know you are!"

Bob Trifare glanced from one to the other and reflected. "They're crazy about each other. I wish there had been tears in Barrett's eyes, brought there by Elinor's question. Well, Bob could understand that. If things had been different he, too, would have been sore to feel a short breath the eyelids, with her shooting need of his approval.

But things weren't different and perhaps some day he'd meet another girl. Meantime he'd keep in practice for the golf tournaments and get as many cups as he could.

There was a moon and after dinner Elinor led the way to the terrace. Barrett and Bob Trifare settled themselves beside her, watching the yellow disc rise in the sky. Hugging breasts their offices to knees and presently Bessie and Jim Thrope and their boys arrived.

Sexton, who was the youngest and thus able to forget old times, was talking about a motor boat. The other boys spoke eagerly of college in the fall. Bessie listened happily. She knew that something she had said to Elinor that day had made a decided difference. Bessie had seen the changed light in the girl's eyes, a little trembling of her lips. Poor Elinor who was so young, with so much of life to learn!

"We must be going now," Bessie said when the clock indoors struck 10.

After the Thropes had gone, singing on their way down the hill like ancient, travelling minstrels, Elinor went upstairs. For a long while she stood by the window of her darkened room looking over the moonlit world below.

The afternoon Bessie had nodded toward Gerald, playing on the beach with Sexton, and said, "Elinor, I feel that you're misinterpreting something and Jim's forbidden me to say more. He says Barrett would explain if he dared and I must not—if Barrett won't. But, dear, even if the situation were as it seems, you know as well as many job is to help a man make his future worth while. It isn't right to brood over the past. Everything Barrett can become is in your hands. What he was before you don't know."

Elinor had begun to tremble. She had not wanted to talk about that even to Bessie. Nevertheless Bessie went on. "It's natural enough for you to be jealous about what has been but you don't really love, my dear, until you want to help the person you love to cover old wounds and forget them. If Gerald is Barrett's son you'll never regret having Barrett as happy as he can be about it. And when you're as old as I am you'll realize that the only times you've been hurt were when you made others downcast by showing them that they hurt you. Barrett loves you. Anyone can see that!"

Elinor had begun to cry. "I do love him, Aimi Bessie," she whimpered, "but—"

They had talked for an hour and Bessie was sure that in some way Elinor had found the courage to tell things she longed to tell her and could not.

It was half past 10 when Barrett descended the stairs. Bob Trifare had gone to his room half an hour earlier. There was a telegram for Elinor and Barrett, not wishing to disturb, decided to poke it beneath her door. He had writing to do and he knew that he could not sleep. During training he had been unable for him to concentrate and thereby gain a sort of relief. He worked but his mind was not really in his work. Again and again, as he sat writing, his pen would slow and the objects he was describing —objects he had visualized after centuries of hiding in the earth—would be replaced by Elinor's face.

Hard moments those; moments when it was all he could do to stay at his desk. Often they left him spent and shaking. It was the futility of the situation that troubled him, the fact that it was all so unnecessary and was making Elinor so miserable.

He tapped on her door and to his surprise heard her say, "Come in!"

"It's I—Barrett," he explained. "Come in," she repeated.

He opened the door. She was sitting up in bed, the light from a lamp beside her shining down on her hair.

"Have you a moment to spare?" she asked.

"Of course." He didn't understand this. "I brought up a telegram that came for you," he said.

Elinor took it and he sat down in a chair that was near her. She tore open the envelope with his pencil knife. Then, "Mother's married!" she gasped.

She gave him the message and he read it with a certain grim amusement. Ida had married a Chicago merchant whose reputation Barrett knew well, a Rhinelander dressed with a string of beautiful wives in his cupboard. He would, Barrett reflected, be a match for Lida.

"Well!" he said, and could think of no more suitable comment.

"I expected that—or something like it," Elinor admitted, "but not quite so soon." She grew silent then. Barrett felt she was trying to say something more and that it was not easy for her to begin.

He had his own speech to make and he wanted to get it over. Elinor's head fell forward, and hesitated.

"Yes?" Why was she looking at him in that way? It was dangerous for both of them.

"Elinor, I want to tell you that I respect you wholly and as every love I have ever been. I've had no idea—a rather fixed idea—that you were carrying on some sort of affair with Bob Trifare. I'm thoroughly ashamed of that now and I hope you can forgive me. I know how fine you are in every way and have always been. I—" he paused, balked.

"But, Barrett! I couldn't do a thing like that!" she said quickly. "I couldn't! I've seen too much of it to be able to indulge in it myself. I've been passive—like you, but not in others. I've been—small, Barrett! I know I have."

He saw that her lips were trembling. "I don't see that—" he disagreed.

"Yes, you do! Or you could—if you would! I've made you so unhappy!"

"That wasn't your fault," he assured her. "I know I hurt you desperately."

Shook her head violently. "I hurt myself," she confessed unsteadily, "by acting the way I have."

She began to cry. She had cried so often in the last weeks, Barrett moved toward her; he could not help it. He settled on the edge of the bed and drew her into his arms. He patted her back with one big hand, and pressed close to him with the other. His own eyes were glistening.

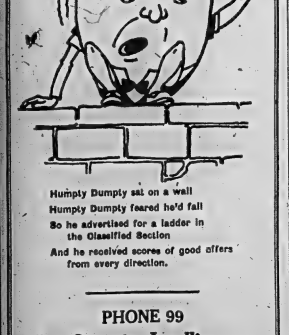
SEPT 25 MR. AND MRS. — THE TREASURE HUNT

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs



Out of his mountain castle in the bright sunlight rode young King Gridon at the head of a glittering company of mail-clad knights. Slowly they wound their way down toward the plains of Nimmr where was to be held the annual great tourney with their ancient foemen, the Knights of Nimmr. With them rode gay, laughing ladies, men-at-arms, and henchmen carrying the housings, provisions and equipment for the three days' tourney.

During these three days a true was declared between the two camps. The grand prize of the tourney was five of the most beautiful maidens from the vanquished side. Thokk from the city of Bohun rode with his knights on milk-white steeds. They became the wards of the winning side, and married sons knight of the opposing faction which had chosen them in the tourney.

Preparations for the grand tourney were completed. Jimmy Blake was as keen for the coming fray as he was, and once been for the big games in his college days. Following custom, many knights chose to wear distinctive armor. Blake's was solid black chain mail covered by the leopard skin of his bandore, his silver and blue pennan and the prescribed red

As he came forth the first morning of the tourney, Jimmy appeared a somber figure among the resplendent knights. Among the gorgeously dressed ladies was the Princess Guinalda, conversing with one of the maidens who had been chosen as Nimmr's prize for the tourney. Blake avoided looking at her, as he approached Guinalda and bowed, she merely returned the formality, continuing her conversation.

ARRIVAL OF HERNANDEZ IS AWAITED

Son Says Fathers Never Rebelled Against Administration

INSIST ON MARTIN

Labor Situation Tense Although No Disorders Noted

By John P. McKnight

Havana, Sept. 25 (CP) — Still deadlocked with its political opponents, the government of Ramon Grau San Martin awaited the arrival today of the rebel leader, Juan Hles Hernandez, who was expected to present himself to officials.

Dispatches from Camaguey said Hles Hernandez, who all last week was reported up in arms against the government, boarded a train there for Havana, saying he would appear before the army general staff.

At Santa Clara, however, his aides said, was taken prisoner two days ago, said his father had never rebelled against the Grau administration.

A six-hour conference between factions supporting and opposing the government broke up late last night without an agreement, although the conference continued to meet this afternoon. Another meeting was scheduled for some time today.

Students backing Grau San Martin were still insistent that he remain as president, although they were said to be willing to accept a coalition cabinet.

The opposition was represented as feeling that the entire government must go if the way is to be cleared for any practical solution to Cuba's present troubles.

Labor Situation Serious

A tense labor situation in the vast sugarlands of Oriente province, but no disorders were reported over the week end.

At Tanano sugar mill, in Oriente Province, 18 Britons and Americans continued as virtual prisoners of striking employees, while a United States department aboard by ready to take them off if need be.

At nearby Chaparra mill Americans gathered in the yacht club, ready to leave. Labor troubles at the large Chaparra plant again were becoming acute. R. B. Wood, the manager, spent the night aboard a British ship in the harbor.

Meanwhile, a worse food shortage was believed imminent with the announcement that striking Havana warehousemen were ready to return to work.

Six armed men confiscated a delivery truck loaded with groceries for the suburban Vedado section and escaped.

MISS BRITAIN CATCHES FIRE

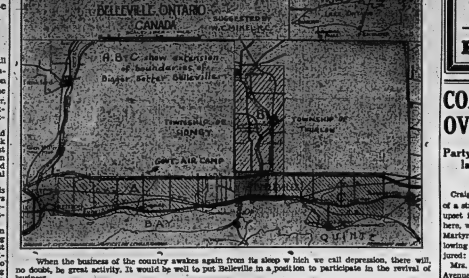
Lowers Record For Single Motor Before Accident Happens

Poole, Dorset, England, Sept. 25 —(AP)—Miss Britain III crashed at more than 90 miles an hour, the Miss Britain III, Robert Scott-Paine's motorboat which just returned from Detroit, caught fire Sunday.

Scott-Paine and his mechanic were not injured but the speedboat's clothes were scorched by flames from the motors.

The British speed attempt was trying to lower Great Britain's one mile record and the unofficial world record for single-engined motorboats. She had made a run over the course, returned to the pier to refuel, went out and made three more runs before the crash from the rear of the craft.

Dozens of boats were carrying chemical fire extinguishers rushed to the scene. The tower and the mechanic already were fighting the flames. After half an hour's work the fire was brought under control and the Miss Britain, her engine and rear portion burned out, was standing on the bows, acknowledging cheers from a hushed which had gathered at the waterfront.



Before the Miss Britain caught fire, Scott-Paine had beaten the British record formerly held by Miss Betty Carstairs and the unofficial world's record for single-engined motorboats set by the late Sir Henry Segrave.

A mean speed of 95.08 miles per hour was attained on two runs of one mile each.

LOOKING FORWARD

A City with Vision

(CONTRIBUTED)

When the business of the country awakes again from its sleep which we call depression, there will, no doubt, be great activity. It would be well to put Belleville in a position to participate in the revival of business.

Some years ago Magistrate McNeil, when Mayor, suggested that Belleville might grow and develop in one or more of three distinct directions as shown in the above drawing:

A. Along the shore of the Bay of Quinte, running westerly from Belleville towards Trenton and south of the Canadian National Railways. This would practically connect Belleville and include the unincorporated village of Bayside, also the Sidney Air Camp. Across this territory runs the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway. Also the King's Highway No. 1. This section has been steadily growing in population.

B. That section running along the Bay shore easterly from Belleville in the first concession of the Township of Thurlow. This includes the fish hatchery, the House of Refuge, and the unincorporated villages of Point Anne.

C. The section running northerly from Belleville to Foxboro taking in the first ten lots of each concession. This section includes the unincorporated villages of College Hill, Lazier's Mills, High Park (Glenory Lonesome), Cannifton, Corbyville and Foxboro.

When the Bay is dredged to permit ocean vessels to bring in coal and goods from Great Britain and take back cheese, apples, poultry, meats, fish, canned goods and other commodities from this section it may reasonably be expected that within the next quarter of a century Belleville will have moved into the front ranks of the cities of Canada if a progressive policy is adopted.

TRENTON COUPLE CELEBRATE 50 YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE

Mr. and Mrs. William Pearce Residents Since 1915

Trenton, Sept. 25 (Special) — Married in the Church of England at Picton fifty years ago September 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. William Pearce celebrated that happy event at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Walter Miller, with twenty-one of their descendants present.

Both these fine old people are natives of Canada. Mrs. Pearce was Victoria Nelson and was born near Wellington, the daughter of Irish settlers. She is 70 years of age and is well and enjoying life to the full. Mr. Pearce was born in Sidney township 78 years ago and moved to a farm near Wellington as a youngster where he met his wife. Following their marriage the couple moved to Manitoba where they lived for eight years, then took children, were born, the only son Reuben, of Trenton, and Flossie, Mrs. Walter Miller of Trenton.

Returning to Canada they took up a farm at Ameliasburg but only remained in that neighborhood a short time. Thirty-one years ago they moved to Murray township and resided there until 1915 when they came to Trenton to live.

Two more daughters were born during their years on the farm, one Sarah, Mrs. G. H. Dunsmoore, of Belleville and Mrs. Mary Fraser McKenzie of Toronto. There are four grandchildren and one great-grandchild descendants of the union.

At the celebration supper all the children and their children were present at the table. A beautiful bouquet of fifty roses was presented to Mrs. Pearce.

Late Jack Douglas

It was with great surprise and deep regret that Trentonians heard of the death in Toronto of Jack Douglas on Saturday night.

Mr. Douglas was a supervisor at the airport over a gang of the men on the relief project.

Apparently in the best of health on Saturday, Mr. Douglas was in the afternoon stricken with a heart attack and in Tweed with his family. On Sunday word was sent of his sudden death.

The late Jack Douglas had made many friends in town especially in the bowling circles as he was a baseball player of note, and recently played first base with the Trenton League team in the Central Park League in Belleville.

He was a great favorite at the airport and his death has cast a gloom over the entire camp.

New Club House

It was decided at a meeting of the C.P.R. recreation club a week ago to build a new club house on the club's property near Princess Street. It is estimated to cost $1500.00 and is to be a frame structure with verandahs on the north and west sides. Former C.P.R. employees now out of work are supplying the labor.

Giacomelli—De Fosse

A pretty autumn wedding took place when Rose Marie De Fosse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph De Fosse, Marmora Street, was united in marriage to Raio Giacomelli, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Giacomelli, 257 Weston Road, Toronto. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Very Rev. Dean J. J. Wadell at St. Peter-in-chains Church at Trenton on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in her white satin gown with veil and carrying a bouquet of roses and carnations.

Miss Mary De Fosse, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and was dressed in pink georgette with matching hat and carried a bouquet of carnations and baby breath.

Mr. V. Walter Schinoriol of Toronto, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Relatives of Montreal, Toronto, Trenton and many out of town guests were in attendance.

The house was most enjoyable and was supplied by Andy Rea of Toronto with a chromatic accordion and Archie Piccinini of Montreal, with a piano accordion.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Giacomelli left by motor for Chicago and on their return they will reside in Toronto.

Deepen Channel

The dredge, tug and two barges of the Kaministiquia Dredging Co. of Toronto arrived last week in Trenton, from Belleville, where they are deepening in front of the old Weddell dock recently leased by B. W. Powers & Son, local coal dealers.

Personals

Mrs. Wm. Offen of Toronto is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Smith, King Street.

Miss Marion Smith, daughter of Fred Smith, Dr. Pitt Kingston, where she attends Queen's University.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpkins of Melrose, spent Sunday with Mrs. A. H. Rowe at her cottage on the Carrying Place Road.

Mrs. H. Chambers, Bryson St. left Saturday for McCreary, Man. to visit her mother and brother.

Mrs. Gerald Rowe spent Sunday with Mr. Orliff Lloyd of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fyn. Lester have returned home after a week's visit with Mr. Lester's sister in Renfrew.

Mrs. Havelock Bruffet and Mrs. Geo. Boulter spent Sunday in Trenton.

Mr. Charles Boulter spent Sunday in Toronto.

Rev. F. G. Kirkpatrick, formerly of Carrying Place and now of Kingston, and Rev. A. L. McTear, formerly of Trenton and now of Cataraqui, were visitors in town on Saturday.

OBITUARY

LATE GARRET M. NEELY

A prominent figure in the Napanee district was removed by death in the person of Garret M. Neely.

His funeral service was held at his late residence on Saturday, Sept. 23, and was attended by many from town and countryside, the ministers who took part were Revs. Harry Fosnum and A. J. Wilson.

Mr. Neely was the second son of the late John and Elizabeth Neely of Newburg and he married Miss Elma Seely of Seeley. He was a member of the Uplied Church and a great temperance advocate.

He leaves his widow and three sisters, Mrs. H. D. Sweet, Spokane, Mrs. H. K. Denyes, Thurlow and Mrs. A. H. Moore, Belleville.

WANTS TO RETIRE

Vancouver, Sept. 25—(CP)— Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald of the British Columbia Supreme Court, has confirmed the statement he is trying to arrange for his retirement by the end of the year. He celebrated the 20th anniversary of his appointment to the bench last Friday.

COACH TURNS OVER ON ROAD

Party Proceeding to Midland For Religious Ceremony

Craighurst, Sept. 25—When one of a string of 11 Gray Line Coaches upset in a ditch Sunday, north of here, while carrying pilgrims to the Martyrs' Shrine at Midland, the following Toronto persons were injured:—

Mrs. Bridget Gilligan, 221 Wallace Avenue, fractures of one arm and wrist in Barrie Hospital.

Joseph Gilligan, same address.

Miss Olive Hynus, 634A Indian Road.

Miss Marion Tyrell, 14 Wanda Road.

Mrs. Sidney Cowden, 228 Scarboro Avenue.

Margaret Dawson, aged 3, same address.

Mrs. Mae Gluck, 225 Emerson Avenue.

Girl Pinned in Seat

Anita Gooden, the little daughter of the driver, had one arm cut a window when the coach upset, and was pinned in her seat. All the others escaped by the front exit, and from the vehicle before she could be extricated and the others taken away. Mrs. Gilligan to the hospital, where she was found to have three fractured ribs and arm injuries.

The little girl, Mrs. Gilligan, Mrs. Gluck and Mrs. Gluck were all in Barrie tonight, receiving medical attention, but may also be be removed to Toronto on Monday.

With the exception of Mrs. Gilligan, all the victims escaped with minor injuries, lacerations and bruising, the most severe hurts being in several cases rib fractures. All but Mrs. Gilligan were able to be taken either to Toronto or to Barrie after first-aid at the scene.

Members of the parish of St. Joan of Arc, the occupants of the 11 buses left Toronto yesterday to attend the consecration of a nine-day Novena at the Shrine at Midland. They were accompanied by the clergy of their church—Rev. Joseph Crothers and Rev. T. J. Manley.

The bus involved in the accident was driven by Sidney Cooden of Scarboro Avenue, whose wife was among the injured. Cooden told Provincial Police Constable H. D. Hammer, who investigated, that he was driving at between 22 and 35 miles per hour, when, without warning and for no apparent reason, the bus, containing 30 persons, lurched toward the right, left the road and turned over on its right side in the ditch, one end one-foot resting on that of here on the Penetang Road, near Hillsdale.

TO REBUILD FLOOR

Ste. Anne De Beaupre, Que., Sept. 25 (CP)—The floor of the famous shrine of Ste. Anne here will be rebuilt at a cost of $50,000, it is hoped to complete the work in time for the opening of the 1934 pilgrimage season.

LITTLE CALF DRAGGED BY AUTOMOBILE

North Bay, Ont., Sept. 25.—(CP) Cattle in this district seem in the least afraid of automobiles any more, in fact they are becoming quite attached to them.

A North Bay motorist returning home from Callander after purchasing for some time found a calf, a little out of breath, gazing at him through the back window of the car. Getting out he found the animal's chain had become entangled under the machine and he had been towing it for some distance. It has been impossible to locate the animal's owner.

ONE LEGGED BOY WINS HIGH JUMPING CLASS

Jumps Height of Self 3' 6" And Given Ribbon

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 25.—(CP).— Gunnar Kyrzakos, 13-year-old Sudbury news boy, who lost one leg in an accident, won the high jump competition at the Public School field day here.

Kyrzakos jumped three feet four inches, as high as his chin, in a special event. He was given what have been unfair to enter him against others so we gave him a class of his own," said a ribbon signifying he was winner.

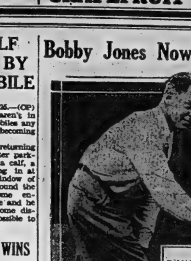
TRAVEL TALKS ARE GIVEN AT MADOC W.I.

Madoc, Sept. 25—The Women's Institute of Madoc held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Wm. Parks with a good attendance on Friday 15th. Mrs. F. C. N. Whytock presiding. After a short period of business the meeting was then was used in opening, and the minutes of the last meeting and an executive meeting were read, correspondence regarding a course of Canadianism Lectures was dealt with, and it was voted to ask for the opening and first meeting with an assurance of a full class. Roll Call was answered by "My Favorite Hobby" several suggestions being received.

Miss Lorreen Connor, of the public school staff was called on for a travel talk, speaking principally on some of the differing customs of the various countries, and people of some of Scotland, England, Holland, Germany and France. In the large cities, she observes, one can hardly note the difference between British and Canadian cities.

Mrs. W. Hulin delighted her audience with vocal solos, "I Think That I Shall Never See," and "The Old Kitchen Door." Mrs. C. Wylie took as piano accompanist.



Miss McDermid of the high school staff, gave a most interesting synopsis of Susanna, in her "Roughing it in the Bush," and Mrs. Hall in a very local color by speaking of the country around Peterboro and also locality as the early pioneers found it.

After this a very local color by speakers and vocalist was tendered by the members on motion of Mrs. Moon and Mrs. A. Smith.

In reporting for relief work, Mrs. Moon reported two bales distributed during September, one of which was valued at fifteen dollars.

The National Anthem closed the meeting and the evening was spent with a social hour which was enjoyed by about forty persons.

Bobby Jones Now Tries Tennis

Bobby Jones, some-time golf wizard, tries his hand at tennis at Highland Gate Country Club, Atlanta, Ga. It is reported that he is really a speedy "good game," after all, as it is little boy Bobby Jones' favorite sport, but golf "but the links sport, now seem him away and he devoted his time to tennis, becoming the master of the best golfer of them all."

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Marie Dressler and Wallace Berry in "Tugboat Annie," their first appearance since "Min and Bill," are the attraction, sometimes hilarious, sometimes touchingly pathetic, but always entertaining, at the Belle Theatre, where the long-awaited filmization of Norman Reilly Raine's Saturday Evening Post stories is now playing.

The public has long clamored for another Dressler-Berry picture, and in the present story Metro Goldwyn Mayer has provided an ideal one. There are hilarious quarrels between the redoubtable feminine tugboat skipper and her alcoholic, good-natured husband; mother-love furnishes a poignant heart interest, and there is a tremendous dramatic climax in the amazing episode in the engine room.

A Terrific Climax

Miss Dressler plays Annie, with Berry as her husband, Terry, and Robert Young as Alec, the son, who grows up, becomes captain of a liner, marries the daughter of the shipping magnate and seeks to remove his parents from the tug which is their livelihood and home. The father lapses into his old alcoholic ways and Annie disowns him, but when, in rescuing the liner's boilers, the latter makes an astounding sacrificing, their difficulties are smoothed out. Berry's scene plugging leaking boiler tubes in the flaming firebox at sea, is the dramatic highlight of a truly fine performance.

Berry and Miss Dressler, of course, battle and make up and glean countless laughs. Frankie Darro is clever as the son brought up by Annie, and young Maureen O'Sullivan makes a beautiful sweetheart for the young captain, and clever character work is provided Willard Robertson, Tommy Dugan, Donald Meek and Paul Hurst. Mervyn LeRoy directed this picture with the same deft skill that has marked his "Gold Diggers of 1933" and other hits. "Tugboat Annie" is a swell picture, and should not be missed.

AT THE CAPITOL

Members of the Belleville Rotary Club report an excellent sale of tickets for their adopted movie, "The Man From Toronto," opening a three day engagement at the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday of this week.

These tickets are good for any of the matinee or evening performances during the three days only.

The work of the Rotary Club is mainly that of caring for crippled children, a work which is extremely praiseworthy and one which entails a tremendous amount of money annually in the undertaking.

The Rotary Club trust, therefore, devise various methods of raising the necessary funds for raising and when we know that the Capitol Theatre management have kindly allowed these tickets for "Man From Toronto" to be sold by the Rotarians (in addition of course to the usual manner at the box office) there should be no hesitation on the part of the Belleville public in purchasing these tickets when approached. Please buy as many as possible!

"The Man From Toronto"

"The Man From Toronto" opening at the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday is one of the funniest farces ever produced. Robert Young in the performance as "Buzz Dean" in the Clarence-British screen version of "The Good Companions" won Canadian Hearts, is seen as a fascinating English youth.

Jessie Matthews is assisted in fun making by the crotchety and lovable veteran of many Hollywood and English movies Fred Kerr who is the solicitor under whose care and is unable to resist the blandishments of his charming client, Jessie Hunter is the man from Toronto and will be remembered by Canadians as Reside Muller's love interest in "Marry Me" and other recent British successes.

"The Man From Toronto" is adapted from Douglas Murray's famous stage play of the same title. The comedy concerned the hearts of many soldier Canadians as they are in London and has been frequently entertained. The production of the "Man From Toronto" is a thoroughly modernized version, but the essential comedy situations of the original have been retained and provide just the kind of joyous entertainment that today's moviegoers desire.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT LAYING OF STONE

Corner Stone Well and Truly Laid by Clergy, Masons at Bonarlaw

MANY PRESENT

House of Worship Dedicated Will be Credit to Community

With smiling skies overhead and an almost summer temperature to enhance the day, the members of the congregation of St Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, and friends from throughout the district congregated Tuesday morning at the partially completed new church of the parish, to witness the laying of the corner-stone of their new edifice by Most Worshipful Grand Master W. S. Herrington of Napanee, assisted by officers of the Grand Lodge and to later take part in the service of the church, dedicated to such an occasion.

Fully 700 were present when the members of the Grand Lodge and Masonic brethren to the number of 130 arrived on the scene after opening and closing of lodge in the hall at Springbrook. Twelve members of the clergy of the clergy of the Church of England from throughout the district, headed with Canon Swayne in the event, took active part in the service to him and his parishioners and members of current interests in the history of Anglicanism in the middle north station of Hastings County, the history of St. Mark's Church augmented by other voices led in the singing of the familiar hymns of the church appropriate to the day and event. "The Church as Was Our Foundation", "All People That On Earth Do Dwell", "O Lord of Hosts, Whom Naught Can Move", "Christ Has Made the Sure Foundation."

Officials Welcomed

Following the singing of the first of the above hymns, Canon Swayne, rector of St. Mark's, welcomed the Worshipful Grand Master, the Grand officers, members of the Craft, his fellow clergymen and all others who had congregated to bear goodwill toward the undertaking the day marked, to lay the corner-stone of the new edifice dedicated to the Faith in Jesus Christ and made sacred to the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

Grand Master Herrington

Most Wor. Grand Master Herrington then addressed the gathering, stating the pleasure it gave him and members of the Grand Lodge to ever participate in such occasions as that in which they were that day participating. He then proceeded to give a brief history of Masonry, its origin in the days of King Solomon's temple in Jerusalem, when members of the craft were active and influential throughout Masonry from that time had passed down through the ages to the present time, while though the top of centuries of adversities of

KELLY'S WIFE THINKS ABOUT HER PARENTS

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 26 (AP) — Kathryn Kelly, arrested here today with her husband, George R. "Machine Gun" Kelly, immediately agreed to return to Oklahoma city to face charges in connection with the kidnapping of Charles S. Urschel, millionaire oil man.

At the same time, she said she had planned to leave her husband and return home, in order to defend her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon, who are now on trial in Oklahoma City.

"I was going to go back to Oklahoma City tomorrow and give myself up," the smartly dressed, auburn haired woman told newspaper men. "Really told me he would tell me M I did, but I was going anyway.

"I don't care about myself. I'm thinking about my parents, the Shannons."

Kathryn described her brother, Armond Shannon, also on trial in the kidnapping, as being about 21 or just 18.

"I've got nothing to say about that guy", she told Police Chief Willis, when asked about Kelly.

"I don't want to have anything more to do with him. He got me into his kind of trouble."

She wore a smart, black suit, with a shoulder cape trimmed with a fringe of black fur. She rolled her big brown eyes as she told of the troubles of a life with a gangster.

"Day before yesterday was my 19th wedding anniversary," she said, "and what a swell anniversary."

FATHER KNOCKS DOWN 14 MOS. SON WITH CAR

Leaves Injuries Will Not Be Known For 24 Hours

An accident, that it is trusted will not prove as serious as at first nature occurred this morning on the farm of William McGeeh in the 12 concession of Ravsion about a mile west of Stirling, Mr. McComb was preparing to drive to the township hall when he met the corner stone of St. Mark's church at that place and was backing his car out of the yard to the roadway when he ran into his fourteen-months-old son John, who had entered the yard unbeknown to him. The baby was knocked down but fortunately the wheels of the car did not pass over him. Dr. Jones was attended the youngster and found no bones fractured but it will be some time before his exact injuries are ascertainable.

ELECTION BETS ARE ALREADY BEING MADE

St. Thomas, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)—Some unique charitable institution may receive a present of $100 if a bet made by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader and William H. Ireland, chief Tory whip in Ontario legislature, is won.

The bet was offered by Mr. Hepburn when he heard the prediction of Mr. Ireland that the Liberal leader would be defeated in Elgin constituency in the forthcoming general election.

To the prediction Mr. Hepburn replied: "I'm not making any predictions about Elgin, but I'll wager $100 with Mr. Ireland—the money to go to 'a charitable institution—that he won't win in the next election in West Hastings in the general election."

Central Figure in Case of Mistaken Identity, Begins Twelve Year Term

Montreal, Sept. 26 (CP)—George Starke, 29, who with Leslie Hogue, 25, was before a Liberal sentence in penitentiary for holdup, was the central figure in a case of mistaken identity a few years ago, which sent him to jail in another province.

Starke was identified as the man who held up a branch office of a street car company and he was sentenced to seven years with the lashes. After Starke had served part of the sentence another man confessed to the crime and Starke, while an appeal was under way to establish his innocence formally, was released and his sentence was reduced to four years in jail.

Starke was released and has now been found guilty of a holdup on May 12 when a payroll of $2,500 was stolen. Two months ago Starke escaped from police headquarters after his arrest and was at liberty for 17 days before he was recaptured.

Starke sought compensation through the Justice Department for the wrongful imprisonment a few years ago, but was told the law made no provision for such payments.

POLICY MAY BE CHANGED

Rumors Lead to Added Force And Plans For Revolt

By Edmund A. Chester

Havana, Sept. 26 (AP) — Cuban military forces were strengthened today as rumors reached the government of a change in the United States policy toward Cuba and of plans for another revolt.

Simultaneously there were authentic reports that negotiations between opposing factions and the Ramon Grau San Martin regime had approached no closer toward a solution of problems which threatened the life of the latter's two weeks-old government.

A rumour, without apparent basis was circulated that some form of custodianship for Cuba was planned by the Washington administration and created a tense atmosphere in the capital.

Colonel Pulgencio Batista's army was increased by the addition of a civil guard of 2,000 members of the Caribbean army, a student organization.

These youths did guard duty in small interior towns. Regular troops were being concentrated in provincial capitals.

All "suspicious" automobiles entering or leaving Havana today were being searched. Soldiers helped search the cars.

Ambassador Caffery conferred with Dr. Cespedes today.

NEW MENACE TO THRESHED GRAIN

Lethbridge, Alta., Sept. 26 (CP)—A new menace to threshed grain has appeared in the form of a microscopic organism attacking stored grain in elevator bins in this district. The organism, not only to seen under a strong glass but its effects on grain can readily be noticed.

A grain elevator at Claresholm, Alta., is running 2,000 bushels of affected grain through the cleaner in an effort to eradicate the pest. The only grain affected is that in storage from previous years, it was indicated.

STATEMENT TO BE DEFINITE

Liberal Leader Not Ready to Discuss Beer, Wine Policy of Party

St. Thomas, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)—Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, said at his home here today he would make a definite pronouncement of his party's stand on the Ontario beer or liquor issue before the election, probably before the end of this year.

"I don't care to make a statement on the beer question or other questions of policy until I have had an opportunity to consult the Liberal and Progressive members in the Legislature and the Liberal and Progressive candidates who have been nominated," Mr. Hepburn said. "At present Liberal and Progressive candidates have been appointed in about one-half of the Ontario ridings in preparation for the coming provincial election.

"Within the next two or three months, we will proceed to place Liberal and Progressive candidates in the remaining seats. When this is done, the viewpoint on the candidates and the present members in the House will be invited and will be given consideration on all matters of policy and an election manifesto will then be issued.

"I promise that when this is done the statement on the beer and other questions will be very definite. It will be given without equivocation."

DESPERADO IS SURPRISED BY POLICE CHIEF

"Machine Gun" Kelly Surrenders Peaceably to Officers

WON'T TALK

Wanted For Abduction of Millionaire Urschell at Kansas City

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 26 (AP) — George R. "Machine Gun" Kelly, bandit of the southwest, sought in connection with the Kansas City massacre, and of kidnapping and robbery charges, surrendered peacefully to officers, who surprised him asleep in a rooming house here early today.

After talking with W. A. Roper, a department of justice operative, Police Chief Will Lee announced that there was no question about the identity of the prisoner as Kelly.

Arrested with the outlaw were a woman Lee said was his wife, Kathryn Kelly, 29, and two men described as R. Brunner, 30, and S. E. Travis, 26.

Kelly's capture was effected by a group of officers who surrounded the house in which he and the others were sleeping. Detective Sergeant W. J. Raney said Kelly appeared at the door of the house with a pistol.

"Drop that gun, Kelly," Raney said he told him.

Kelly refused to put up the gun and surrendered.

"I have been waiting for you all night," Raney quoted him as saying.

"Well, we are here," was Raney's answer.

Admits Identity

At the police station, Police Chief Lee said Kelly admitted his identity but refused to talk.

"Chief," he was quoted as saying, "I'm not talking about anything."

Later, smiling broadly and smoking one cigarette after another, Kelly remained defiant in another interview with police.

Chief Lee walked into his cell, he demanded:

"Who are you?"

"I'm Chief Lee," was the reply. "Give me a light then," was Kelly's response.

DENTAL GOLD THIEVES BUSY

Dentists in London, Chatham and Guelph Robbed of Metal

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)—Sweeping from city to city and making their hauls with lightning-like speed, a band of dental gold thieves is being sought today by police of numerous Ontario centres. Beginning on past week, ten dentists in London, Guelph and Chatham alone were robbed.

At Guelph the burglars cleaned out the office of Dr. J. L. Bertin. Dr. Tyrell, Dr. G. H. Weber and Dr. L. J. Seabrook. They attempted to enter the office of Dr. A. L. Bertin but were unsuccessful. In practically each case entrance was obtained by forcing the locks of the offices.

The first raid took place at London, where Dr. B. E. Wilson, Dr. S. R. Moore, Dr. C. M. Snelgrove and Dr. W. S. Hodgetts were robbed. The floors had been burglarized. Two dentists from Guelph reported they too had been robbed.

Police believe the prevailing depression has given the idea to many of the thieves to reap a rich harvest. The dental gold thieves have been between $35 and $50 worth of the yellow metal for use in their work and they were not supplied with strong bones.

HOME MADE PLANE WRECK AFTER CRASH

Kitchener, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)—A home-made aeroplane which took Harold Marquette, Kitchener, four and one half years to make is a wreck today following a crash during the first test flight yesterday.

The plane took off from the Kitchener-Waterloo Airport, circled around and was being brought to a landing when it crashed up. The pilot, Ken Smith, escaped unin-jured.

246,000 CANADIANS REINSTATED IN EMPLOYMENT SINCE APRIL 1

12,000 in Month of August Left Army of Unemployed

Ottawa, Sept. 26—(CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated today that 246,000 Canadians have been reinstated in employment since April 1. In the month of August, 12,000 left the army of unemployed by gainful occupation.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, said 246,000 firms which make monthly statements to the bureau now report they have $17,002 persons on their payrolls. On August 1 the number was 229,000.

"The importance of the gain will be made clear," the Minister said, "when it is remembered that the usual experience of the past would indicate a normal decline at this season of the year of over 4,000. Instead of that decline we have an increase of 12,000 so that the betterment is actually 16,000 for the month."

Index numbers also show that the upward trend which is now in evidence has lasted since the beginning of April.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 26.—(CP)—A man accused of manslaughter in connection with a motor accident here on Boxing Day, resulting in the death of Gordon Becker of Detroit, was acquitted on a charge of criminal negligence in County Police Court today.

Apartment Dwellers in Downtown Disturbed in Early Hours by Runaway

Motor smash-ups and car collisions have become so almost daily frequence that unless of a most serious nature, they hardly rate now as news; but a runaway horse, that was the sensation created on Front Street a few days ago and scarce was worthy of notice, but now assumes a place in the event of news importance.

Apartment dwellers in the vicinity of Front Street were early called to their windows this (Tuesday) morning by the cries of a team in full career and rattle of breaking glass as they quickly realized the cause of the morning workers. A horse attached to the Walmuir dairy delivery wagon, No. 2, broke the surcingle of his harness coming down Murney hill, crossing along Bridge Street, driverless driver, stuck to the conveyance and endeavoured to keep the horse progressing along Bridge Street, but failed to gain control of it, when the East Bridge Street hill was encountered. The horse thought otherwise, however, and when the "Four Corners" was reached made a swerve to gallop south on Front Street. The wagon struck the light standard at the southeast corner of Bridge and Front Streets and the corking, and it and the horse were overturned and thrown across the sidewalk against the west side of the old Standard Bank building. Cases and cans of milk were thrown from the rig with considerable breakage. How driver Elmey, who had gamely stayed in the conveyance escaped serious injury is the wonder of those who witnessed the accident.

The horse was scraped considerable on its left fore knee and its head and hind left leg received bruises and scratches. The under part of the wagon and the left shaft were broken and the top received some dents and breakage. A quantity of milk was spilled and numerous bottles broken. That the driver was not injured or the horse more seriously, was a most fortunate thing.

Veneration of the relic will take place this evening at seven-thirty.

WATCHES STURGEON TAKE AIRING IN BAY

Rolling lazily over and over like a section of a saw log with the early morning sun glistening on its wet sides and fins, a big fish believed to have been a full grown sturgeon was observed on the calm surface of the Bay of Quinte, just east of the Rossmore dock by Mr. J. Ward of this city, early Tuesday morning. So novel was the sight, that Mr. Ward stopped his car and was able to observe the fish from the Bay Bridge, for several minutes. Sturgeon, according to commercial fishermen of the district are not uncommon in the bay, although glimpses of the fish are obtained only at rare intervals. Generally they spend their time mud-grubbing in the deepest section of the bay, emerging at times to the surface only at infrequent intervals.

COPPER CLIFF COBALT AND DELORO

Interesting Address on Mines and Minerals of Northern Ontario

ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY-ONE MILLION OUNCES of silver; ore from Cobalt mining camp have been produced at the plant of The Deloro Smelting and Refining Co., Limited, situated at Deloro, Hastings County, an industry which provides steady employment for from one hundred and fifty to two hundred men at good wages. Cobalt camp ores were considered hard to reduce and were sent to Perth Amboy, New Jersey, a famous smelting centre for reduction, in the early days of the camp, until M. J. O'Brien, of the O'Brien Mine, one of the first and best silver mines in the camp and still in operation, looking for a Canadian smelting plant to reduce Cobalt ores found the mill at Deloro, built to reduce gold ores which was then operated there at one time. After that a steady stream of silver ore from Cobalt camp flowed to Deloro, and the plant there was developed until today it is one of the best smelting plants on the continent. This interesting bit of history was gleaned from an address given before the Belleville Rotary Club by R. A. Elliott, M.E., Works Superintendent of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Limited on "The Silver Cobalt Camp of Northern Ontario."

Mr. Elliott, who was introduced by Ex-Mayor Morley Duff, prefaced his remarks with a brief history of the Cobalt Camp, how the late Fred Smith Larose working his forge on the head beside the mill race at Haileybird a fox, threw his hammer as it missed the fox, hit a rock and out of the rift in the rock, bright spangled with silver sprang Cobalt, youngest and strongest of mining camps, which has produced 417,000,000 ounces of silver, in the 23 producing. Paralleling the discovery of Cobalt Camp, how the discovery of the Sudbury-Copper Cliff nickel belt which now supplies 75% of the world's mineral area in 1883 on its way to the coast, starting an industry which now employs approximately one hundred per cent of the world's nickel.

As the C.P.R. opened the Sudbury-Copper Cliff mineral area, so the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway opened up Cobalt, then Porcupine, then Kirkland Lake, and then came Noah to northern Ontario, contiguous with the T. & N.O.R.Y. territory.

Interesting details of the process used in reducing the silver ores of Cobalt, and Deloro were given by Mr. Elliott, who showed specimens of the ore from the time in which it reached the smelter, and the finished article in miniature gaps of solid silver. White as genie, "spice" and Sicelite an exceptionally hard white metal for "type baby" as Mr. Elliott said, born out of the western conditions during the war, a very hard metal used for tools and other purposes requiring an exceptionally hard surface.

Prevention of accidents in the mine, the speaker said, is briefly referred to by the speaker who related the steps which led up to the present very high standard of this plant in the absence of accidents to employees and the system used. No accidents resulting in injury and loss of working time have occurred in the plant this year.

Hearty appreciation of Mr. Elliott's very interesting and instructive address was voiced by Fred H. Deacon, and President Ed. Bernstein.

WELL KNOWN TRANSPORTATION MAN COMES TO BELLEVILLE

John Pridmore of Pridmore's Eastern Express Joins Local Business Community

Just as the automobile industry today has to take into consideration the time when their machines are a back number and adopt new methods and designs, so today what was perfect two or three years ago in Dry Cleaning machinery is today out of date. Hence in the installing of a new Dry Cleaning plant in Belleville, operating under the name of "SPRAGUE'S", care was taken to get the very latest machinery devised for the Dry Cleaning business and control of the scientific methods of cleaning clothing as efficiently as possible and without injuring the most delicate fabric.

In addition to this there is the PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE of Mr. Sprague in years of clothes cleaning, and of fabrics stained that can only be treated successfully by a knowledge of the reaction of chemicals on dirt of whatever kind, be having kept step with the times in any new discovery that has brought this line of industry of the years to the front.

With the retaining of MISS MICKE, who has been with Mr. Sprague for a number of years in her capacity of cashier at the desk in the office, and receiving orders, with advice and information and "BILL" McFEE, faithful and conscientious delivery and general utility man—there comes into this reorganizing plan Mr. PRIDMORE, whose ability was evidenced as Advertising Agent and Transportation Man for the "Princess Eastern Express", becoming financially interested, makes this a very hopeful combination for an entirely new outlook and management in the Cleaning and Dying business in Belleville.—Advt.

Resources Mobilized to Aid Storm Stricken and Flooded City of Tampico

RELIEF TRAINS

Parts of City Not Wiped Out by Gale Are Under Water

BY CLARK G. LEE

Mexico, D.F., Sept. 26 (AP) — Mexico's resources were mobilized today to aid the storm-stricken and flooded city of Tampico, where estimates place the number of dead or injured as high as 5,000 and thousands were homeless. Enormous property damage was reported.

Two relief trains carrying battalions of infantrymen to aid in reconstruction work and food and medical supplies, left this capital for the oil port of East Central Mexico.

But parts of the city were under 14 feet of water and railroad tracks in the area were flooded or washed away, so it was problematical when the trains would reach there. Hundreds of military aeroplanes was ordered to leave at once. Meanwhile, Tampico was virtually isolated from the outside world, alone with its scenes of death and destruction.

Although more than two days have passed since the hurricane struck here with all its fury, the city was without communication facilities except by messenger boy. Ships lie in the harbor. Officials reported the damage is enormous.

Three-Quarters Destroyed

General Edouard Vasconcelos, secretary of the Interior, who planned to fly to Tampico to direct relief measures, the number of dead "can not be stated exactly" but the million dollar city was destroyed, advised by wireless that three-fourths of Tampico was destroyed with many casualties.

Unofficial reports set the death toll at 5,000 and 6,000. Reports sent by roundabout means said the wind was 150 miles an hour when it struck the civil Hospital, railroad station, and customs house and that many were buried alive in the ruins; flood waters of the Panuco and Tamesi rivers inundated their terrors to those of the hurricane.

Tampico was placed under martial law. Its harbor was closed to shipping. Not a train, automobile or plane got through to its flooded airport, it was believed days might elapse before relief reached the stricken city.

In the entire Tampico district, as far west as 175 miles, the storm spread death and destruction. The Civil Code Bureau, in the capital, reported that at least 30 drowned in the wreck of the collapse of a railroad train.

It was feared that many more of the bodies would be lost in water and mud which swept the city, destroying many homes.

Two Trains Covered

Two trains were reported to have been completely covered by water between Tampico and Ciudad Victoria. Railway officials estimated that damage to their flooded or storm damaged property amounted to $1,000,000 or more.

Communications with Ciudad Victoria, northwest of Tampico, were broken.

It was believed damage might be heavy there, too. Crops suffered throughout the northeastern and central parts of the country where torrential rains fell until last midnight.

Heavy damage was done in the oil fields. A number of refineries and other buildings were completely ripped out.

An employee of the National Observatory reported by wireless to headquarters here that a majority of families in Tampico were without shelter.

Throughout the rest of Mexico heavy losses were reported because of continuing rains. In the south, railroad traffic with Guatemala, was interrupted when a bridge was washed away. Rivers in the state of Chiapas and Oaxaca were near flood levels. "As far west as the Pacific coast the effects of the storm were felt.

Tremendous Catastrophe

Recent figure put Tampico's population at 100,000. It is in the state of Tamaulipas and, located in a rich and semi-tropical district, is considered the most important port in Mexico.

It is on the Gulf of Mexico.

Its poorer districts are only two or three feet above the river, but the better residence area is about 150 feet above the stream. It has had a rapid growth recently because of oil resources.

Estimates of the death toll were made in the Interior department. A direct report from the military chief, General Anselmo Macia, said the storm caused a "tremendous catastrophe."

More than three-quarters of Tampico completely destroyed," General Macia reported. "Solid and wooden houses of all kinds were wrecked. Many dead and injured. Forces under my command are according aid to an enormous number of people who are asking help. For the safety of the city I have declared martial law."

Vasconcelos issued this statement: "Official information from Tampico says the cyclone caused enormous damage, reaching almost that of a disaster both in the number of dead and injured, which presently cannot be stated exactly. The material damage also is incalculable."

Refer to Ickes

President Rodriguez, who is on vacation in Tehuacan, appealed to the Mexicans to send monetary contributions for relief.

A message from Charles Drayton, an airplane pilot, said Tampico authorities, overwhelmed by the disaster, were appealing to Washington to refer to Secretary Ickes, relief director, for aid.

(September hurricanes have in recent years caused thousands of deaths. Among them were: Florida, 1926, 400 dead; Porto Rico, 1928, 920 dead; Florida, 1928, 1,100; Santo Domingo, 1930, 2,000; British Honduras, 1931, 1,300; Cuba, 1933, 300 dead.)

NO ELECTION THIS YEAR

Premier Claims Election Now Would Halt Recovery

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)—There will be no Ontario election this year! From his desk at the Provincial Monday evening Premier George S. Henry made the positive statement which sets at rest all rumors of Provincial political combat ere the year ends.

An election at this juncture, he claims, would retard recovery, which the Premier sees already at work in various commercial avenues, and he says he finds no justification whatever for an immediate appeal to the electorate.

This means that Ontario will have a lull in the political storms which have been raging since the Ontario hustings, precipitated by Ontario Liberal Leader Sidney Earle Hennessy, M.P., and Hon. Harry C. Nixon.

The last legislature is a sure "election session" and that, with an election probable in the summer or early fall months of 1934, the Province is in for a long season of vehement political controversy.

May be Double Vote

The definite postponement of the Provincial election until 1934 has added additional significance to legislation—that it may mean a double election in 1934, the usual Provincial election in mid-summer and a Federal election in the fall, dividing of interest of Parliamentarians visiting Toronto lately have commented upon the possibility of a "1934 being a dual election year.

When Premier Henry speaks to the Provincial electors, probably soon after the Legislature rises in early summer, his government, it is declared, will have adopted amendments to the Liquor Act eliminating the restrictions on sales of beer particularly, and probably also wine. Former Premier Ferguson anticipates such likelihood in what may have been a semi-official intimation. And the party as a whole deems it to be a political advisable step.

POLICE COURT

Charged with vagrancy John Thompson and Thomas Werden, transients, were remanded for one week, when arraigned before Magistrate Mikel in Tuesday morning's police court.

It is alleged by the police, that Thompson and Werden have been sleeping in empty box cars around the local railway termina's for the past week. They are accused of "pan handling" on the streets and numerous complaints relative to their actions, terminated in their arrest. One long inebriate paid a $10 and $2.50 fine for intoxication at the L.C.A.

Early Monday evening, the police answered a call to 206 Coleman St., where it was alleged that two small boys had broken a window pane. The officer soon apprehended the youthful culprits and trusted they will be made by the parents of the boys.

Following information the department investigated a complaint registered from the Armouries on Monday night. It was found that the tires of bicycles were being cut by mischievous lads, while the owners of the cycles were attending military training. The matter will be thoroughly investigated by the police. Three bicycle tires were slashed and cut until they were rendered useless on Monday night. If those responsible are apprehended a severe punishment will follow.

The police were called to the vicinity of the Bells Theatre last evening where a gang of mischievous lads were causing an uncalled for disturbance. Complaints of the lads were taken by the officer and a warning issued relative to the discontinuation of such practices

MURDER SPURS GA MBLING SHIP WAR

SUBMIT PURCHASE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

Council Agrees to Submit Purchase of Rink by City at Municipal Election

Also Votes to Remit Taxes For Privileges if Run by Company

RELIEF LAID OVER

Special Meeting Will Deal With Question Immediately

Authorization of a special meeting after a committee appointed prepares plans for relief projects, the placing or the purchase of the Belleville Arena before the property owners at the next municipal election and referring back a motion to the special committee on bylaw being prepared authorizing the building of the esplanade to be placed before qualified property owners at the next municipal election, were the major items of business transacted by the City Council at their first session of the fall term which was held in the City Council Chamber on Monday night. Mayor Tice, Aldermen Woodley, McCreary, Donaldson, Bennett, Pyke, Brickman, Inniah, Harker, Safa, Hill and Marshall were in attendance.

The principal item on the special committee composed of Aldermen Donahue, McCreary, Woodley, Bennett, the City Engineer and Chairman of Labor Advisory Board to submit to a special meeting called by the Mayor plans and estimate for various works in the city to be undertaken for relief work mitigated to a considerable degree discussion on the subject. It is the intention of the committee to meet as soon as possible and discuss the matter of various works and these will be submitted to the council immediately following at which time a decision will be made and work will be undertaken relief purposes. It is the intention of the council to provide work for those in relief and the work to start in the very near future.

Give Chance to Vote

There was no discussion when the recommendation, "That a resolution to fix taxes and water rates for the current year to the Belleville Arena Company Ltd. be made on condition that the said company operate the rink for the coming season and that the open air rinks be abandoned for this season on condition that the Arena Company give the city an option on the said property," and it passed unanimously every member of the council supporting the recommendation. Under the heading of motion notice of four bylaws were given and the motion "That the question of the city taking over the property of the Belleville Arena Company Ltd. be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors" was on such matters at the forthcoming municipal election was carried without a dissenting voice. The council seeming agreed that it would be a calamity for the rink to be closed and deprive the younger generation for a season of the pleasure it is understood the question was thoroughly discussed in the council room and all were agreed that the property owners of the city should share in the matter.

Appointment Made

W. Morris was appointed caretaker at St. Agnes Manor at a salary of $50. a month and free living quarters. The Belleville Labor Association was granted the free use of the Collegiate auditorium on Wednesday night next for a meeting of that organization, according to a request from the executive of the Labor Association informing the council that the majority of the labouring men in the city favored the Zwicks Island carnival and complimenting the council on their effort to provide work for the unemployed and that they would have a committee to work out their relief money. A letter was filed from the Wrigley Company, thanking the Mayor and Council for their co-operation in giving the five hundred children a chance to view the C.N.E. for the first time.

A letter was read from the Hydro Commission of Belleville requesting the amount of surplus that would be credited to the city's account. There was a deficit in the waterworks department, but a surplus in the street lighting department. Alderman McCreary asked the question: "Could the water-works department have utilized the deficit in pumping power during the season?" The question was answered and Alderman Bennett stated he had been in charge of the street lighting section and asked that the letter be referred back to the committee to be done. The council was assured by the City Engineer that the tracks on Pinnacle Street would be replaced in 1934, according to correspondence read at the council meeting at which time a decision will be made and work will be undertaken. Study formed. It is the intention of the council to provide work for those in relief and the work to start in the very near future.

August giving the names of such persons as the monthly sums be paid to each was passed without discussion.

Under the heading of enquiries, Alderman Safa asked the chairman of Waterworks, "If men were hired during the summer months to watch the illegal use of waters" Alderman Bennett answered in the affirmative.

Traffic Question Acute

Before the council concluded its session, Ald. McCreary voiced his disapproval of the esplanade but not reminded the council that something had to be done to provide for the ever growing traffic on Front Street. "It is not a laughing matter," stated Alderman Safa "but a question that must be dealt with in the near future."

Ald. Woodley said that some merchants on the west side of Front Street had provided excellent parking space behind their stores, but visiting these places at the height of traffic one could find only a dozen or so cars, where two hundred might be parked. The alderman was in favor of passing a resolution to have the parking space believed it would meet with the approval of the merchants.

Ald. DuDonahue spoke of the old days when men came to the city with a horse and buggy and constructed their two bits to place the streets in shape, but today the streets are lined with cars and the whole place is staggered. "It is a dark site healthier," said the Alderman, "if a few more would walk to work and leave the family car at home."

Mayor Tice after calling for adjournment stated that rumors were about town that he had obligated the council for the sum of $150.00 for plans of Zwick's Island project. Mayor Tice said he would like to say Worship. "I visited the island with a landscape man and members of the Island Committee are featuring this plan for relief work and also viewing the situation, asked what it would cost and was told $150.00 would be required for it. Thinking that the scheme might be considered along with other projects, I took the artist to prepare the plans and the Kiwanis Club informed me that they also would bear the expense. I believe this landscape man knows his business and the plans would not come amiss. If the council decides to go ahead paying the bill when it is presented, it will likely be taken care of from other sources. The matter is referred to the action of the Mayor, admitting that I am responsible for the amount and that the bill would be taken care of when presented to council.

MAY CUT SERVICE TO ONE TRIP DAILY

Decreased Patronage Prompts The Move

There is some likelihood that the Belleville-Picton bus service will shortly be reduced to one round trip daily. Mr. Frank Smith who has operated the line for many years is considering this move.

Mr. Smith states that the fall patronage of the service has been noticeably less than that of previous years and the good people of Picton and vicinity have been meeting friends in the city of Belleville. Belleville with their own cars, in increasing numbers.

Mr. Smith thinks that if restrictions were placed on the bus service, additional patronage is necessary to keep two trips daily in operation.

FARM WORK ON THE UPTREND DURING YEAR

Number of Men Placed in District at Fair Wage

Offerings of farm work in the district have shown an upturn during the present season, with more jobs available this year than in the same period last month. To date a large number of applicants for farm work have been placed by the local office of the Employment Service of Canada with indications that more men will be able to find a berth for the winter at this work. Prevailing wages being paid single men range from twelve to fifteen dollars per month with an average of twenty dollars per month in some cases being offered willing workers.

UNEMPLOYED HARVEST GOOD CROP OF PRODUCE

Reset by Drought, Theft and Other Agencies All Summer

Unemployed of the city who have been unsuccessful during the hot summer in an attempt to raise sufficient garden produce to tide themselves and families over the winter, in spite of drought, theft and other discouraging handicaps, will be able to harvest a creditable crop in the majority of cases. While there will be disappointments in a credit to their owners, several of them have been so successful that the relief officials feel they have served as a model for even experienced gardeners.

Street Oiling Report by City Engineer

Belleville, Sept. 21st, 1933

His Worship Mayor Tice and Aldermen of the City Council.

Gentlemen:—

Re: Street Oiling

I beg to submit herewith a report on the comparative costs of street oiling under the former plan of contract work and the present system of using local labour and our own equipment.

The total cost of our street oiling equipment is as follows:

Rae Sales Corporation.

Toronto	$1,300.00
Waterous Ltd., Brantford	2,400.00
Fruit Machinery Co., Belleville	106.72
Total	$3,776.72

By placing this expenditure on a 5 year debenture at 5 1-4% the total costs amount to $4,371.32, to be charged to street oiling as follows:

Term	Prin.	Int.	Total
1st year	755.30	198.27	953.57
2nd year	755.30	158.61	913.91
3rd year	755.30	118.96	874.26
4th year	755.30	79.31	834.61
5th year	755.30	39.65	794.95
Total	3776.53	594.80	4371.32

Three different grades of material were used for oiling the streets this year, namely Imperial liquid asphalt, Bitumuls and tar. In manufacturing liquid material for street oiling the manufacturer after refining the raw material has to add a suitable liquid material to act as a carrier agent and is termed as a cut-back. In the process of manufacturing asphalt cut-back with coal oil are used as a cutback, in Bitumuls water is used and in tar "naptha' is used. These cut-backs either help the heavy material to penetrate into the road bed for consolidation work, or evaporate from the heavy material after the oiling coating only is required on the street. We purchased the following tar for the following results were obtained:

The difference of three cents per gallon between Liquid Asphalt and 10 1-3c per gallon, Bitumuls at 11c per gallon and Tar at 14.5c per gallon shows the following costs:

Liquid Asphalt costs 7.76 cents per sq. yd.

Bitumuls costs 8.86 cents per sq. yd.

Tar costs 6.08 cents per sq. yd.

The liquid asphalt was used on new roadways where penetration work was required, while Bitumuls and Tar were applied on both new and old roadways where the foundation material will be more indicative next year after the first year's season has passed.

The covering consisted of 1000 tons of washed pea gravel and was applied at a cost of $1.00 per ton. Approximately 4 yards of covering cover on Asphalt material but we obtained better results on Bitumuls and Tar by leaving the sand off.

We rented four large 5 ton dump trucks for spreading the stone cover and two light trucks for spreading sand. These rental charges amounted to $682.75. If the Public Works Department owned these trucks for general work a fair saving could be made on street oiling by using these trucks for that purpose.

The costs of operating the street oiler amounted to $178.52, the gravel screening $445.20 and the heating of material $97.78. This shows that the total cost of application of liquid material was $230.60 for 30,758 imperial gallons or approximately 1½c per gallon.

Supplying and applying Cold Patch	265.66
30,758 gallons liquid material	2,534.05
Stone ..... for cover	1,742.58
Sand for cover	205.27
Sweeping expenses	37.50
Heating material	97.78
Operation of oiler	178.52
Office work and management and misc.	314.71
Labour on covering material	964.35
Labour on stock piling material	137.80
Tools	4.90
Engineering supervision and Interest	186.63
Total costs	$6,869.90
1st year's payment on oiling equipment	953.57
Grand Total	$7,823.47

During the year 1933 approximately 53,000 gallons of liquid material and stone and sand cover was applied to the streets at a cost of $19,154.31, the work being carried out by contract. In 1933, 30,758 gals. of liquid material with the same cover was applied at a cost of $6,869.90. Our system shows a saving of 4 cents per gallon or approximately $20,320.28 in the application of 30,758 gals. of material. If we had owned our equipment last year the City would have saved approximately $20,320.28 in the application of the same as the $5,000 which we assessed as the City's share. If the assessment would be $6,869.90 the expenditure of $6,853.90 the rate would be $1c per gallon. Interest would have to be charged into this account as this year's payment on purchase price of our equipment. Therefore we are unable to reduce our assessment for oiling any more than the profromises as specified by by-law.

I might say that slight difficulties were encountered by our workmen in handling our equipment due to the fact that we had never had much experience in this kind of work. However, I am pleased to state that our operating costs will be considerably less next year, now that we are familiar with our equipment. Ald. Woodley was the instructor as an oiler I might suggest that street flushing could be carried out with this machine in the early morning hours. Justments; also a snow plow could be designed for attachment to the winter time as the required weight and power is sufficient in this equipment for such work.

I feel confident that the City Engineer's Office has made considerable saving by purchasing this equipment in the future use.

Yours respectfully,

Chas. A. Holt,

City Engineer.

A.L.I. OUT ON DRESS PARADE

Training Season For The Season Auspiciously Opened

The first dress parade of the Argyll Light Infantry for the district was held in an upturned in the Armouries, Monday evening; was also LL.-Col. E. A. Geen's first parade of the battalion since he assumed command over the latter part of March last. The unit made a most creditable showing for their first drill; it turned out in full strength allowable this year, an unusual occurrence for the first night of parade, and augurs well for the morale of the Argylls for the present training season. Some 60 officers and 150 other ranks were on parade Monday night.

The battalion formed in twelve pipers and drummers in attendance, and Sergt. Harry Penn had twenty-five members of the Argyll Band in their initial appearance for the season. Sergt. Penn can be worked assiduously in building up this unit of musicians, during his time and labor are fast showing results. The signalling section had their initial parade and the companies averaged twenty-five other ranks each. The parade was carried through throughout and to the new officers and recruits it must have been a satisfaction and inspirito carry through his difficult office.

Officers

With the promotion of Major E. A. Geen to Lt.-Colonelcy and command of the battalion left vacant by the retirement of Lt.-Col. R. O. Keeler, M.C., to the command of the 1st. Reserve battalion of the regiment, several changes and promotions in command have taken place. Major A. B. Gribbin has been promoted 2nd. in command; Capt. J. W. Howard has taken over the duties of adjutant, Lieut. Ormond Schuyler-Smith as his assistant. Capt. A. S. Bell, M.C., has been appointed this last year becomes Paymaster of the unit. Major Guy Bennett, M.C., bar, is company commander of A. company, Vice-Major A. H. Gribbin of B. company, Lieut. R. M. P. Alford and Major H. M. Jones still remain in command of "C" and "D" respectively while Capt. J. F. Lochhead is Quartermaster and Lieut. Mahon, the Rev. A. Beaumbamp Donaldson, Lieut. D. M. Davison has assumed musketry instructorship during the absence of Lieut. Kenneth Grills has become signalling officer.

Controlled
from sands to car!

The average motorist must buy gasoline on faith. A trade mark is his guarantee. The day of dealing with an unknown brand is past . . . and the motor car is become so essential a part of life that the refiner has a public obligation to fulfill!

Because thousands upon thousands have faith in the name British-American, we have made tremendous investments to assure that B.A. products will be always highest quality, uniform, safe, economical . . .

Wells in the richest producing areas, pipe lines and ships to transport the crude, the most technically efficient refineries in the Dominion, unceasing laboratory control . . . B.A. quality is guarded and controlled from oil sands to motor car!

We feel that the steadily increasing public confidence in B.A. products is itself evidence of how well we have met our obligation.

NEW RACKET ON FISHERMAN

Steal Fish From Small Boys Under Dire Threats

A gang of chiselers, with a self-styled "tough egg" at their head, have muscled into a new racket, played with considerable success by the gang during the past few evenings, but with a lot of annoyance and trouble to their victims. The racket is to rob fish from youthful anglers who have spent hours of patient labor with their fish poles in the vicinity of the Bay Bridge, and to be robbed of their catch by the hoodlums.

The gang, composed of youths, time the arrival of the fishermen, who drop their dines from the Bay Bridge piers, evenings. When sufficient time has elapsed to make sure of a catch, the youths return and without preliminaries, take possession of the fish. If the victim puts up a defence, his pole is thrown into the water, or broken. If still obstinate with the high handed methods, he himself, is thrown into the water.

Invariably the parting warning delivered by the leader of the gang of five or more is: "Im a tough egg and if you squawk about this it'll be just too bad for you."

It is believed the youthful racketeers peddle the fish from door to door in the city.

LEAVES SHOULD NOT BE RAKED FROM LAWN

Provide Excellent Fertilizer for the Growing Grass

The annual fall warning against the practice of burning raked up piles of leaves and seasonal rubbish on the asphaltic roads in the city was issued today by the head of the city engineer's today. Under a by-law passed by city council last year, the burning of any material on that type of road is punishable by fine.

Expert gardeners of the city offer a solution to the disposal of unwanted leaves by the garbage wagon route. "Leave the leaves on the lawn," they advise. "Rake them into a thick blanket and rake it to afford the lawn protection from the frost of the winter, and to assure the growth of the new grass next spring. It's a valuable fertilizer."

BIRTH PANGS OF SLANG

People ask where slang comes from.

Perhaps the best authority is Gelett Burgess, who has invented a few, such as 'goup,' 'bromide', 'blurb' and 'varm.'

He credits the first with "highbrow"; the opposite must have followed naturally.

Many vaudeville performers invent new slang in cold blood, he says. "Hot chacha" is associated with Jimmie Durante. "A sedate college professor could read Variety all through and not understand half its merry talk," he writes in the New York American.

He distinguishes two kinds:

"One sort is metaphorical, and merely twists a well-known word like 'flop' or an old phrase like 'up against it' into a new meaning. It may even defy analysis like 'I should worry' or 'can't we get fun?' The other sort of slang is neologistic; it concocts absolutely new words to enrich the language."

Then Mr. Burgess sweeps around a wide circle:

"The Elizabethan dramatists reveled in such creations. What could be more expressive of a sneaky rogue than the word scroyle or dabchick—what we call a flapper?

"The most famous of modern word coiners was Lewis Carroll. But, despite the immortal popularity of his 'Jabberwocky' poem and the felicity of his jabulous and slithy and mimsy, of all the words he made up only galumph and chortle have really survived.

"That's one queer thing about slang. Every Paris dressmaker, you know, presents, every season, some dozen or so new gowns. But of them all only one or two models ever achieve a vogue. It's the same way with slang. Some few words catch on and gain a permanent place in the language, like the old 'chestnut,' which has never been replaced, and 'tightwad.' These nouns are perpetual, like 'peach' in 'a pippin,' or 'goof' to 'make a goof.' But the many synonymous changes that have been run on the word 'tipsy'—'soused,' 'spiffed', 'pie-eyed,' etc., are some every year.

"But most appear utterly, like the skeddaddle of the Civil War and that inimitable word 'dude,' gone with the tight trousers and high collars!

"What is the slang of yesterday?" might be the refrain of a good Villonesque ballade. What does the present generation know of 'rah-rah' and 'tony' and 'spooning'? Wallace Irwin once wrote the 'Love Sonnets of a Hoodlum,' but it would need a lexicon ever to decipher it. I doubt if ten years from now 'sweet sixteen' will even understand what a 'bootlegger' was.

"The choice of slang is a great deal to do with the coining of striking words. Comparatively little-used letters give novelty to any such inventions. Note such words as 'jazz,' 'kibitzer,' 'kaboodle,' 'vamp' and 'nix.'"

MILLIONS OF ROAD ACCIDENTS

Common as accidents are it is somewhat startling to learn from the report of the National Safety Council that the number of fatal accidents in the United States last year was 88,000 and the number of persons injured 3,000,000. Of the dead, close on 30,000 were due to automobiles, although that is about 4,000 fewer than the previous year.

Analyzing these accidents it is found that about 44 per cent. of all traffic accident fatalities involved pedestrians. Over 2 per cent. of the fatal accidents reported, the driver had been drinking, in less than one per cent. poor eyesight or other physical defects were noted. In other words, about 95 per cent. of the drivers had not apparent physical or mental defect. These facts are significant. By this highly significant sentence. "About 20 per cent. of the highway deaths occurred last year on dry roads and in clear weather." There is just one deduction to be made from all this. - The big factor in traffic accidents is carelessness of one sort or another.—St. Thomas Times Journal.

FIGHTING LOCUSTS IN ARGENTINA

The battle against insect pests is worldwide, and annually becomes more intense. New evidence of this comes from Argentina where the United Press reports more than 1,800 miles of barriers are to be built across the pampas to halt an invasion of locusts during the spring season, which will soon arrive there.

Squads of locust fighters are to be organized by the Government along the entire line to push extermination of the pests in the northern provinces. The barriers will consist of sheets of zinc eighteen inches high in front of which will be ditches deep enough to trap the insects.

A CHILD OF LIGHT

She was a child of light, and so -
When down dark ways
Her quick-time dancing feet must tread
Along doubt's maze,
She found no shrouding blackness there;
No walls of night,
Impalpable, around her rose
With shadowing blight.

But, ever as she journeyed on
Strange paths, obscure,
Light still was her glad heritage,
Her steps were sure.
For gleam on gleam of golden flame
Lit all her road;
The candles of her shining thoughts
About her glowed.

CHANGES WROUGHT IN TURKEY

As Turkey prepares to celebrate its tenth anniversary as a republic in the coming October, it becomes interesting to note the transformation wrought in the country by Mustafa Kemal Pasha, sometimes called Turkey's "George Washington."

To be sure, not every one likes the changes. Only a few months ago there was an uprising of religious reactionaries at Bruza. Here and there a Turk persists in twisting his cap into at least a vague resemblance to the old-styled fez. In Constantinople there is great poverty, and the population has shrunk to about 750,000. At Smyrna the situation is much the same. But by Mustafa Kemal Pasha, sometimes called Turkey's "George Washington."

At Smyrna the situation is much the same. But the Turks applaud Kemalism:

"The women in the towns are delighted at having gained their liberty. Turkish women also welcome the abolition of polygamy and the enactment of equitable divorce laws.

"The introduction of a new alphabet derived from Latin characters has caused education to spread by leaps and bounds. The railways the Kemalists have spent lavishly. In a few years Turkey in Asia will have a network linking the Asian shore with the Black Sea, the Aegean, the Eastern Gulf and Constantinople."

TO SKATE OR NOT TO SKATE this winter—that is the question. Whether it is nobler to lose the sum of fourteen thousand dollars duly paid for an artificial ice plant and let some other progressive community get the benefit, or to invest twelve thousand still due—or whether it were better to dig down in our jeans, individually, or collectively, and keep this fine home of exercise and entertainment for the young folks of Belleville. Who'll be the first to give one thousand dollars toward the retention of this civic asset? We're listening!

GOLD, SILVER, IRON and other minerals are found around and mined in Hastings County, contributing to a mining history varied and interesting. Deloro, situated about the centre of the county, came into prominence in connection with gold mining activity, and work was actively prosecuted there until it was seen that the farther down the workings went the poorer became the gold recoveries, so the mine was flooded and abandoned. The mill erected for crushing and separating the ore remained on the property and was put to good use later treating Cobalt ores which had before this been smelted in New York. It is interesting to note that one hundred and twenty-one million ounces of silver has been removed from ores shipped to Deloro from the Cobalt mining camp—a fine contribution to the mining industry of Canada by a local concern especially when it is understood that Cobalt ores are not at all easy to reduce. The Deloro Smelting and Refining Co., Limited, is excellently officered and has an exceptionally efficient technical staff which accounts for the long and successful operation of the company under all kind of conditions.

READY ABROAD FOR REPEAL

England's £10,000,000 whisky combine, the Distillers Company, Ltd., is booking enormous American orders, and the other day an initial contract for 100,000 cases was signed, with arrangements for shipping 50,000 subsequent cases each month. The Laborite London Daily Herald tells us that more than 120,000,000 gallons of whisky are stored in Scotland, and it is estimated that the bulk of this will be sent to the United States. Then this newspaper adds, has been preparing for "the great wine rush." Thousands of liters of different vintages are already held at disposal of American firms.

EPILEPSY NOT HOPELESSLY LOOKED UPON

Every Case Considered a Separate Problem Today

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

Time was when epilepsy was considered a hopelessly incurable disorder and, aside from giving the patient a bromide prescription and telling him to stick to a salt-free diet, practically nothing was done.

Nowadays, however, the medical profession has changed its attitude toward epilepsy—particularly is this true of the nerve specialists— and every case is considered an individual problem. Accordingly it is often approached from a novel point of view.

That in many cases a disturbance of the "endocrine glands" is to blame is undoubtedly true. It may be the pituitary gland in the head that is at fault or the thyroid in the neck, or the adrenals which are situated on the top of the kidneys. An overexcitation or underactivity of one gland throws the whole gland system out of balance. Therefore the treatment with glandular extracts a thorough study of the entire gland structure as a whole and the feeding of several glands in amounts that vary as treatment proceeds.

In all cases, also, the "mental side" must be taken into account. Not only are all epileptics different from other folks so far as their personality make-up is concerned but repressions of various kinds, together with maladjustments in the sex sphere, are often the most causative relationships to the convulsive seizures themselves.

In other words epilepsy is not merely treated symptomatically these days but a sincere attempt is made to find the cause or causes and to remove them.

It is generally held that the convulsion of epilepsy, as well as the unconsciousness that is characteristic of the disease, are merely attempts on the part of the body and mind to right themselves and exactly what brings the seizure on is resulting to a state of "disintegration" is what interests the modern scientist rather than the attack itself.

In order to improve or cure an epileptic disorder the earlier in the course of the disease treatment is undertaken the better.

Frequent and rather regular epileptic spells, of course, should always be held under subjection, and if the case be one in a child hope should never be entertained that the disease will "outgrow" or automatically effect a cure.

Treatment should, however, be continued even in cases of long standing. Being a chronic disorder, epilepsy runs a chronic course. The tendency is for the convulsions to become more frequent and severe, and sometimes much can be done through proper treatment. Dr. Hermann Bucher, Brooklyn physician, has always been given to the prevention of mental deterioration.

The layman should be careful, about trying out every new treatment that is heralded as a cure. Self-treatment of any kind is always to be deplored. If medical experts finds epilepsy and a dietary cult problem surely it is unwise for the untrained person to experiment.

What every epileptic needs above all else is hope. Every effort will be made to feel that some day he will get well. This will help him to adjust his life, despite his handicaps, while at the same time it may even benefit his disorder.

Dr. Brisch's Daily Diet Hint

It is extremely unwise for a mother to cut down the daily allowance of milk given a growing child even if the child dislikes it. The nitrogen in milk is the best source for cell growth in the tissues, its calcium, phosphorus and iron are essential for bone and tooth growth with but comparatively few exceptions milk is an excellent food. For those who cannot digest the fat in milk is obtainable from skim milk. If diluted condensed milk, may be used.

THE ANGLICAN BOOK OF PRAYER

ON THIS DATE, in 1908 the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, in session at Toronto, adopted the new hymnal, the bishops, clergy and laity joining in the hymn that lovely hymn by Bishop Heber, "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty!" as the first hymn in the new book. The compilation of the hymnal had taken three years. The work originated in the passage of a resolution at the General Synod at Quebec in 1906, moved by James Edmund Jones of Toronto and seconded by the late Archdeacon Martin of Winnipeg, appointing a committee to prepare a hymn book that would be as representative as possible of all legitimate schools of thought and taste within the Church," which in itself was quite a task when one recalls the conflicting views that then continued rivalries and differences of past years.

Bishop Hamilton of Ottawa was the chairman of that committee. It has passed on to his record. Bishop Williams of Huron was His Grace's secretary. Many have passed, and Mr. Jones is the sole representative alive of the executive of that hymnal committee of a quarter of a century ago. And when he retires he will be the last of the band that did the time had come for a revision of the Book of Prayer, and the task was one with authority. There were those who argued that it were better to leave things alone, that a good book could not be improved, and that this was no time to enter into new expenses. But a majority would keep up to the times.

A. E. BOIVIN

Now on his way to Turkey, A. E. Boivin of Winnipeg carries with him a contract to build a 300-mile railway in that country for $6,000,000. The contract came through a friend of Mr. Champagne, formerly federal member for Battleford, now financial adviser to the Turkish government.

A new committee was brought up since the hymnal of 1908 was adopted, and they contend that if the book can be improving it should be improved, the more especially since Mr. Jones is willing to again act as the executive in a work which has taken up the very first things to bring unity among all schools in the church. The matter of expense is one which should not enter into the matter.

Some people argue that the purchase of a new hymn book would be a burden upon churchgoers, which is nonsense, for a churchman or woman who is not willing to pay for a new hymn book every 25 years cannot be very enthusiastic in its use. Anyway, as the House of Bishops has enforced delay it will be at least—five years, more before the amended hymnal can be considered by the General Synod, which will give ample time for the economists to save for the purchase of the new book, if it be published. And it must not be forgotten that the revenue from the sale of prayer books and hymnals is one of the chief supports of missionary work, so that any movement which will create a demand for the books will be a benefit financially to the church at large. Meanwhile the churches will continue to use the hymnal approved by the committee of 1906-08 and be thankful that it is not the shameful compilation of sacred song as that which is now 25 years old.

LINDBERGHS WELCOMED ON SIGHTSEEING TOUR

To Study Aviation in the Russian Capital

Moscow, Sept. 26 (AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh began a three-day round of sightseeing today, in which an inspection of Russian aviation schools was set for an important part.

Unique distinction in their honor as the Moscow opera last night indicated the extent to which the Red capital has taken the famous flying couple to its heart.

An unidentified man rose in a box during an intermission and shouted in Russian: "Hurrah for Lindbergh!" Thereupon the entire audience in the large theatre arose and applauded for several minutes.

Another incident occurred just after the Lindberghs had returned to their orchestra seats after being shown the treasures of the palaces.

The bowed smilingly as an interpreter whispered, to them the significance of the din.

Colonel Lindbergh, in outlining his plans, said he and Mrs. Lindbergh wanted to acquaint themselves with aviation developments here and also to see the Kremlin.

Pirates Hold Opportunity to Cinch Position But Lost to Cards

(By Orlo Robertson Associated Press Sports Writer).

The National League race is over as far as the pennant winning New York Giants are concerned, but the Pirates, Cubs and Cardinals are carrying a fight right down to the finish in their battle for second and third places in the final standing.

With only one game remaining on their schedule and that with Cincinnati on the final day of the season, Sunday, the Pirates hold an upper hand in the contest for second place. They can be ousted by Chicago, however, if the Cubs take their two final games with St. Louis and the Reds trim the Cornhurs.

The Cardinals, with no chance of finishing in the runner-up position, have their eyes on third place. Two victories over the Cubs will place them in that position and above the' 1932 league champions into fourth place.

Here is how the three teams stand:

	Won	Lost	Pct.	To Play
Pittsburgh	86	67	.562	1
Chicago	85	67	.559	2
St. Louis	83	69	.546	2

The Pirates lost a chance to cinch second place yesterday, when they dropped a 6-3 decision to the St. Louis in one of the two games played in that league. Tetzlaff, the Cardinals, with Bill Walker pitching effective ten-hit ball pounded Hal Smith, Larry French and Bill Swift for 14 hits. One of the blows was Joe Medwick's 28th home run of the season.

Brooklyn strengthened their hold on sixth place by defeating the Phillies 7-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Walter Beck. Glenn Wright, Hack Wilson and Babe Frey connected with three hits each.

HAS SERIES HOPE - - By Jack Sords

CURRENT SPORT

When the St. Thomas "Tom Cats" meet the Kingston Frontenacs in Kingston on Wednesday afternoon of the baseball year of Intermediate will get a glimpse of their first senior O.B.A.A. final since the days when those teams were in 1932. Doubtless to say the largest crowd of baseball fans ever to grace the Kingston Exhibition Park will be on hand to witness this tilt.

Following the defeat of the Frontenacs on Saturday considerable controversy relative to the possible pitching assignments' have been prevalent in and around the Central loop scene. As we see it, however, it is not a question or who should start but rather, who will be the hitting to manufacture the three needed runs to win the ball game for the Fenians?

Ordinarily speaking Jamieson pitched good enough ball to win the average senior O.B.A.A. ball game but his team mates fell down on the offensive end with the result Jamieson was credited with a loss. It is quite doubtful whether "Lefty" Weeks will be used by Manager Dean again on Wednesday as Vaughan has not met with considerable success on the St. Thomas hilltop of late. Vaughan is a right hander and knowing the Fenians as we do it is fair to say that the Daley-coached clan should make it "even Stephens" tomorrow, that is providing they force a right hander. If Weeks is thrown back at the Fenians well it should be a different baseball game, that will be long remembered in Kingston. In other words the Fenians have not proven themselves the hitters they boast of being when they face south-paws as they do against right handers. All-in-all it should be a day inside battle, however.

King football eagle its initial appearance on the Pens last Saturday, when the relative strength of the various teams was established as far as pre-season information is concerned. The surprise game of the day was the defeat of the Queen Beach at the hands of Warren Harper's Stevens Varsity outfit. The Argonauts experienced little trouble with St. Miches and proved themselves a tower of strength to meet the champion Hamilton Tigers in the Interprovincial Union in the senior O.R.F.U. the Sarnia Imperials which has been up as a tential champs.

Despite the fact, that the eastern Canadian football teams have allegedly imported an ever supply of American grid stars, prove neither the first western Canadian that Winnipeg, Regina and points west have produced their eastern rivals relative to American imports and has held football fans in at last complete wile their eastern competition.

On the other hand in this alleged "importation" of players there is a fair shake to the young Canadian chaps. In fact the Winnipeg Rugger league with high hopes of seeing how they fare against the Ontario's outstanding football teams" if this wholesale practice of bringing in players ceases, the day is not far off, when Canada will have a real inspiring gridiron ready to step into the shoes of those ready to retire. The same attention goes for hockey and baseball, where the smaller centres are continually importing outstanding players from the larger cities. Something has to be done in the way of sport in the smaller communities should a return to normalcy in the minds of the sport morgue. If they'd ever get there is open attention on the sport activities in the smaller centres and less on the gambling of "shamateurism" perhaps all concerned would benefit.

Although we have not heard any reports from the Cobourg club regarding their proposed bowling bouts to be staged there on the evening of Oct. 4th, we have been assured that it'll all-star bowling card. If these bouts are of the same calibre as those presented last season we well then the be in for a real night's entertainment.

After travelling for nearly two full days Jake Kennedy's Peterboro dieters were apparently too tired to play ball in Picton Friday evening and dropped the first intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-final to the "Diners" by the score of 9 to 6. The Orr Church did not make the trip as was pre-arranged and the "Warry" Phillips was called upon to do the hurling. But then after a 36 mile jaunt by motor no baseball team is ready for the plate and next Saturday's return game at Picton should see a much different result. The Peterboro and Picton clubs are due home this evening and will have an opportunity to real from recent defeats.

PUNT TYPES AGREED UPON

Three Classes With 4th Including All Other Types

Final agreement on type of construction for racing and classes of skiing punt, which will receive official sanction by officials of the club for next season's races was reached at the Bowling Athletic Club last evening only after considerable discussion.

Specifications which have been drawn up at present call for four classes of punt, with the possibility of a dinghy class added before next summer's races are held. "A" class limits length to 22 feet and under; "B" class to 18 feet and under; "C" class 14 feet and under, while "D" class will embrace all other punts not conforming with the rules of the three previous classes mentioned and will sail under a handicap.

Specifications governing construction for "A, B and C. classes call for a flat bottomed type, with "dead rise" sufficient for build. In these three classes punts must be square at the ends, and planked cross-wise on bottom.

There will be no limit to size or shape of sail, and no specifications have been made regarding rig.

Although at present both "snipe" and dinghy class boat will be included in "D" class, it is hoped to make a dinghy class later on, which will limit the length of the matchlet to 14 feet.

Following the discussion of specifications which were drawn up by the club's board of directors, boat builders who wish to enter their craft in the club races next season, in preparation for the race with Walter Patterson to H. Whalen, skipper of the Toronto boat who won the handsome trophy donated by Mrs. Patterson for the matched race with the Eagle, last week. In another month or so it is hoped the same two boats which will be term again within two weeks, another series of races will be held with Mr. Patterson for the winner. On Wednesday evening the Eagle last exhibition race of the season will be held off the Bay of Victoria Park in which all boat owners are asked to enter.

SERIES EVENED AS COLUMBUS WINS 8-4

Third Game Will be Played Under Electric Lights

Columbus, O., Sept. 26 (CP)—With the Little World Baseball series at one game each, Columbus Red Birds of the American Association and Buffalo Bisons of the International League will play the third game tonight under the electric lights.

Columbus won yesterday's tilt 8-4 in a slugfest that included a six inning stalemate between the Bisons had taken the first contest, 7-4.

A southpaw will face a right hander in tonight's game, Buffalo ace Ray Blades and Lefty Heise to the mound for the Birds and Columbus will send Ad Liska and Ben Cantwell to the firing line for the series. Liska drew the opening hurling assignment.

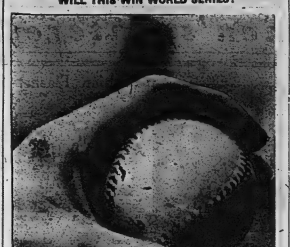
Bill Hallahan had been picked for yesterday's game but lowering clouds forced a change in plans. Heise was replaced by Winford-the Birds, and to Wilcox who was the choice of Manager Bisons.

The fourth inning proved decisive when Cullop and Rothrock each smacked a homer. Three singles and a double helped give Columbus five runs in that inning. After another eight game series the teams move to Buffalo to finish the series.

OTTAWA MONTNAGARDS SOFTBALL CHAMPIONS

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)—Ottawa Montnagards left Windsor today carrying with them the best softball in Eastern Ontario, after watching them eliminate Silverwoods in the semi-finals of the Ontario Western Softball league yesterday.

Two games were played before a decision was reached and it was not until the 10th innings of the second game, that Montnagards won the honors. The game was deadlocked, they fell upon the offerings of the tiring Lurline Palmer, Silverwood hurler, who had also pitched the first game, and when the side had been retired six runs had crossed the plate giving them the game.



Silverwoods won the first game yesterday 4 to 3, scoring two extra which started in Ottawa Saturday and resulted in a victory for the home team. The winners now meet Sudbury girls for the championship.

PICTON SHUT OUT BY FALCONBRIDGE

Sudbury, Sept. 26 (CP)—Falconbridge shut out Picton 5 to 0 at Falconbridge on Monday, in the first game of the O.R.A.A. intermediate semi-finals. Scores: For F'bridge for the Mickel Miners, let the victories down with one hit, while the winners gathered an even dozen for their quintette of runs. Ralph Canard and Bill Cummings of the Falls pitching stuck out eight Pictons.

The Falcons got into the runs in the second, another in the third and three in the seventh. Walmsley and Smith, of Copperclift, were umpires. The return game will be played in Picton next Saturday.

How Rival Teams Compare in Pending World's Series

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor).

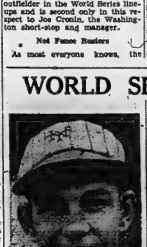
New York, Sept. 26 (AP)— Such shortcomings as the outfield of the Giants may have by comparison with the slugging picketmen of the Senators are substantially offset by the ability of young Melvin Thomas Ott, the Louisiana larruper, to break up the ball game.

In neither stature nor personality is the short chunky rightfield guardian of the Giants to be compared with his elderly predecessor Ross Youngs, Babe Ruth, Ruth. Ott will not strike the same terror, that the Bambino has handed the opposition on a number of celebrated occasions, yet the 24-year-old Giant cleanup hitter stands forth as the man most likely to dynamite the Washington pitching defense.

Measured by home run production, Ott is the only outright slugger in either championship lineup. This year he is well below his own high mark of 1929, when he collected 42 homers, but Ott is a "pull" hitter, who carries a distinct threat every time he gets to the plate. He has driven in more runs than any other outfielder in the World Series lineups and is second only in this respect to Joe Cronin, the Washington short-stop and manager.

Not Fence Busters

As most everyone knows, the Giants as a whole are not a fence-busting crew. The outer trio of the National League champions, with Ott in left field, George Davis in centre and Ott in right, compares with any group of ball-hawks but when more hitting is needed it will be necessary to summon "the man in the green suit," Frank (Lefty) O'Doul. Ott has driven in more runs than all the other Giants outfielders combined.



Every now plans to use the agile, hustling Moore against all kinds of pitching, thereby discarding his original idea of starting Homer Peel against southpaws. Moore has so consistently shown his ability to hit in the pinches, that he holds the left field job until further notice.

In contrast with the lighter- hitting Giant outfield, Washington will trot out three real clouters in Heinie Manush in left, Fred Schulte in centre, and Leon (Goose) Goslin in right. The Senators combination has 25-point advantage per man in the list of .322.

Manush and Goslin are former American League batting champions but the colorful "Goose" Goslin carries the slugging threat as did when he was batting up ball games for the Senators in 1924 and 1925.

Manush still ranks among the game's leading hitters, however. He has collected more hits than any player in the American League this year.

WORLD SERIES PREPAREDNESS

Mel Ott

MELVIN T. OTT—boy wonder when he joined the Giants as a recruit in 1925 is a veteran outfielder today. Though this is his ninth season with the New York team he is one of the youngest players—having been born in Gretna, La., March 2, 1909.

Mel has never played for any other professional team than the Giants. He came direct from the sandlots to the National league representative of the biggest city on the continent, a lad of 16.

He has been a pretty consistent batter and good fielding player.

Lefty Clark

WATSON WILLIAM CLARK, the southpaw pitcher who in late years has been a mainstay of the Giant deal which brought him from Brooklyn, was born in St. Joseph, La., May 16, 1904.

Jack began his career with the Peoria Ill., Three-I league team in 1924. Cleveland bought him the same season but released him to Terre Haute, Ind., also in the Three-I, in 1925.

Clark proved a winner for the Terriers and was purchased by the Brooklyns in 1927. He remained with the Dodgers until this year when he went to the Giants along with Lefty O'Doul in the Sam Leslie trade.

Clark bats left-handed, is six feet one-half inch tall, weighs 179 pounds.

Travis Jackson

TRAVIS CALVIN JACKSON, Giants star shortstop, is the most famous product of "Waldo, Ark., saving been born in that small community, Nov. 2, 1903.

Jack played ball for the Ouachita Baptist college, Arkadelphia, Ark., and played it so well that on graduating he was given a contract by the Little Rock, Ark., Southern league team.

The New York Giants bought him in 1922 and he has been with Gothamite since, playing steadily until 1926 when an injury forced him out of the lineup. He has just recently been installed as a regular, again.

Jackson is five feet 10 1-2 inches tall, weighs 157 pounds. He is a right-hander.

Spying on Sports

BABE RUTH'S decision to pitch for the New York Yankees in their final game of the season—against the Boston Red Sox on Oct. 1—causes sentimental baseball followers to toy with a tantalizing idea.

Suppose—just supposing— the old Bambino decided that he'd like to appear next season solely in the role in which he first won fame, that of pitcher?

This is nothing more than an idle dream, however. The Babe appreciates is too near the end of his string as a ball player in any capacity to visualize Ruth attempting seriously to fulfill the exacting role of pitcher for a pennant contending team.

But—win or lose, as a pitcher—the Babe would draw the crowds. He always does.

THERE ARE those who believe that Sunday, Oct. 1, will be the last day that Babe Ruth will appear as a Yankee regular.

If this is really so, then there could be nothing more fitting than his making the final appearance on the mound—especially against the team that introduced him to big league baseball, Boston.

Only sport writers, who constantly drive to and from ball parks, and those old fans who closely followed the careers of the Boston players during pre-war days remember that the Babe was once the champion pitcher of the American league.

There is little doubt that had the Babe stuck to his first love he would have proven one of the game's greatest southpaws. But he made not mistake in switching to the outfield—that made him baseball's greatest name.

HAD RUTH gone on trying to pitch and play the outfield, too, as he did for five seasons for the Red Sox he undoubtedly would have shortened his career. Throwing from the gardens would have done things to his pitching arm and his batting work may have within a few years made him less valuable as a fielder.

The Babe probably made the switch at the right time. He had proven to the satisfaction of all that he was one of the best hurlers in the game when, in 1918, he gave up mound work.

For his first several seasons with the Yankees the Babe alternated between first base and the outfield, but in 1920 he went to the garden for keeps. Since then his appearances at first, base on the mound have been so rare the record books have kept no track of them.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES By ALEX J. MORRISON

MOST PLAYERS HAVE CLOSED OR OPEN STANCE OR POSITION OF CLUBFACE BEFORE THEY START SWING

ALEX MORRISON says:

Nearly every golfer has experienced a break down in his game but score during a round when he had a chance to get a new low for himself.

Everyone should know just where he stands as every hole and there shouldn't be anything disturbing about a glance at the card but results prove that it takes very little to start a fellow to worrying about the scores he'll get on the holes yet to be played.

The seldom look at a score card.

They keep track of their scores by the number of strokes they take in relation to an average of fours or to the par for the course, but beyond that they try to keep their minds on how their swing is going.

It will pay every golfer to give more attention to his swing and less to the score card until the round is completed.

Belleville Presbyterial W. M. S. Meets Here

An executive meeting of Belleville Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society was held on Saturday, September 23rd in the parlors of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, with seventeen members present.

The President, Mrs. T. H. P. Anderson, of Bloomfield, presided over both sessions and passed on many valuable suggestions for the work of the Branch executive.

Mrs. F. L. Hooper took charge of the devotional period, using the hymn "Now the Sowing and the Reaping" and based her talk on the words, "And they that loved the Lord spoke often with one another." All present then offered sentence prayers for guidance in carrying on His work.

At this juncture the President welcomed the six new members to the meeting. The minutes of Presbyterial and Executive were read, also a report of the various items of correspondence and all this was adopted.

A letter from Rev. and Mrs. Hay, missionaries at Lovedale, Africa, was read and tribute paid to the wonderful work accomplished by the wives of the missionaries.

A large number of business items were brought before the executive by discussion. Letters were authorized to be sent to bereaved members.

Each secretary gave an optimistic report of her department, showing the enthusiasm of the women for the missionary cause.

It was moved that we as an executive and a Presbyterial work to increase our membership by five hundred during 1934.

Moved that we put consider other appeals for needy except what is coming through proper channels.

A resolution was handed down from the Branch as follows: Resolved that we, the members of the executive committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch in session at Belleville wish to express to you, Mr. Henry, our honourable leader, that we are unchanged in our attitude on the temperance question, and we pledge ourselves to use our franchise and other influence to oppose the plans of any form of Government Control, and especially at this time the sale of wine and beer by the glass.

Mrs. Hooper strongly urged that the women study the new department of World Peace.

Mrs. Fred Hendrick gave brief outlines of their work in the five sections and they are having their study this week with Dr. Margaret Forster of Honan as the special speaker.

Plans were made for the coming Presbyterial to be held next March at Napanee.

The devotion of our auxiliaries are urged to make the thank-offerings the "best ever" in view of the cancellation of funds.

The President gave a very uplifting talk on "The Kingdom of God Movement" and a central committee of the Presbyterial was formed in charge of the President and Vice-Presidents. As women, a personal contribution to God is what we ourselves are.

The members in attendance were: Mrs. T.H.P. Anderson, Newburgh; Mrs. F. L. Defoe and Mrs. H. Bailey of Madoc; Mrs. F. L. Hooper, Mrs. Geo. Switzer, Mrs. K. J. Corkill and Mrs. D. B. Wilson of Napanee; Mrs. Haggerty, Cherry Valley; Mrs. M. E. Knox and Mrs. A. Palmatier of Picton; Mrs. John Gourley, of Belleville; Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon; Mrs. R. W. Street, Morven; Mrs. Albert V. Empey, Eldorado; Mrs. J. B. Lewis, Trenton; Mrs. A. H. Howe, Deseronto; Mrs. Henry D. Williams, Picton, R.R.

Correspondence—Mrs. E. Farnworth, Mrs. G. S. Sharp of Belleville, and Mrs. Geo. McGillicuddy of Kingston. Five members of the executive were absent.

CAMP FIRE MEETING AT LAZIER'S DAM

Holloway Young People Enjoy Delightful Evening Outdoors

With ideal weather conditions in vogue the Young People's Club of Holloway Street United Church held an open air meeting around a huge camp fire at Lazier's Dam last evening.

Camp songs, games and other forms of entertainment were thoroughly enjoyed by the large number present to avail themselves of the meeting. Following a lengthy programme around the camp fire a weiner roast was the order of the night, when weiners, buns, coffee and other refreshments were served.

The meeting gathered at the church parlors earlier in the evening from where they adjourned to the camp site by motor. Rev. H. B. Neal of Holloway Street Church and other adult members of the congregation accompanied the young people. The meeting was the first fall gathering of the club with all future meetings being held on Monday evenings in the church parlors. The out-door gathering was voted a decided success by all who attended.

BACK TO BIBS we go, as flower bibs and bibs of satin or feathers are highlighted in the Paris shops. A nice bib done in white velvet and satin has a row of shirred flowers across the front and ties with satin ends in back. Nice with a plain black frock!

THE SMART SET to wear just now is the ensemble of beret, bag and gloves in white, brown or black bengaline or faille. Each piece is simply but smartly styled and the set would be grand with simple frocks

GO DIGGING in your old trinkets chests for antique jewelry—gold chains, cameo brooches and such. For they are very important with the new clothes. A large, old-fashioned brooch of turquoise surrounded with tiny pearls is the sole ornament on a charming new frock of black crepe, narrow in front but with ripple draperies in back.

THERE'S PEP IN THE PEPLUM since this line has registered so strongly in all the recent openings. The peplum is featured in many new day frocks for town wear, including one in green ribbed woolen with necklines and side closing marked by a narrow strip of leopard fur. The self belt has a covered square buckle and the skirt has wide box pleats.

A HAPPY PARTNERSHIP is achieved with tweed and velveteen. One new sports coat of fine tweed in a tiny black and white check uses black velveteen to make a big shawl collar. A wide shoulder is achieved by means of fine pleats.

FINE FEATHERS make fine hats this season. A charming small shallow-crowned sailor in black velvet, held to the head by an elastic in back, has a tuft of tiny fine white ostrich plumes in front and back, both tufts being placed at the edge of the brim.

Doris Havens — Mary Mack

It seems to be in the cards that Doris Havens and Mary Mack should be paired as a piano team for radio work, for they have had careers that are strangely similar. Both are 26; both have been broadcasting for two years, and before the talkies both were organists in leading Philadelphia theaters.

Weddings

McCONNELL—McCOY

A very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCoy, Madoc, at 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon, September 23rd, when their daughter, Helen Marguerite, became the bride of Raymond Hallett McConnell, eldest son of Mr. Congor McConnell and the late Mrs. McConnell of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon.

The bride looked charming in a gown of beige crepe with insets of French lace, fashioned on long lines and worn a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white delphiniums and baby's breath.

The groom's sister, Miss Olive McConnell, acted as bridesmaid and wore a pretty frock of wine crinkle crepe, fashioned on long lines with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink delphiniums and baby's breath. The groom's brother, Mr. Wilbur McCoy, capably acted as groomsman. Little Miss Helen McCoy, niece of the bride, made a bewitching little flower girl in picturesque frock. The bride's cousin, Miss Ina McCoy, furnished the wedding music and Rev. J. R. Trumpour officiated as clergyman.

The guests in attendance, numbering about fifty, consisted of the immediate relatives. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. J. S. Hallett, the aunts and uncles and their immediate families and a few intimate friends. After the ceremony a delicious buffet lunch was served in the dining room by the Misses Vera Pitchell, Audrey Pitchell, Luella Chambers, and Messrs. Harry McCoy, Norman McConnell and Gordon Bailey.

The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely case of silverware, to the bridesmaid and pianist, silver compacts, their remembrances of appreciation, and to the flower girl a birthstone ring.

The bride travelled in a frock of grey and blue crepe with velvet jacket trimmed with grey fur and hat and accessories to match.

The happy couple left amidst showers of confetti in a beautifully decorated car for a short while and will spend a week visiting relatives in Belleville, Napanee, Trenton, Bay, Montreal and Ottawa.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Mount Pleasant Church.

Y.W.G. OF JOHN STREET CHURCH HOLD MEETING

Interesting Review of Book Given by Mrs. Robert Hall

The opening meeting of the session of the Young Women's Guild of John St. United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Guthridge, Bleeker Ave., on Monday evening. The president, Mrs. Sexsmith, called upon Mrs. Robert Hall to give a few words of welcome, after which Mrs. Robert Hall gave an interesting review of the book "From Genesis to Geneva."

The devotional portion of the meeting was led by Miss Dorothy Reid, who gave a most inspiring talk on "Finding God in Small Things." A surprise feature of the evening was the visit of Mrs. Perrine, a returned missionary, on life and work among the women of the Orient, in which she pointed out that Oriental women were rapidly assuming leadership in the promotion of higher ideals, and even the school children were organized in the campaign for peace.

The chief topic for the evening, "Nationalism vs. Internationalism," was ably presented by Miss Elson, assisted by Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Boulier, and Miss Sullivan, who gave helpful talks on different phases of the subject.

Mrs. Carl Sharp gave a short resume of current events.

Lunch, served by the hostess brought to a close a very successful meeting.

SPOKEN WORD MUCH BETTER

E. V. Illsley Delivers Fine Address to Y's Men's Club

"Observations From a Swivel Chair" was the subject on which Mr. E. V. Illsley, manager of the local Dominion Bank of Commerce, spoke to the members of the Y's Men's Club at their weekly meeting held last evening.

From the start Mr. Illsley prefaced a challenge to those present along the lines of self-thought, self-initiative and present-day problems.

"It would perhaps be better if half the speeches we hear at service clubs were never delivered and that they are non-educational but, perhaps we'd benefit more from round-table arguments and discussions from the heart," said Mr. Illsley as he pointed out that a higher and finer citizen would be the result of such actual participation rather than merely sitting back and listening to others. The speaker was of the opinion that more good always came from the spoken word than from the written word as it brought one in direct contact with the speaker. He then referred to the minister, the physician and the statesman, all of whom enunciated their views in their various walks of life through public speeches.

Had Wrong Balance

Mr. Illsley, in referring to the present times, was firmly of the opinion that they were more interesting to the studious young man than they were trying. The days of 1929 to 33 were termed "normal" times by some individuals. The speaker referred to them as equivalent to the days previous to the decline of Rome, when nobody and nothing living existed. "We had wrong balances and wrong values in those days of 1926 to '29," said Mr. Illsley speaking of the fabulous prices of stocks, etc. The speaker dwelt lengthily on the N.R.A. which has been recently introduced by President Roosevelt, which he thought was colossal at such a time. "Regardless of the ultimate outcome of the N.R.A., its efforts are admirable and are to be commended," he finally believed. "Why? We are not living in abnormal times, but, rather in trying times which event- ually will right themselves through united efforts."

Rise in Trying Times

He referred to present-day industry, agriculture and merchandising methods as not being a new philosophy as ways and means change but, not their principles. In referring to past great men he pointed out that any man who had made his mark in life always rose during trying times. "Therefore when I say to you, get an objective, be patient and persistent, make today's problems and difficulties a challenge, and take up that challenge, every one of you," suggested the speaker in conclusion.

Mr. Illsley was introduced by Vern Weir and thanked for his inspiring words by President Bill McFarland, who presided. During the programme, four new members were inducted into the club by four past presidents. The four new members were Jack Wilson, Russ McKenzie, Stan Wilbur and Herb Muir. The members were reminded of the joint Rotary-Kiwanis-Y's Men's meeting of next week, when Brigadie- Gen. Ross of Kingston will be the speaker of the evening.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Stocks Work Quietly Higher in Early Dealings at New York—Distillery And Metal Shares Move Ahead—New High Record For Bar Gold Fails to Pull Gold Shares Out of The Rut.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Stocks worked quietly higher in the early dealings today. The rank and file advanced fractions to around a point while slightly wider gains were registered by Alcoholic, New York Central and some other specialties.

Railroad issues displayed nearly 3 points while gains of 2 or more were shown in Brooklyn Manhattan Transit and U. S. Smelting. Shares up sizeably, ranging to more than a point included Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Du Pont, Bethlehem General Motors, New York Central, Texas Gulf, Seaboard Oil, Western Union, Cerro De Pasco, American Commercial Alcohol, U.S. Industrial Alcohol and Interboro Rapid Transit.

Stocks moved at a lazy pace through the second hour but the trend was one of slight improvement over early gains.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 26.—(CP)—Scattered advances recorded among the metal and refining shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange were not entirely sustained today, but the list had a firmer appearance in the late afternoon than at the opening.

Walker's Common had a gain of about two points around midday but eased off to 46 where it was up only half a point. Industrial Alcohol also had a point gain, and Distillers Seagram, a half point, and Brewers and Distillers 10 cents.

Smelters climbed to 136 and held at that price for quotas at 135½. Nickel held about half its gain, standing at 30.05. Massey Harris came one quite liberally, selling at 5, for a fractional loss.

CORNER STONE WELL LAID

the ancient art, were most active in promoting welfare and the lovely work the Order today were for the welfare of man in general as well as for that of fellow members. For hundreds of years the skilled Masonic bodies had functioned at events similar to that of this morning and had ever been allied with the work of Christ's church on earth.

Following prayer by the Grand Chepalin, the Grand Superintendent of Works read the inscription which was placed in the cavity of the stone and with due Masonic ritual and ceremony the Worshipful Grand Master proceeded to lay the corner-stone which had first been approved of by the grand junior warden, the grand senior warden, the deputy grand master, with gavel, plumb-rule, level and square. With 3 taps on the stone, the Grand Master Herrington proclaimed the stone well and truly laid, well approved true and truely.

The Rev. Canon Bunting again briefly addressed the Grand Master and those assembled and the Most Worshipful Grand Master Pendleton by Grand Chapalin Geen.

Present Prayer Book

Mr. J. P. Baker, of Bonarlaw, a member of the Order for more than half of the vector, the wardens and congregation of St. Mary's Church, presented Mr. Herrington with a prayer book as a memento of the occasion which was suitably related to by the Grand Master.

Reverend Canon Bunting Blagrave next addressed the assemblage recalling some of the incidents that had occurred in the church and communally when he was incumbent there, the long years that had since extended him during his 18 months of absence. He felt very much welcomed and made his home while there with Mr. John Weab, he noticed standing in the assembly before him. Mr. Webb was approaching 87 years of age and was married but his old parishioner still cherished and took an active interest in the work of the church which he (Dr. Blagrave) had left in 1903.

Reverend Canon Bunting Blagrave said he prayed for the blessing of the new church which he trusted would serve the parsh for years to come, to serve in peace and prosperity to the glory and honour of God and that the praise to God of coming generations would be found in the House of God where their fathers had worshipped God, worshipped and in which they had found peace and comfort.

Anglican Service Held

After rural dean Caldwell had spoken the benediction, Archbishop Bishop Lyons, the fine service of the Church of England for such an occasion was carried out with the following clergymen assisting: Canon Swayne, Archdeacon Blagrave and Rural Deans Caldwell and Hall. Organist Mr. Woodyard led the singing of the National Anthem. Throughout the ceremony which lasted well over an hour the proceedings were fraught with intent interest by those in attendance, and it was with sincere attention that all assembled followed the addresses of the speakers.

At noon, in the hall at Springbrook the ladies of St. Mark's parish, assisted by ladies of other congregations had a splendidly prepared dinner ready, and some 400 availed themselves of the opportunity to dine with friends there. Following the dinner the list of addresses were made which will appear from the pen of this paper's Bonarlaw correspondent.

It was a most worthy effort those in charge put forth to make the laying of the corner-stone of the new St. Mark's Anglican Church, and on all sides words of commendation and praise were heard for the manner in which everything had been so splendidly arranged for such a great occ

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST DRIVER

Bernard W. Stein, Detroit, was arrested in Belleville Thursday morning on a charge of criminal negligence following an automobile accident, that happened on the mile east of Trenton on Monday, when Mrs. Schenbeck, 38, of Detroit, injured Schenbeck, also of Detroit, were seriously injured. Stein was arraigned before Magistrate Mikel Tuesday afternoon and was committed for trial this week. He was later allowed his liberty, bail being posted.

Stein was taken into city by Provincial Police followed the motor car accident in which Mrs. Schenbeck was badly injured, when the latter's husband was driving east on the highway and crashed into the north ditch. Mrs. Schenbeck was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg, while Helena Schenbeck was also badly shaken up. They alleged that he was forced into the ditch owing to the fact that the traffic ahead of him was moving too slowly.

The entire party were motoring eastward through Ontario from Detroit, Stein, a young acquaintance boy of the Schenbecks, and happened to be driving when the accident occurred. Excessive speed is alleged by police to have been the cause of the accident. Relatives of the Schenbeck women are recuperating at the Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. Rachael Schenbeck, age 71 then presented Mr. Herrington with a prayer book as a memento of the occasion which was suitably related to by the Grand Master.

Reverend Canon Bunting Blagrave said he prayed for the blessing of the new church which he trusted would serve the parsh for years to come, to serve in peace and prosperity to the glory and honour of God and that the praise to God of coming generations would be found in the House of God where their fathers had worshipped God, worshipped and in which they had found peace and comfort.

DESPERADO IS SURPRISED

Noticing the fugitives yellow hair, Lee asked:

"When did you dye your hair?"

"That's been that way a long time," Kelly answered.

Chief Lee said Chicago police think Kelly and another man were among the machine gun bandits who held up a Federal Reserve Bank automobile in Chicago September 22nd and escaped with $500,000. The bandits shot down a policeman who made their escape in a dense smoke screen.

At the time of the Chicago robbery, a feverish hunt was being staged in close sections, extending Oklahoma, for Kelly. Officers allege the has been identified by the families of prosecutors, a witness and the victim in the Charles Urschel kidnapping case.

Identifies as Kidnapper

Kelly had been identified as a member of the kidnapping gang who had extorted $200,000 from the oil man's family.

Department of Justice Agent Roper immediately telephoned the latest to J. E. Hoover, Chief of the Bureau of Identification, in Washington.

The captain, he reported was made in a hurry to identify the man as one of "Pretty" Kelly's gang.

"We found him in bed," Roper said, "and he was captured without a struggle."

A cordon of police surrounded the house about 6 a.m. . One group of officers broke down the door with a front entrance, another stood in the hallway, facing Kelly's closed door, with a sawed off shotgun at knight in front of him.

Suddenly the door swung open. There stood Kelly with a revolver in his hand. The shotgun, however, was pointed straight at his chest.

"Drop it, Kelly," Sergeant Ranney's voice rose, commanding.

Kelly's gun dropped to the floor, and his hands pointed to the ceiling.

"I have been waiting for you all night," Kelly said.

"Well, here we are," Raney said, smiling.

MOTHER OF CANADIAN NURSING PASSES ON

First Women Superintendent of Toronto General

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP) — "The Mother of Nursing in Canada," Mary Agnes Snively, first woman superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital and of the nurses' training school which she founded in the private pavilion of the hospital, she had been ill two months. In 1900, Miss Snively, in the presence of a delegation of Canadian nurses, placed flowers on the grave of Queen Victoria.

For years she belonged to the American Nurses' Association and in 1907 was instrumental in helping to organize the first Canadian association. Later she organized the Canadian National Association of Trained Nurses, now known as the Canadian Nurses Association.

In 1909 she brought about progress to Canadian nurses by affiliating the Canadian Association with the International Council of Nurses, and in 1924 she was made Honorary Treasurer when it was organized in 1899.

POLICE GUARD POULTRY CAR

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)— With City, Provincial, Railway and Royal Canadian Mounted Police on guard, a poultry car was backed into the Grand Trunk freight shed siding at noon today and preparations immediately started for transporting the car to the centre 12,000 live birds accumulated in the plant's poultry section in a Stratford plant went on strike last Thursday.

Hundreds of strikers and spectators gathered around, almost completely blocking traffic in the vicinity. Many gathered storm. Many were on hand to witness. Heavy reinforcements of police prepared to guard the car, which is loaded and removed.

In addition to officers on duty this morning another detachment with sawed-off shotguns formed a police, who have had but snatches of sleep for some days, are quartered at a hotel under a 24-hour emergency call.

The plant is not completely tied up. The 40-odd chicken pluckers in the west end strike for a three-cent rate instead of the 1½ cent rate offered by the company, were joined yesterday by employes of the other departments of the plant, many along the line refused to go on strike. This threatens to tie up the entire plant on strike.

Meanwhile, there were no new developments in the strike of 800 furniture workers. No official statement was forthcoming today that the plants would reopen Wednesday, although such action was commonly discussed. Adequate police protection is assured for the plants, although no trouble is on strike.

With the presence of so many police, there is a feverish wish of excitement. The situation remains extremely tense.

"ISLAND GIRL"

by Frank R. Adams

CHAPTER I.

"You might adopt an orphan," Vernon Mabee's friend suggested, "that is, of course, if you don't want to have one of your own."

"The trouble with having an orphan of your own is that you don't live to enjoy it," Vernon pointed out. "As a suggestor, Dodd, you've got two flat tires and ignition trouble."

"Well, you asked for advice on what to do with your useless wealth and I meet with the usual treatment given to those who offer their services, gratis. All I get is a gibe and a jape. But I'm long suffering and generous. In spite of your ill-timed levity I will go on and elaborate my costly suggestion. Don't adopt just an ordinary orphan. Adopt a girl orphan and when she grows up a little she'll get rid of your money fast enough. In the last week Mabel bought a fur coat and two hats to go with it and——"

"Hush, Dodd. I won't want to hear your grouching about your wife's extravagant account."

"That's what she says. But I've got to have somebody about it. Besides I was only offering it to your attention as a suggestion for your own consideration. One wise man in the home solves the problem of keeping the family finances in circulation. Pass your cigarets. Thanks. Why don't you buy a good brand? You know I dislike these."

Dodd Speed may have continued talking after that. Vernon did not pay any attention. One could do that right in the middle of one of Vernon's father had an especial kind of glide on his fingers. Money stuck to him, may gathered around him asking to belong to him. It had started by marrying a wealthy girl whose fortune he refused to touch until he had amassed an equal one on his own book. The two inheritances together, by his parents were both dead, made Vernon the master of an amount of money seldom dreamed of by any outside of bootlegging circles.

And then besides, as is usually the case with very wealthy men, there was the matter of romance. None has ever yet crossed Vernon's path. Affairs, yes, but no romance. So doubted if there was such a thing but he felt the need of something in his life to make it complete. And he wanted it to be something that he had wrested from an unwilling world by his two hands or words to that effect. He craved opposition Up to the time of writing he has had only the latter mentioning. There was no use of wasting a good piece and comfort until a man was at least seventy.

He had thought some of standing for parliament, but decided that to become a cow-puncher or a hobo would be more thrilling exercise, but he was not a good enough actor to do either. A thing needed he couldn't really get much of a kick out of hardship that you might end any minute by sending a collect telegram to your fiscal agent. There had to be some incentive for a man to get any benefit out of the lessons of adversity. Vernon had an idea that chaps in stories who relinquished their homes, clubs and creature comforts to go out and live on an indefinite search for adventure were lacking a sense of humor. It wouldn't dare put on any kind of a show like that. It has to be when she begins to cross-examine me; I can't even make the trush sound convincing. Still I can tell her that you and I went to the theatre together, had a bite to eat here at the grill and slept at your place and I'll bet she won't be able to shoot more than a dozen holes in my story."

"Married men," Vernon observed, "are great propagandists for——"

"Don't finish that institution."

"Who says marriage is nature's greatest institution?"

"Perhaps no one. Not I. I was referring to bachelorhood. Come on, Hi, Terry, over here!"

Vernon's chauffeur obediently drove the limousine to where they were waiting.

"Hop in. Don't it?" asked Dodd surveying it critically.

"Not so very. I've had it all day." Terry grinned at his master. "She's running smoother now, sir. I tightened the bearings."

"Good. Take it to the garage and keep it there until I send for it. Come now, Mr. Speed and I are going to walk home."

Terry groaned as the car glided away. Perhaps he was not pedestrian but he felt the need of something to walk on besides a rolling rather than walking.

"Nice, it's cold to be out in the open," Dodd grumbled.

"Cold!" questioned his friend, "why this is Indian summer."

"You can't tell the temperature by looking at the sky, Vernon, you know. When it's cold, it's cold, even if it is August."

"You'll be warmed up in a minute."

"Besides, why a man with three cars should walk I can't see," Dodd went on, ignoring the remark.

"This will be good for you. It's only a mile and a half to my house and when you get there you will sleep the sleep of a new born babe."

"I'll think about three o'clock in the morning you are going to have to get up and walk the floor with me and get me a bottle of hot milk. If I have to set an alarm clock for that——"

Vernon had already set off at a fairly brisk pace and this autocrat-ically put an end to the conversation so far as Dodd Speed was concerned because he couldn't keep up with him and was still left for articulation. Exercise made him mad anyway, especially pointless exercise like this. Once upon a time he had been a pretty fair center on a football team of a university located by a lake but as soon as he had shifted masters from coach to wife he had neglected his calories shamefully, somewhat to the detriment of his outline. Young Mr. Speed at thirty weighed exactly two hundred and ten pounds net.

Vernon was more quarterback size and probably never would be anything but a featherweight. He was a comely little man, with three outstanding features, nose, ears and chin. The nose was the outstanding indeed, the nose was a little too large and the mouth was a homely good natured affair very useful and pleasant, but crooked. Both ears stuck out. Vernon's suits and had light overcoats.

"I'm glad you like to walk." Dodd, who was still grumbling managed to get that out.

"It is for your own good." Vernon reminded him absently. "Should you die you are concerned you would be better off if automobiles and taxicabs had never been invented. Besides," Vernon continued, "the man who walks is the man who gets in touch with humanity. What can you know about your fellow man from seeing him through a car window? The man on foot is the one you have to have adventures.

"Is all to be held up, you mean."

"Well perhaps. Even that has interest."

"Here, we can't stand by and see them slug him." Something about the way the victim of the fall-guy had made him realize that no well brought up man could permit such an injustice.

"Say, if I knew you were going to feel like this I wouldn't have gone out with you this evening. Life is dangerous enough without traveling in company with one of trouble hunters."

They had almost reached Vernon's apartment and were just turning off Broadway to go through a narrow side street when the door of one of the old-fashioned residences opened and there emitted a flash of light and then almost as swiftly closed. The interval was long enough, however, not only for the flash of light to get through but also for a gentleman to exit in the fashion of one who is shoved violently from behind. He was going so fast in fact that he practically slid down the few steps to the sidewalk and sat there for a moment somewhat dazed. Then he got up and climbed the steps once more and began to beat on the door.

"Wait, a minute," said Vernon detaining his friend with a hand on his arm.

"Let's not," countered Dodd. "There may be a fight."

"That's what I was hoping. We might have to help."

"Haven't you learned yet that in New York City even homes don't take a hand in their neighbour's fights?"

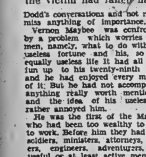
Vernon counseled silence.

"The man at the front door of the house from which he had been ejected began to hammer loudly on the panels.

"Open up," he demanded. "Open up, I say!"

There seemed to be no response from the house itself but into the range of vision of the two onlookers, who were standing in a shadow which stood over the curb, filling into the building, there came two heavy set men who seemed to know just what to do. They climbed the steps behind the vociferous gentleman and seized him, one on either side. Struggling they bore him to the street and away from the house. Two or three doors toward Broadway he managed to break away from them and started back. As one of them tripped him and when he started to rise the other struck him on the head with his fist.

"Here, we can't stand by and see them slug that old gentleman." Something about the way the victim had fallen had made him realize that no well brought up man could permit such an injustice.



"Say, wait," began Dodd.

But he was too late.

Vernon had already started for the seat of trouble and before Dodd could finish his protest his bantam friend was in the midst of it.

700 ONTARIO RELIEF CAMP WORKERS BACK AT JOBS AFTER STRIKE

When 700 unemployed men in a relief camp at Lakeview, Ontario, went on strike this week, police reserves, including R.C.M.P. officers were called in to maintain order. The Ontario provincial government, taking extra precautionary measures against threatened outbreaks of violence, denied the men food after they walked out in protest against the twenty cents a day wage. Since then, quiet has now been restored, though police are still keeping watch over the camp and nearby "settlements" of unemployed. Above scenes show strikers leaving the camp's soup kitchen after the government's order had taken effect. They are accompanied by an officer of the R.C.M.P. In the other picture, strikers are receiving instructions from one of their leaders. They are being urged to return to work. All the men who participated in the short-lived strike are single and unemployed, except for one or two they do in return for living quarters and rations of food.

TOOK PILLS FOR 30 YEARS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF

Mr. Forsythe Endorses ALL-BRAN for Constipation

If you suffer from headaches, loss of appetite and energy or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read this voluntary letter:

"After taking pills and tablets for about thirty years for constipation, I started to take your All-Bran three times a day according to directions. Today I can eat what I like, sleep like a child and certainly feel fine."—Mr. Ed. Forsythe, (Address furnished upon request.)

Science says ALL-BRAN provides the "bulk" in cereal that is inherent and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of poisons.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" to more healthful than taking pill-set medicines—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In serious cases use with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

by KATHARINE HOVLAND-EARLE

"I want to make you happy," he heard her say brokenly.

"If you're happy then I will be," he told her, hardly more assuredly.

"I'm a little tired, Darrett," she said, "I'll be just as I was—before. I need a little more time to get adjusted."

"Dearest, I want you to be happy. That's all I care about!"

"Do you mean you still love me?"

"Darling!" He didn't mean that his arm should tighten but it did. He hid his face against her hair. He managed to say, "I've been—blind!"

"I love you!" Elinor said, then, "Darry! Darry!" for she had felt the sob that shook him.

She remembered Bessie's words. Her arms were around him now, holding him tightly. Bessie had said you only loved truly when you wanted to help the one you loved to forget old wounds. Well, Elinor knew that she loved Darrett now. He raised his face from her shoulder. "I'm sorry, Elinor," he said.

"Nothing matters but your happiness!" she broke in as he paused. She ran an unsteady hand over his dear, dark, sandy-hued hair. She tried to smile at him. His lips twitched; yet again his eyes filled.

She kissed her hands then, showing the way he kissed them all the stranger he had felt, all the great love he had for her. He would be endlessly patient, he declared. If only she would assure him that some day she might feel as she had before. He would do everything—everything—to make it easy. She was the one woman in his life. There was no one else. There never could be any other. He would never forgive himself for having doubted her fineness.

"I worship you!" he had said roughly, then hid his face once more against her shoulder.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Elinor whispered, "Darry, dear!" and he sat suddenly erect. He said unsteadily, "I'm going to go away night now, dearest!"

Again he kissed her hands and she clung to him. He kissed her lips, then moved abruptly away. At the door he paused and turned. "You'll never know," he said, "how happy you've made me!" Then he was gone.

Elinor began to cry again but this time they were tears of happiness. How could she have hurt him as she had? His future was what she should be thinking about —not his past. She knew how utterly she loved him, she had not deserved all Darrett had brought her. Darrett had said she was the one woman in his life. Dear, dear Darrett!

She lived again those moments when he had held her close in his arms, declared he would wait patiently if only she could earn again his love. "Oh!" she breathed aloud. "This happiness was real!"

Marcia, arriving the next day after Bob and Darrett had driven to the nearest links, their golf bags poking from the car.

Marcia, looking dramatic in black, stepped from her car she saw Elinor, turning, ran over to her. She moved toward the boy, swaying a little, and when she was beside him put a hand on his shoulder. He looked up at her with friendly inquiry. Elinor drew near.

"Dick knows," Marcia said stridently. "I told him and he doesn't care. All he wants now is my happiness. I learned this morning that I can never have another child. You'll be sorry, Elinor, but you'll be sorry! You won't fight to keep my boy!"

"I don't understand!" Elinor said. Rock passionate Marcia! Berrett had admitted that she was often a "little difficult". Was this one of the "negative" a mind turned sick because of her loss?

Marcia moved slowly toward a chair into which she sank wearily. For a moment she leaned back, her eyes tightly closed. Then, beckoning again at Elinor, she said:

"I'm talking about my first marriage." She nodded toward Gerald. "He's my son, you know. Barrett shielded me. I've been thinking—I can't help thinking that it was because I let him do that—that I lost my baby."

"No, you mustn't think such things, dear!" Elinor said hotly. "That's morbid." She too dropped to a chair close to Marcia. Her tones had suddenly become absurdly weak. Barrett, poor Barrett!

"I made Barrett promise not to tell anyone but I presumed he had told you!" Marcia went on.

Elinor shook her head.

"Well, everyone—anyone can know now. I'm through with lies and telling them. Tell the child so some time, Elinor. I want to look at him."

"Gerald!" Elinor called not quite steadily. Shyly and a trifle awkwardly the boy moved toward them. Marcia held out his hands tightly as she fed her hungry heart, looking on the small boy's freckled face.

When Bob and Barrett returned toward the close of the afternoon they found the butler delivering Gerald's baggage into Marcia's smart car. "She's my mother!" the small boy told them excitedly. He was dressed in his best, ready for the trip. "But she says I can come back and visit you often and I do like her!"

"My God!" burst from Barrett. He stood, staring blankly at Gerald, then at the car and at the attending chauffeur who was doing his best to keep from showing surprise he felt.

Bob, who also had come to a full stop, gazed blankly as he tried to digest the truth, then whistled shrilly through his teeth. "It's Barrett darned!" he said.

Marcia appeared then and Elinor followed her. Into Marcia's step Bob came something that he had lost from it, the energy that means a return of hope.

"It's all right, Barry!" she said happily. "Dick understands—and he is waiting for us. For Gerald and me. We're going to celebrate the reunited family at dinner this night."

She kissed Barry and patted his arm. "I'm not depriving you, I know—" she went on, "Elinor told me about that when I first arrived. Oh, not in words but I could read it in her face. She looked relieved at the thought— Marcia's eyes brimmed but she went on bravely—"of a baby's dying."

Barrett was frowning his bafflement, moistening his lips. He sent a look of appeal to Elinor who was flushed and smiling. Then Marcia stepped into her car and Gerald followed. He leaned from the window and waved as they rolled on down the hill.

Barrett moved toward Elinor and she turned to Bob. "Bob," she said, "you have always been one of my most understanding friends—"

He bowed, smiling. "Present," he agreed.

"I think I'd like a little time alone with my husband," she confided with an uncertain laugh.

"Haven't you some letters that you really must write?"

"Dozens." Bob agreed promptly. He disappeared into the house, satisfied. Everything was as right as he had supposed it to be. And he wanted their happiness now; not Elinor's alone but happiness for Barrett too.

Barrett drew Elinor's hand through his arm.

"Suppose we go inside," she suggested.

"Darry," she said slowly, "if I had failed to say what I did last night—before I knew the truth, I'd be terribly ashamed of myself."

"But you did say it, Elinor."

"Yes, Barry—"

"Darling!"

"I feel like going down on my knees to you—"

"Don't!" he whispered. He drew her close then to press her face against his shoulder. Hand on her hair, he stared above her head, still dazed blankly.

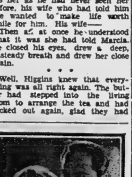
"We'll see Gerald often. Marcia said we would."

"Yes."

"Barry, will you forgive me? Can you forgive me?"

"Dearest, there's nothing to forgive, Oh, Elinor—"

"Yes?"



"What did Marcia mean when she said you'd told her? What had you told her, Elinor?"

He held her away a moment and looked down at her. He seemed to see her as he had never seen her before; his wife who had told him she wanted to make life worth while for him. His wife—

Then as at once he understood what it was she had told Marcia Elinor's eyes, grew a deep, unsteady breath and drew her close again.

Well, Higgins knew that everything was all right again. The butler had stepped into the living room to arrange the tea and had backed out again, glad they had not heard him. He had seen Barrett holding Elinor close in his arms as though he would never let her go, his face bent to hers. And Elinor was clinging to him.

Then was "that happy" to know these two, whom he loved, had overcome misunderstandings. Trembling, he tiptoed back to the living room. "I thank thee, Lord!" he muttered. "Indeed I do. Very, very much!"

And doubtless, since the Kingdom of God is made up of those who love others better than themselves, God understood to smile on Higgins and upon a man and woman who knew what marriage and love could mean. Upon a trio who felt earth to be not far from heaven at that moment.

The tea must wait a bit," Higgins said to the cook. "They're busy with more important affairs!"

Great Relief From Pinkham Medicines

Three Times This Ontario Woman Has Been Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I was always tired and I did not care pals at my periods. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me. I took it before my two children were born and I am taking it now at the Change. I have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and found it a great relief for inflammation and for a discharge which bothered me."

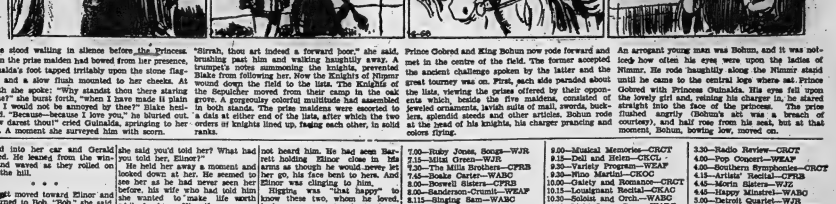
SEPT 26 MR. AND MRS.- EYE TROUBLE

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs



Blake stood walling in silence before the Princess. When the prise maiden had bowed from her presence, Gutnadia's foot tapped irritably upon the stone flagging and a slow flush mounted to her cheeks. At length she spoke: "Why standst thou there staring at me?" she burst forth, "when I have made it plain that I would not be accompanied by thee? Blake betailed. "Because—because I love you," he blurted out. "How dareest thou?" cried Gutnadia, springing to her feet. A moment she surveyed him with scorn.

"Sirrah, thou art indeed a forward boor," she said, brushing past him and walking haughtily away. A trumpet's notes announcing the knights, prevented Blake from following her. Now the Knights of Nimmr wound down the field to the lists. The Knights of the Sepulcher moved from their camp in the oak grove. A gorgeously colorful multitude had assembled in both stands. The prise maidens were escorted to a dais at either end of the lists, after which the two orders of knights lined up, facing each other, in solid ranks.

Prince Cobred and King Bohun now rode forward and met in the centre of the field. The former accepted the ancient challenge spoken by the latter and the great tourney was on. First, each side paraded about in the lists, viewing the prises offered by their opponents which, beside the five maidens, consisted of handsome caparisons, javlin rolls of mail, swords, bucklers, splendid steeds and other articles. Bohun rode at the head of his knights, his charger prancing and colors flying.

An arrogant young man was Bohun, and it was not long before he espied the ladies of Nimmr. He rode haughtily along the Nimmr stand until he came to the central box where sat Prince Cobred with Princess Gutnadia. His eyes fell upon the lovely girl and, reining his charger in, he stared straight into the face of his foeman. The prise flushed angrily (Bohun's act was a breach of courtesy), and half rose in his seat, but at that moment, Bohun, bowing low, moved on.

"YOU KNOW ME AL" LARDNER DIES AT 48

Ranking Force in Literature Loses Fight to Tuberculosis

REAL HUMORIST

Humor Spontaneous And Carried a Real Punch

By DALE HARRISON

New York, Sept. 26—(CP)— Ring Lardner, who once noted that there wasn't much difference between his native Niles, Mich., and his adopted New York because both ended in an "R", has lost his long fight against tuberculosis.

The lean, six-foot humorist, who made you and me know Al, and who became a ranking figure of American literature, died suddenly at his East Hampton, Long Island home last night in the 48th year of an active, interesting life.

For 10 years Ringgold Wilmer Lardner had fought the disease. During those years, with the spectre drawing steadily closer, his humor flowed on, bringing laughs in the face of those who saw on "the stage "Elmer The Great" and then "June Moon" and the other lens of thousands who red his "Story of a Wonder Man" "Love Nest" and other stories.

Heart disease, complicated by other ailments, was given by his doctors as the immediate cause of death.

Only in the last few years has the Lardner typewriter gone on short hours. His doctors ordered him to the southwest, and he remained there many months. When he returned to New York several months ago he was reported much better.

Edited Many Columns

His days of quantity production, however, were over. He did a column on radio in the weekly "New Yorker"—a humorous critical column that carried a warning for those who late, those sponsors and those stations, which he thought not serving the public need for entertainment. The sweep of the humor that filled "You Know Me, Al", "Gullible's Travels," "Own Your Own Home" and the hilarious "How to write short stories" was gone. Occasionally he flashed on those last published writings, but the spontaneity and wit of "Treat 'em rough", "The Young Immigrants" and "Symtoms of being 35" were not there.

Lardner was born in Niles, Mich., March 6, 1885. As he put it, he was born during "leave-a-baby" week. In comparing Niles and New York later he said there was little advantage either way, as the New York Central tracks ran through both places.

Throughout many of Lardner's writings the home-town pride is noted. His youth was spent there and his first job as a newspaper was in South Bend, Ind., just 15 miles away.

Sport Writer

His journalistic experience was devoted almost entirely to the sports page—South Bend, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston and back to Chicago. He travelled with the baseball clubs, the White Sox and the Cubs. In the days of "Doc" White, Mordecai (three-fingered) Brown, Frank Chance, Hal Chase, Evers and the many others of Chicago's heyday of baseball, he became a recognized authority on the game. From this experience came much material for the development of his best known character, the egotistical, bombastic, boastful and dumb bushleaguer, Jack Keefe, who told of his experiences in the big league by means of letters to "Al".

Each was his chief characters centered serious attention on Ring Lardner as a humorist. As the years passed, conducting the "In the Wake of the News" column in the Chicago Tribune, a post to which he succeeding following the death of Hugh S. Fullerton, sports columnist. On Monday instead of running the column himself, he wrote child verse based, it was said, on the antics of his own children. These later were collected and published as "Bib Ballads," his first published work.

As eccentric uncle leaves her a legacy of a million dollars, but stipulates that in order to obtain the money she must live for one year on a salary of a million dollars, but stipulates that in order to obtain the money she must live for one year on certain man from Toronto. When she man from Toronto arrives in England to claim his wealthy bride the fun begins and the surprises follow each other quickly in this clever and exciting comedy.

Fred Kerr, the crotchety and lovable star of many Hollywood and British films is admirably cast, as Jessie's lawyer and guardian and his comedy scenes are positively hilarious. The fortune-hunting man from Toronto is played by Ian Hunter, who will be remembered by Canadians as Renate Muller's sweetheart in "Marry Me" and other British films.

With her sparkling and vivacious personality, excellent singing voice and unquestionable talent as an actress, Jessie Matthews makes friends wherever she goes and an increasing number of Canadian film fans regard her as the ideal screen actress. Jessie was introduced to Canadian audiences in the successful British film "There Goes the Bride" and "The Midshipmaid" and her portrayal of "Susie Dean" in "The Good Companions" won her the congratulations of the Royal family and further establishing her 200.

"TUGBOAT ANNIE"

TICKLES AND TUGS AT HEARTSTRINGS

Screen fans in Belleville and vicinity who have been clamoring for a return to the screen of Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery ever since "Min and Bill" have their wish granted at the Belle Theatre where "Tugboat Annie" with the beloved Marie as the redoubtable feminine tugboat skipper of Puget Sound is now playing until Wednesday evening.

Based on Norman Reilly Raine's Saturday Evening Post stories, filmed on actual locales with real thrills of ship rescues in storms, and the amazing feat of Beery who repairs a boiler, by going into a blazing furnace at sea, the new Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer picture shows the pair in comical quarrels, mingled with episodes of poignant heart interest.

Mervyn LeRoy, who directed "Gold Diggers of 1933" and other hits, directing the picture, adapted to the screen personally by the author of the original series. An elaborate cast, including Robert Young and Maureen O'Sullivan as the lovers, Raymond Hatton as Tannahill Young, Frankie Darro, Jack Pennick and Paul Hurst as waterfront characters, rolls. Clever camera work amid the Maritime thrills, drama and adventure adds a tang of excitement to the vivid new production.

Is today's daughter safe because a minister has uttered certain words which privileges her to wear a wedding ring and use another name? Are there as many enforcements for a married man as there are for the modern bachelor? How worse are the parents who oftimes say, "Thank goodness, they're safely married"?

Pre and post-marital problems of a present-day couple fall beneath a revealing daylight in "Double Harness," co-starring Ann Harding and William Powell, coming to the Bell's Wednesday-Thursday matinee daily.

The picture presents Joan Colby, a modern maiden with contemporary ideas about marriage and John Fletcher, bachelor rake. Feminine artifice lure John into matrimony with Joan.

Marriage is irksome to Fletcher, torn from the freedom of bachelorhood. Learning of Joan's deception to decoy him to the altar, John has an excuse to kick over the traces. He returns to a former admirer while Joan is faced with a present of her resources These complications end in a surprise climax.

Joan and John are portrayed by Ann Harding and William Powell in "Double Harness," directed by John Cromwell. Lillian Bond, Henry Stephenson, George Meeker, Lucille Browne and Reginald Owen are in support. Thursday is Silver Treasure Night at the Belle. At 4 p.m. ten beautiful silver gifts will be presented to ladies and gentlemen in the audience. These gifts are now on exhibition in the foyer of the theatre and are considered by many the most beautiful so far introduced on any Treasure night.

MORE CREDIT NO INFLATION

Decision For Moment Arrived at in United States

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 26—(AP)—The Anti-Inflationists had it in the United States today.

But in the absence of a definite enunciation by the United States Government on its monetary intentions, there was no telling how long the Conservative victory would hold.

A three-hour conference of the high priests of finance in Washington yesterday was understood to have been concerned with the loosening of credit facilities, as against a policy of dollar inflation. Political commentators took this to mean neither the issuance of fiat money nor any of the other available means of inflating the currency in outright fashion was in the mind of President Roosevelt at the moment.

On the other hand no evident success was scored by those seeking definite Roosevelian statement on money matters. The Antis contended the uncertainty as to where the Government would end up on the inflation question was resulting in a hesitancy by industry to expand and join the recovery drive in unbridled style. Business statistics for the past month showing a general heaping of industries during the period would seem to bear out their contention.

WEARY POLICE EXPECT HELP

Power Lines Cut by Strikers And Eggs Hurled

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP)— Weary city police expected relief today from a force of 22 Provincial Police after a tumultuous night during which they were called to guard the packing plant of the Canadian Swift-Company, where a strike of about 50 employees is in progress.

Extra police were called last night after unidentified saboteurs cut high and power lines supplying the plant with electricity following an attempt on the part of about two strikers and sympathizers to storm the factory. The attackers were repelled by persons inside, who hurled eggs at them and finally dispersed them with a fire hose. One person was slightly injured when pickets engaged two workers in a brief fight as they were leaving the plant.

Fifteen extra Provincial Police arrived from Kitchener and London during the night, but others were called later. City police had difficulty in handling a large crowd that gathered outside the factory and blocked traffic until late at night when it gradually diminished as its members returned to their homes.

May Call Militia

Meanwhile reports were current Militia forces would be employed if the situation became more serious. Executives of six furniture factories whose workers are on strike for recognition stage they will not attempt to resume production Wednesday after receiving warnings from radio manufacturers that their failure to deliver cabinets would result in orders being placed elsewhere. Factories urged their employees to return to work.

The furniture manufacturers Association gave notice it would meet the demands of strikers for a formula a "code" for the industry which would include a minimum wage for workers.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

From the Serious to the Nonsensical at the Capitol

Two widely differing themes are found in the pictures on the Capitol double feature bill which opened at that theatre on Saturday, "The Children of the Big House," a harrowing expose of the school and methods, and "Goodbye Again," a gay and merry mix-up.

Dorothy Jordan, the youthful hero of "Children of the Big House," gives a fine performance as does Junior Coghlan, whom he meets in Reform School. Neil Hamilton, Pat Collins, as Junior's "pal," and Bette Davis with whom he falls in love, complete their secondary parts for the action is carried along by the junior actors. Robert Warwick is the country boy who comes to the city to befriended by Miss Gilbert, who conducts a bootlegging racket unknown to his young friends. When the place is raided Junior is blindly loyal to his "pal," refuses to talk and is sent to Reform School, where Pat has to make things right. But Pat, a weak character, would be content to hide behind the boy. In Reform School where methods are unbelievably cruel Junior Coghlan becomes a friend of the newcomer and when the former is threatened with death through a heart condition Durkin escapes to bring him to the attention of the warden. A powerful newspaper out to expose Reform School methods aids him and Pat in the final moment of crisis offers to convince the wise junior from returning on a false charge.

The performance of Junior Durkin is gripping and the scenes in the Reform School made most of the audience tense.

For the second feature one finds the handsome Warren Williams as a successful author, Kenneth Bixby, on a lecture tour. When he reaches Switzerland a former college sweetheart who has since made her husband's life miserable by holding up Kenneth's story as an example, renews her friendship and Warren is tempted but resistant to co-operate with her. Genevieve Tobin as the wife, Julia Wilson, and Hugh Herbert, who practically steals the picture, is her husband. The author's secretary-friend is Joan Blondell, and the role affords her an excellent opportunity for her breezy repartee. Wallace Ford, an attorney in love with Julia's sister, is also in the entertainment.

Julia feels a divorce is imminent and her husband is ready to leave but the author is loath to take up life with Julia and with the aid of some employ desperate measures to discourage her and is finally successful.

The two pictures, with other films, comprise a very interesting film offering.

Clever camera work amid the Maritime thrills, storms and adventure adds a tang of excitement to the vivid new production.

"Double Harness" Next

In today's daughter safe because a minister has uttered certain words which privilges her to wear a wedding ring and use another name? Are there as many enticements for the "married man as there are for the modern bachelor? How strong are the parents who oftimes say, "Thank goodness, they're safely married"?

Pre and post-marital problems of a present-day couple fall beneath a revealing spotlight in "Double Harness," co-starring Ann Harding and William Powell, coming to the Belle Thursday and Friday, matinee daily.

The picture presents Joan Colby, a modern maiden with conventional ideas about marriage; and John Fletcher, bachelor rake. A sensitive stutter lure John into matrimony with Joan.

Marriage is irksome to Fletcher, very from the freedom of bachelorhood. Learning of Joan's deception to decoy him to the altar, John has an excuse to kick over the traces. He returns to a former admirer while Joan is faced with a new test of her resources There complications end in a surprise climax.

Joan and John are portrayed by Ann Harding and William Powell in "Double Harness" directed by Jo Cromwell. Lillian Bond, Henry Stephenson, George Meeker, Lucile Browne and Reginald Owen are in support. Thursday is Silver Treasure Night at the Belle. At 8 p.m. ten beautiful silver gifts will be presented to ladies and gentlemen in the audience. These gifts are now on exhibition in the foyer of the Belle and are contributed by many the most beautiful so far introduced on any Treasure night.

Tickets sold by Rotarians are good for any performance throughout the three day engagement which commences daily at 2.45, 7.15 and 9.30.

MORE CREDIT NO INFLATION

Decision For Moment Arrived at in United States

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Anti-Inflationists had it.

But in the absence of a definite enunciation by the United States Government on its monetary intentions, there was no telling how long the Conservative victory would hold.

A three-hour conference of the high priests of finance in Washington yesterday was understood to have been concerned with the loosening of credit facilities, as against a policy of dollar inflation. Political commentators took this to mean neither the issuance of flat-money nor any of the other available means of inflating the currency in outright fashion was in the mind of President Roosevelt at the moment.

On the other hand no evident success was scored by those seeking definite Rooseviltian statement on money matters. The Anlis contended the uncertainty as to where the Government would end up on the inflation question was resulting in a hesitancy by industry to expand and join the recovery drive in unbridled style. Business statistics for the past month showing a general lagging of industries during the period would seem to bear out their contention.

WEARY POLICE EXPECT HELP

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 26 (CP) — Weary city police expected relief today from a force of 22 Provincial Police after a tumultuous night during which they were called to guard the power plant of the Canadian Swift-Company, where a strike of about 50 employees is in progress.

Extra police were called last night after unidentified saboteurs cut light and power lines supplying the plant with electricity following an attempt on the part of about 700 strikers and sympathizers to storm the factory. The attackers were repelled by persons inside, who hurled eggs at them and finally dispersed them with a fire hose. One man was slightly injured when pickets engaged two workers in a brief fight as they were leaving the plant. Fifteen extra Provincial Police arrived from Kitchener and London during the night, but others were called later. City police had difficulty in handling a large crowd that gathered outside the factory and blocked traffic until late at night when it gradually diminished as its members returned to their homes.

May Call Militia

Meanwhile reports were current Militia forces would be employed if the situation became more serious.

Executives of six furniture factories whose workers are on strike for higher wages and they would attempt to resume production Wednesday after receiving warnings from radio manufacturers that failure to deliver cabinets would result in orders being placed elsewhere. Factories urged their employees to return to work.

The furniture manufacturers Association gave notice it would meet in Toronto today and seek to formulate a "code" for the industry which will include a minimum wage for workers.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

Two widely differing themes are found in the pictures on the Capitol double feature bill which opened at that theatre on Saturday, "The Children of the Big House," gives a fine performance as does Junior Durkin in another role as young Joan Blondell.

The adults, Pat O'Brien, as Junior's "pal," and Bette Davis with Junior's love, Miss Durkin's roles have secondary parts for the action is carried along by the junior actors. Junior Durkin as a country boy who comes to the city is befriended by Pat O'Brien, who conducts a bootlegging racket unknown to his young friend. When Miss Davis is raided Junior, blindly loyal to his "pal," refuses to talk and is sent to the Children's Industrial Farm to make things right. But Pat, a weak character, would be content to hide behind the boy. In Reform School where methods are unbelievably cruel Junior Durkin becomes a friend of the newcomer sang when Pat O'Brien and accomplices break through a heart condition Durkin escapes to bring him to the doctor and doctor, the powerful newspaper out to expose Reform School methods aids him and Pat in the final moment of crisis efforts to condemn and saves Junior from returning on a false charge.

The performance of Junior Durkin is gripping and the scenes in the Reform School made most of the audience wince.

For the second feature one finds the handsome Warren William in the successful author, Kenneth Bixby, on a lecture tour. When he reaches Cleveland a former college sweetheart who has since made her husband's life miserable by nagging at Kenneth Bixby as an example, renews her friendship and Warren is anything but reluctant to co-operate with her. Genevieve Tobin as the wife, Julia Wilson, and Hugh Herbert, who practically steals the picture, is her husband. The author's secretary-fiancee is Joan Blondell, and the role affords her an excellent opportunity for her smart repertee. Wallace Ford, an attorney in love with Julia's sister, adds to the entertainment.

Julia feels a divorce is imminent and her husband is ready to agree but the author is loath to take up life with Julia and with the aid of Anne employs desperate measures to discourage her and is finally successful.

The two pictures, with other films, comprise a very interesting film offering.

WORLD'S PRODUCTION RECORD SET BY BRAMPTON JERSEY COW

19,012.3 Pounds of Milk And 1312.7 of Butter Fat in Year

Brampton, Sept. 26 — Brampton Basilus, Jersey cow owned by B. H. Bull and Son, Brampton, established a world's record for this breed of cow Monday night, when she completed the phenomenal production of 19,012.3 pounds of milk and 1312.7 pounds of butter fat in 365 days.

This great cow, according to advices, weighs only 850 pounds, yet has outproduced all other cows of all breeds the world over on three times a day milking. Only two records have been established that are higher for butter fat, it is claimed, and these were made on four times a day milking.

She is the smallest cow ever to go over the 1,200 pounds of fat in one year.

The new champion was fed and milked by George Wood, who has handled more high record Jerseys than any other man in Canada. She is the highest testing cow in the world ever to make a world's record. She also made more butter fat in one month (126 lbs.) than any other cow ever produced in that time.

"Basilus" was imported from Jersey Island, as a yearling by Bull and Son, and made an excellent record of more than 600 pounds of fat at two years. She went on her record-breaking pace as a 3-year-old. Her sire was imported by Brampton Bull and sold in Tennessee where he is still in service. His dire was also imported by Brampton Bull and is one of the outstanding animals in the pedigree of Basilus.

It is a significant fact that a former world's record cow, "Woodland Pickle," owned in New Zealand, was sired by a bull bred by B. H. Bull and Son, and exported several years ago to New Zealand. "Waggs Gladys," the great Australian cow which up to last night, was the world's record-holder for a Jersey breed is closely related to many Canada Jerseys, including the new champion.

Situation in Strike Area No Nearer Solution

By JACK HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—Tiny tanks bore down today on Stratford, where tin-hatted soldiers already were concentrated as a hostile town took added precautions to prevent a repetition of yesterday's rioting at the Swift Canadian Company's packing plant, and to stop any possible disorder when five of the city's furniture factories throw their doors open each tomorrow.

Employees of the furniture firms have been on strike nearly two weeks and the companies have announced those refusing to work will be given "adequate police protection."

Barely this morning 70 members of the Royal Canadian Regiments at London detrained here and were taken to the armories to be held in reserve for response to emergency calls or to handle any situation which might get beyond the control of the heavy police forces now stationed here.

Meanwhile a fleet of five "baby tanks—motor car supplemented opposition of travelling at good speed and armed with machine guns—was on the way to the city from London. Its arrival was delayed temporarily when one of the tanks broke down about 25 miles from Stratford and the rest waited for repairs to be completed.

A meeting of the striking Swift Company employees and their employers was scheduled for late afternoon when it was expected a decision would be reached regarding settlements of the strike.

Ask Truce Ends

The workers are asking three cents for plucking chickens, where as the rate set up by certain other separate riots occurred outside the plant yesterday and last night. Both pickets and spectators were on hand around the plaice today. All was quiet there however.

Authorities today admitted the fear that trouble might be stirred when the furniture plants re-open. The Swift Company strike was regarded as a minor affair but that of the furniture situation has created alarm.

Seeking union recognition, increase wages to 44 hour week and equal distribution of work in all departments, the furniture company, strikers have insisted they will not return to work until their demands are met. Many of the employees on strike are particularly vehement and declare no one will be allowed to enter the factories tomorrow. One of the eaders of the strike refused to discuss the matter. "I don't know if any of the older employees start back to the mills, "no one knows what may happen," he said.

"But we are prepared to stand fast and defend our rights, and I don't think anyone will enter the plant—I wouldn't myself, under the circumstances."

This afternoon strikers from a local chair factory are to hold a meeting behind closed doors. It is expected they will discuss the strike situation and outline the union's course of action. Efforts were also made to break the strike tomorrow, Stratford, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—Furniture manufacturers of this city today held out the olive branch of peace to striking employees when five firms promised to recognize the checkerfield and furniture workers industrial union on an open shop basis, provided increased wages and changed conditions, but insisted the employees must be back to work by morning or morning to take advantage of the offer.

The McLagan Furniture Company is prepared to advance piece work rates 10 percent, insists on the 50 hour week but declared its inability to pay the requested time and a half for overtime. It says the payment of a minimum of four hours wages to all men called in for work will "mean changing methods in the plant" but agrees there shall be no discrimination and that equal distribution of work will be made.

J. V. McKee Likely to Run For Mayor Backed By President

New York, Sept. 27 (CP)—Tammany since revolutionary days ruler of the political destines of New York, is "in a tough spot."

The city needs $70,000,000 in a hurry and $25,000,000 by Friday. Despite the urgings of Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York State, the bankers do not appear to be in a hurry to turn the money over to Mayor John P. O'Brien.

In addition to this Mayor O'Brien, backed by J. F Curry the boss of Tammany, comes up for re-election in a few weeks and he has stiff competition from Fiorello LaGuardia, "fusion" candidate. Still further, he may have even stiffer competition from Jo

Mother Had Flowers for Sick Room Even if Rescued from the Garbage

There's a bit of a tug to the little true story told today by one of the city's popular florists.

"Generally on a quiet day when they don't sell so well we get in the habit of throwing a lot of our cut blooms out in the garbage can. Sometimes the kids around the neighborhood don't wait for the garbage man to come and take them—they help themselves. Often they strew them all over the place. One little fellow was differens.

"I'd watched this little chap. He was maybe twelve years old. Thin looking kid, and with a worried looking little face. Looked as if he didn't get enough to eat at home. His clothes were patched and worn too, and his shoes were about as bad. Anyway, he'd come to the rear back of the shop nearly every day. Generally he'd pick out a bouquet of the best of the flowers, put the rest back, and then disappear. I was curious. Thought maybe he was selling them. Yesterday I stopped him.

"Want 'em to sell sonr?' I asked.'

"He was startled. Scared. Frightened. 'No, Sir,' he blurt. 'I-I-I just wanted 'em ——'

"Like maybe? I asked and then I regretted it.

"He took her the story. It was a 'girl' all right. But the girl was his mother and she'd been sick for years. Couldn't get out of bed. Dad wasn't working. She liked flowers—and the little boy would be a messenger boy to get all the little bouquets he could. It was easy in the summer time but now there isn't any flowers in the woods. So he tries to get what he can out of what we throw out. He hoped we didn't mind!

"The local florist didn't add to the story that two nice potted plants were missing from a window of a sick room in an upper flat in the downtown section of the city.

THIN, YELLOW STREAK SHOWS WHEN TAKEN

"Machine Gun" Kelly and Wife Plead Not Guilty of Kidnapping

CLOSELY GUARDED

Wife Vehemently Declares Parents Not to Blame

Memphis, Sept. 27.—(CP)—Still the boastful and self-confident figure, who came out of the south-west to become one of the United States' most notorious outlaws, George "Machine Gun" Kelly, made himself at home here today in a heavily guarded jail cell.

Kelly and his auburn-haired wife Kathryn, captured in a bungalow hideout yesterday, were hurriedly arraigned last night and charged with kidnapping Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man. To ensure the likelihood of their being gaining their freedom through legal channels, United States Commissioner Lester Brenner, set their bond at $100,000 each.

"Not guilty," snarled Kelly when the warrant for his arrest on the kidnapping charge was read at the arraignment. His wife also denied the charges.

"Bonds of $100,000 were also fixed for Thomas Joke J. Tichenor, crippled automobile mechanic, and his brother-in-law, S. E. Travis, as the third and fourth men captured, Tichenor told officers the Kellys rented a room from him last Friday and that he had no idea with they were.

Next Move Not Known

Just when the Kellys will be removed to Oklahoma City or what the next move in Federal officers would be was not forthcoming as John M. Keith, special agent of the Department of Justice, in charge and ordered all officers connected with the case to keep their silence.

"Not long back," Keith commented, "we had a massacre of officers in Kansas City in broad open daylight. That was the result of an much talking. We don't intend to let anything like that happen in Memphis."

The officers last night considered rushing the Kellys to Oklahoma City by plane before securing bail but Oklahoma authorities advised against this, suggesting that their removal be delayed until the conclusion of the trials there of a number of others accused in the Urschel kidnapping.

Keith, Coach Shannon and his wife, parents of Mrs. Kelly, at whose farmhouse near Paradise, Texas, Kelly spent his honeymoon, also were questioned.

Kelly mumbled to himself and grinned as he occupied the "show cell" in the county jail where Lucky Lou Gehrig read from an arrest file, and when the soldier face scanned—off shotgun in the hands of one of the arresting officers "There was a thin, yellow fluke that began to rise up in his spinal column."

DEPUTATION ASKS FOR BRIDGE

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Construction of a bridge in Prince Edward County across part of the Bay of Quinte from Prince Edward to Dezeronto was asked today by a deputation which called on Premier George S. Henry. No estimate of cost was given, but it was said the span would not be long, as the bridge would be on a fill.

The Premier said it was a matter for the municipality as the structure would not be on a provincial highway. The deputation included W. E. Tummon M.P., for Hastings South, John A. Wrese, M.P., for Prince Edward and Lennox, H. S. Collier, M.P.P. for Prince Edward, J. F. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings and E. D. Mitchell, Reeve of Deseronto.

PUBLIC DEFENDER IN CRIMINAL COURTS REMEDY SAYS STUBBS

Slightest Cost Impediment to Justice For Poor Litigant

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—A public defender in the criminal courts to defend free of charge all persons charged with breaking the law should be part of the administration of justice in the opinion of Lewis St. George Stubbs, former member of the county court of Manitoba.

"As long as society is divided into rich and poor, it's obvious that no system of administration of justice can be perfected in which the rich man won't have some 'advantage over the poor," the former Manitoba told an audience of 200 here last night. "Justice then should be made easily accessible and free of costs and nuisance," he asserted. "For no matter how high, they are never a deterrent for a rich man, but, the slightest cost is an impediment to justice for the poor litigant."

Mr. Stubbs claimed more than half of the prison population of Canada was composed of people who were in prisons to rotate, imprisoning for debt," he stated, was commonly known as contempt of court. Most of the prison population were in their predicament because they could not pay fines imposed by court, he said.

In support of his "poor law, rich law" contention, the speaker recounted a number of Manitoba convictions with which he was closely familiar, alleging it was because he had stepped in a certain case and had "tried to stop millions from being stolen" from charities, he had been ear-marked for demotion.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Showers and thunderstorms have occurred in many districts of Eastern Canada, but it has been fair and decidedly cool throughout the west, and cooler weather is extending over Ontario and Western Quebec.

Northern Ontario Westerly winds; fair and quite cool tonight; and Thursday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Strong southerly winds to northwest winds with occasional rain and becoming cooler Thursday. Fair and cool.

Kenora and Rainy River—Westerly winds; fair and cool.

Manitoba—Westerly winds; mostly fair and cool.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Mostly fair, with thunderstorms or a little higher temperature; probably a few scattered showers.

News Flashes

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 27 (AP)—John M. Keith, a special agent of the department of justice, announced that Langford Kassay, alleged and former brother-in-law of George "Machine Gun" Kelly, confessed today that Kelly sent him to Coleman, Texas, to get part of the ransom Charles F. Urschel ransom money, $72,250 of which was recovered near Coleman today.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (CP)—A trio of bandits today invaded the offices of the Garden City Brewery and escaped with bonds estimated to be worth $31,491. It was not immediately learned whether the bonds were negotiable.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Sept. 27 (AP) —Four passengers of the Hudson River Line boat "Kenmelcor" were injured and 27 endangered when a heavy Swedish freighter, the "Skeena" collided with the passenger boat in a fog today. None was seriously hurt.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 27 (AP)—Langford Ramsey, a Memphis Attorney and brother of Mrs. F. X. Trimbach, George "Machine Gun" Kelly's first wife," surrendered at police headquarters today after questioning concerning Kelly's arrest here yesterday.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP) — The 600-ton Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Co. steamer Juniata, which left Detroit at 4 p.m. Tuesday for Cleveland, struck a mile and a half below Fab-le light and today.

Early efforts on the part of tugs to lift the coal-laden vessel from the gravel-bed proved fruitless. Captain Earl McQueen, Amherstburg lumber magnate went to the ship soon after it grounded and was preparing to make further efforts to free the boat.

ARRESTED ON THRESHOLD OF HIS OWN HOME

Suspicion Man Convicted Murderer and Fugitive From Prison Camp

ASSUMED NAME

Wife Had No Knowledge of Shadow of His Past

Los Angeles, Sept. 27—(AP)— A story of alleged torture, days without food, of hours spent dangling on ropes' ends with his foot just touching the floor, of floggings and threats to kill him was told today by Ben Jones, 34, jailed by Sheriff's deputies on suspicion of being a convicted murderer and an escapee from a South Carolina prison camp.

Jones, business agent for a motion picture projectionists' union under the name of W. D. Cooper, was seized by authorities on the threshold of his home, where he was visiting a young wife, Mrs. Frances Jones, before leaving the city for a few days.

The arrest was made, Charles Allison and Harry Zahn, sheriff's deputies said on a tip received from Mrs. Isadora Gore, wife of a theatre operator, who said she recognized a picture of Jones in a detective story magazine in that of Cooper, who worked for her husband.

Denied Identity

Jones at first denied he was Cooper, the deputies said, but when they point to a scar behind his face where the South Carolina description showed a mole, Jones admitted his identity and told the story to deputies Allison and Zahn.

"A giant guard beat me off that I was to be killed for testifying at a legislative investigation of the prison, so I built a rope and went over the wall," the deputies quoted Jones as saying. "That was 10 years ago. I came straight to California and have lived here as an honorable man ever since. I was married three years ago and my wife has no knowledge of the shadow of my past."

Wife Collapses

Mrs. Jones collapsed when the deputies closed in on her husband as he was leaving their home.

"It can't be unbelievable," she cried "I know there isn't anything to it. I know he has a happy life."

"Back in 1919," Jones said, "I was charged with beating to death a young fellow I had befriended by helping him get from Birmingham, Ala., to Columbia, S.C. I was a month after I last saw him before I heard of the murder and months later before I was arrested.

"My first trial was declared a mistrial, but no money had run out and I could not hire an attorney for the second and I was convicted the second time.

NOT TO ESTABLISH PERMANENT HOOK-UP

Montreal, Sept. 27 (CP)—Canadian Radio Stations are forbidden to establish a permanent hook-up with their United States counterparts, according to an announcement made this week by Hector Charlesworth, Chairman of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission.

Mr. Charlesworth said this was the policy of the Commission "now and in the future."

The last time a Montreal station had been negotiating at Montreal-bed proved fruitless, Mr. Charlesworth said, but he made no specific reference to this case.

French language programmes would be made more frequent in the Province of Quebec, but not beyond, the Dominion, the Chairman said.

Year by Year, Shipments by Water Steadily Increase

PLAN NEW DOCK

Dredging at Narrows Will Materially Help Larger Vessels

A golden cargo—the largest shipment of cheese that has been loaded at the local port this season leaves this week from the large warehouse at the government dock on the first lap of its lengthy voyage to the British Isles.

Taxing the capacity of the small boat is the added freight of carefully selected and packed Macintosh apples, stowed in the bulging ho'd. Honey and miscellaneous freight take up the last available inch of room on the boat.

The weekly load is complete.

The pilot takes a last look of inspection. The engine grunts the wheel. Hawsers are cast off. From the engine room comes the faint tinkle of telegraph bells. The propeller churns the murky water into a white spume. A long blast of the whistle. Again the tinkle of bells from the open door of the engine room, and the little boat straightens out, gathers speed, and sets her course straight for the Gap. Her next port is Montreal. Loaded to the gunwales, she plows down the bay and is soon lost to view in the haze shore, with only the long plume of black smoke from her funnel to mark her passage.

Next week, again, the stout little boat makes port on her regular call. This time the loading process is reversed. As she warps in to the concrete dock stevedores spring into action, and slowly, rumble into the interior of the boat. From the hold in a steady stream emerges bags and boxes of farm mar- ducts and of flour...crates and cartons of

PART RANSOM IS LOCATED

Moundsville, W.Va., Sept. 27 (AP)—Charles Urschel, kidnaped at West Virginia's state penitentiary now goes "Hi Ho" Silver" to the tune of a Bise Eagle." Hi-y secnbers of the prison band are getting a "thrill out" Saturday to march in Moundsville's NRA parade—and that such night out in the prison's history.

Ada, Okla, Sept. 27 (CP) — The Hardin County American Legion Posts have set aside the 27th of spectators when the Legion parades at Chicago, and a committee here is building a float for the parade which will carry the name of Kathryn Urschel or the marshy soil of this county —onions. Samples of the home grown bulbs will be observed on the crowds.

Moe is alleged in a bill for divorce against Hanken Marcella Moe, a professional fighter, that he climbed trees and while in the upper branches emitted calls for help. Neighbors who also charged he embarrassed her while riding friends by swinging from a chandelier.

Mongoose, Conqueror of Cobra, Has Rival in Rat That Beat Rattlers

Grove City, Pa., Sept. 27 (CP)—Rikki-tikki-tavi, conqueror of cobras, has a ferocious little rival at Grove City—the rat that beat the rattlers.

He is just an ordinary white rat, but after they put him in the rattlesnake cage in Grove City Zoology Department, the tiger in the jungle book.

It seems the rodent was on the menu for the snake family's evening feast, with Stationmaster C. H. Shower his resentment by wading right into seven young rattlers and killing them.

Two older snakes resented this, however, and they rushed into the rat.

That's as far as they got, for the rat had what it takes.

After a few minutes of a lashing, hissing, snarling battle, the rodent had piled up an impossible load on points and chased the two rattlers into a corner.

Zoology students threw in the sponge for the snakes and quietly got the rat out into a safe place—for the rattlers.

The snakes will recover, but students fear they'll be no living with the rat after this.

City and District News

LILAC BUSH IS IN FULL BLOOM

Mr. Geo. Burns of this city reports the case of a clump of lilac bushes in the district has evidently lost track of the seasons. Although fall is fast approaching, on a clump of bushes growing on the Foxboro Road, about one mile south of the village, the strange spectacle of one branch of lilacs in full bloom is noticed. The rest of the bush, however, is acting with the usual conventions and has refused to sprout more than the one bouquet.

SELL NEARLY 200 CANARIES IN DAY

Two hundred little yellow chirping canaries in cages, unloaded yesterday morning at a downtown department store had nearly a dozen homes with local residents before the store closed that evening. By five-thirty o'clock in the afternoon only a few of the brightly little birds were left in the windows of the store to cook further buyers. This is believed to set a new all high record for pet stock sales in the city.

NO DEARTH OF PARTRIDGE HERE

Last year was a record year for partridges, but this year, according to reports of farmers in the district no loss has been shown in their numbers. All through the section the birds have been particularly noticeable during the past few weeks. In many cases they have become so tame as to invade corners of them feed and browse uncon-cernedly within easy range of farm house doors. The present weather is ideal conditions during the past season are fat and plump.

SLIGHT ACCIDENT AMICABLY SETTLED

Anything were rather quiet in and "down the back roller rink" for the past 24 hours. A slight automobile accident occurred on Bridge St. when a car, which had been parked by Mr. Ross, evidently shifted across the street from the driveway in which it had been parked. Mr. Ross' car was then in collided with William Harden's car on this city. Both cars are but slightly damaged and the matter was amicably settled between the parties concerned.

SPECIAL DEVOTIONS AT ST. MICHAEL'S

In observance of the Feast of the Canadian Martyrs devotion were held last evening at St. Michael's Church with a large congregation present. The special preacher for the occasion was Rev. Father Lee of J. O'Reilly, Trenton, who delivered an eloquent sermon on the lives and martyrdom of the brave and zealous pioneer missionaries who brought the light of faith to this part of Canada three hundred years ago. Solemn Benediction was celebrated by Rev. Father Powell of Brighton. Rev. Father M. E. Lacy of Derenote and Rev. C. E. Baker. Devotions were concluded by veneration of the relic of the Martyrs the pastor, Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson officiating.

THUNDER STORM CENTRES OVER CITY

Thunder rumbled and rolled over the city early yesterday morning arousing light sleepers, while lightning streaks illuminated the sky. accompanied the storm flashed through the darkness. Rain-fall showered the city and district to a depth of nearly one half inch from the first fall at two o'clock in the morning up to noon on Wednesday. According to reports from the offices of the various public utilities no damage was sustained in either the city or rural districts. A few tree branches broken on residential streets and a small amount of damage reported by the local public works. Temperatures fell with the rainfall. Wednesday's high was 72, with a low of 46.

SIX BROTHERS AND DAUGHTER ATTEND THE O.B.C.

Interesting Notes of Present Pupils and Visiting Graduates

Miss Verna Phillips of Port Hope has completed her course at Ontario Business College.

Miss Hiroshi Robertson of New Richmond, Que., has returned to the College after spending several months of holidays at her home. Miss Robertson's father and his five brothers are all graduates of O.B.C.

Among the new arrivals at the College from Quebec are Mr. J. Collingwood Hyde, Mr. Rose, and Mr. Roger Ponton, of St. Hyacinthe.

Mr. Wallace Swallow of Sherbrooke, Que., has resumed his studies at the College.

The following O.B.C. graduates recently visited the college: Mr. S. T. VanSickens of St. Louis, Missouri; Mr. Clifford Bryant of Sherbrooke, Que.; Mr. J. E. Washington of Hamilton, Bermuda; Sir Harry Wallington, Mayor of Hamilton, Bermuda; Mr. Francis McEvoy of the Dominion Steel and Coal Co., of Sidney, N. S.

Mr. McEvoy has just returned from a tour through Europe. He has also travelled extensively through the Province of Quebec and in all parts of the Maritime Provinces. He stated that everywhere O. B. C. graduates hold good positions and are remarkably successful.

Mr. Clifford Bryant is associated in business with his brother, who is also an O. B. C. graduate. They employ as their auditor Mr. Joseph H. Bryce, C.P.A., another O. B. C. graduate.

Mr. J. B. Vallis, one of the best known business men in Bermuda, and a member of the Legislative Assembly, visited friends in this city a few days ago. Mr. Vallis received his introduction to business while taking a course at O. B. C. in 1905.

The attendance is steadily increasing, as new students arrive each week. Signs of business improvement multiply and more young people now see the advantage of taking the O. B. C. courses in order to qualify for opportunities that are coming to those having the foresight to equip themselves with this superior business training.

CANADA GEESE SCARCE IN DISTRICT THIS YEAR

These Seem, Wily and They Keep Well Out of Range

Canada geese, none too plentiful in this district at any time have been unusually scarce in the district so far this season. A few flocks of the great grey birds have been reported sighted by local hunters in the vicinity of Big Bay during the past week or so, but the birds have been timid and wily and have kept well out of range. Old timers of the district declare the weather too warm for them yet and do not expect their arrival in greater numbers for some time yet —until ice thins the edges of the marshes during the early morning hours. Northern ducks have yet failed to arrive in the district in any numbers.

KIWANIS CLUB MADE PROFIT

Small Balance From Karnival Made, Used For Enterprises

"How Kiwanis weathered the depression" was the subject upon which Morton B. Bliss of Chicago and International Field Officer and Convention Manager of International Kiwanis, spoke to the local members of that organization at their weekly luncheon Tuesday.

Mr. Bliss proudly pointed to the recently growth of International Kiwanis throughout United States and Canada which he referred to as the result of the times. He assured the local members, that business throughout his district had shown a marked increase and that reflected in the various Kiwanis clubs, where new members were coming in weekly. Mr. Bliss outlined his recent survey of Kiwanis in the Eastern States and Canada and reported on the recent district convention, which was held in Montreal the week end.

Secretary Geo. Griffin to the local club also submitted his report on the district convention in Montreal and informed the local club that 660 delegates had registered. The next district convention was Quebec City, with the Province Quebec-Maritime district elected Gordon S. Doddington, of Toronto and general manager of the Wes-Canada Flour Mills, as their District Governor for the coming semester.

In his report of the recent Kiwanis Karnival, Secretary Griffin was pleased to report, that although the club did not realize the substantial profits that was made on last year they did manage to show slight balance from this year's Karnival, all of which will be turned over to the club's charitable enterprises.

President Jack MacIntosh occupied the chair and the meeting saw a large turnout of local members with a few visitors being present.

BETTER PRICE FOR APPLES

Canadian Apples Find Ready Sale on British Market

Prices better, than average this season for apples from this central section of the province, now pouring into the city in carloads for canning, a steady stream of barrels, is forecasted by Harry Peck, of the Ontario Commissioner's office on his return from taking a course in fruit judging at Hampton, Liverpool and Glasgow markets, according to a London despatch.

The outlook is especially promising for red apples, and every fruit member is quoted as saying, "Fruit is going to be in good demand." Also in excellent condition, fetching as much as one dollar per box as this is due mainly to the dearth of colored fruit. Owing to the shortage in Europe, consumers have good quality apples between now and Christmas will have to pay about last season's returns, it is reported. As 1932 was a bad year for apples in the English market to American apples, Ontario will benefit, but 10,000 boxes of Australian apples are selling at give-away prices must be cleared, stated the despatch.

MERCHANTS MEET THURSDAY MORNING

A meeting of the retail merchants of Belleville will be held in the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday morning next at ten o'clock. President John Cook, of the Retail Merchants Association, states that it is desirable in their own best interests, for every retail store in the city to attend which has for its main purpose the arranging for a special selling event this fall in which co-operation and community spirit is needed for complete success.

BLACK BASS AGAIN TAKING ALL LURES

After a period of inactivity during the past few weeks in which time the local trout have ceased to the lure or various baits, black bass in the Bay of Quinte have again displayed a willingness to bite freely whatever has been offered. During the present week several large catches have been rewarded with limit catches, and state that the fish have become more greedy than ever. Change of the weather is held by waterfront men and guides to be the cause.

ISSUING WORTHLESS CHEQUES BRINGS JAIL TERM AT TRENTON

After Finishing Sentence Man is Wanted at Toronto

Trenton, Sept. 27.—(Special)—A busy day was noted in the Trenton Police Court yesterday before Magistrate Jarrett with B. C. Donnan, K.C., crown attorney, prosecuting.

Wm. H. Fortier of Toronto appeared on three charges of issuing worthless cheques. He was sentenced to one month each on two charges and ten days on the third, sentences to run concurrently.

Fortier is also wanted by the Toronto authorities.

A local young man was sentenced to two months in the county gaol after pleading guilty to selling liquor.

A Belleville youth of 17 was given three months suspended sentence for stealing an auto.

A horse, wagon, harness and watch figured in another case. A youth was charged that he unlawfully had the articles mentioned on his death. A son claimed these but the present holder only gave up the watch.

The magistrate and crown attorney said it would have to go to high court to settle the dispute.

A local motorist and a Belleville driver each appeared on non-motor driving charges. Ten, without costs, and their charges suspended one day, settled the matter.

Eastern Star Card Party

The ladies of the Eastern Star held a successful card party in their hall on Front street, Monday evening with a good attendance present. Bridge and euchre were the games played after which a delightful luncheon was served. Mrs. J. Reynolds was the convener of the evening.

The lucky prize was won by Mrs. J. Leach.

Trenton Week

Trenton Week, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be held Oct. 14 to 21 this year.

Last year this week proved to be most successful and plans this year are even greater. Trenton Papers will issue a special edition for the event.

Prizes are now being arranged and with the united efforts of merchants and citizens the undertaking can not help to be beneficial to all.

Address On Eggs

Many chicken fanciers and breeders who missed the address delivered by the poultryman of the district last week by Dr. J. H. Neal, Associate Editor of the "National Miller", Chicago, Ill., have inquired as to the contents of the lecture on breeding and nutrition by this world famous poultry authority, brought to Trenton thru Reesor-Marmill Ltd., of Markham Ont.

The speach delivered by Mr. T. A. Benson of the Dominion Livestock Branch appeared last week and was most beneficial to the poultryman.

Mr. Neal's speech, published for those who did not attend and for all people interested in the raising of chickens was as follows:

"This meeting is to discuss the Poultry industry, to see if the poultryman has kept up since depression and to also eliminate leaks which have been too prevalent, thus making it difficult to record a profit to those who have labored long and patiently to accomplish the desired.

As recently as fifty years ago, the production of market eggs was but little known, except that eggs were a barter or trade commodity. The selling of eggs for a money consideration was rare, but the gradual changing of eggs for groceries was soon prevalent. Eventually, that practice has been abandoned, especially in sections where the production of eggs is now upon a higher level.

To-day, the poultryman, who has specialized in the growing of the kind of birds which appeal to him and who also provides for the proper optional care and management by enabling the flock to produce the class of eggs the consuming public appreciate always has at least one word to say when marketing them.

Poultry feeding should be based on the feed requirements of the birds. The nutritive value of the different feeds and how to proportion them with a particular object in view.

Necessity For Feed

Although plants can nourish themselves from such simple sources as soil, air and water, domestic birds like all animals require ready-made nutrients which they use for the several purpose of growth, maintenance and reproduction and to complete their usefulness food for meat, eggs first, feed next.

The bird requires building material for construction of new tissues and their products and as a source of energy. At all times newly formed tissues are needed for replacement of those destroyed by general wear and tear of the body. "The cells" the small units of which the tissues are composed) are constantly being worn out. These cells have to be replaced by material from the outside. During certain periods new tissues are needed for growth and reproduction, that is for formation of new body material.

The body also needs energy for production of heat, which is mainly necessary to maintain the body temperature and for all body activities including locomotion, blood circulation, respiration, digestion, absorption and excretion. These activities are the distinguishing characteristics of what is called animal life and energy consumed.

For the purpose birds need a constant supply of food. If the supply should fall short for any length of time, the bird will begin to lose weight but will live consuming their own body material until death. This usually happens within about thirty days during which time there is a loss of body weight of from twenty to fifty percent. If on the other hand, the supply exceeds the demands, that is, more feed is provided than is required for these activities the bird has the power to store the excess digested food as body fat partly or completely in a short period.

It is only recently that the thought of the quality of Eggs and Poultry meat has been considered, especially from the point of view of the credit of the commercial feed manufacturers. That the quality of the eggs has been made possible. The breed has very little to do with the quality of eggs but is due to management, hygiene, care, sanitation and feeding which makes it possible to produce Eggs of quality. Quality is also affected by candling by seeing to it that the foregoing rules are obeyed. Quality is all important. Eggs with inferior flavor, texture care and handling are as near one hundred percent as the trade demands the eggs to be.

The first step in the production of quality eggs is sanitation, followed by the preservation of the eggs after they are laid, which at least is the food. The hen eats that which imparts to the egg its flavor and texture also the color of the egg. The yolk is influenced by food the value of which are decidedly negative.

It is asking too much of poultrymen to see to it that they do their part in carrying out the above suggestions? We see no reason why they should ignore them. I refer only to the eggs when laid.

Eggs In Industry

Eggs enter into various channels of industries, the use for which apparently is increasing. Eggs in the shell and dried are used in the manufacturing of ice cream, especially frozen custards. In Germany egg yolk is used in the manufacturing of paper. Egg albumen is used in the manufacturing of ivory. Egg albumen is also used in some yolk mixed is also used in the arts. Liquid egg yolk or albumen, with a little chloroform, preservatives (mainly boracic acid), is used in the manufacturing of artificial flowers (mainly boracic acid), is used in the manufacturing of artificial flowers (mainly boracic acid), is used in the manufacturing of artificial flowers

Wrested Treasure from Sea Must Fight for It in Court

BY CHARLES SAMUELS
Central Press Canadian Writer

NORFOLK, Va.—Captain H. L. Bowdoin, grizzled ex-skipper of the Pacific, inventor and newly acclaimed king of deep-sea divers, is finding himself in a predicament that would make the blood of the mildest land-lubber boil.

Using unique diving equipment of his own design, Captain Bowdoin, a week or two ago, succeeded in recovering a safe from the sunken Weed liner, Merida, lying 340 feet under water, sixty miles off the Virginia Capes. The safe, it is believed, contains a goog portion of the $4,000,000 in gold and silver that went down with the Merida, and, it is quite possible the famous crown jewels of Maximilian and Carlotta, ill-fated Emperor and Empress of Mexico.

For 16 years the Captain has been working night and day on a plan to get this safe and another lying in the sunken vessel's treasure room. But now that he has succeeded, he can't—or rather, he thinks it ex-pedient otherwise—lay the safe at this time. This because claimants of the fabulous wealth from Davy Jones's locker have been popping up almost since the good captain announced his plans for going after it were complete.

One Claimant

One of the claimants, incredibly enough, is a London fish-peddler named William Brightwell. He asserts he is the long-lost son of the late Emperor and Empress and has served the captain with a stern "hands off the treasure" notice. Sadly, the captain has turned the rusty safe over to the custody of the United States until rightful claim can be judged by the authorities.

Captain Bowdoin's astonishing success in reaching the vessel, after some of the best deep-sea divers failed at the job, completes a cycle of melodramatic events that makes the wildest fiction seem tame.

Maximilian, brother of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, accepted the crown of Mexico in 1864. After three years of stormy rule he was killed by revolutionists, led by Porfirio Diaz, who seized the regal pair's possessions, including the jewels reputed to be worth millions. The empress escaped to Rome where she went mad.

Lost in Collision

In 1911, Diaz put the jewels and a million or so in gold and silver bars aboard the Merida, sailing for Europe. In a fog, the Admiral Farragut collided with the vessel, sending her to the bottom.

Ever since, expeditions have vainly sought to bring up the great fortune. Fred Nelson, a salvaging expert, loosed the hull in 1925 but a sudden squall wrecked his treasure hunt.

In 1916, Captain Bowdoin started his work of devising equipment that could plumb ocean depths of hundreds of feet. The ordinary diving suits have a working limit of only 125 feet.

Four successive suits, costing from $6,000 to $10,000, were constructed by the captain, only to be discarded. But early this year he completed equipment which he thought could be used in salvaging the riches on the Merida, and other lost treasure vessels.

Loses Weight

This diving suit weighs 1400 lbs. but, due to water pressure weighs only 60 pounds when depressed two hundred feet under water and has special movable joints which at that depth require only eight pounds of pressure to turn in any direction. Cables from the ship on the surface supply fresh air, power, light, and a telephone connection for the diver.

Besides this, the captain had perfected a four-ton, pressure-proof observation chamber, with exterior boom and grappling iron. Its floodlights augmented the illumination coming from the diver's shoulders.

In explaining how he so quickly located the wreck, Captain Bowdoin said: "We use a device that emits directional electric sound waves under the water. The rebound, when it meets anything as solid as the wreck, is registered, then interpreted in accurate terms of direction and distance."

Directs Salvage

Working in the observation chamber, Captain Bowdoin was able to direct the work of clearing away the wreckage from over the ship's strong room.

On his recent return to Norfolk, he said, "Only six or eight feet of sand now separate us from the rest of the treasure. From now on it's only a matter of dredging."

"The salvage ship, Salvor, which he used, he values at $112,500. Her five diving suits cost him $50,000 to build and 16 years of intense labor. And now that he's make his great dream come true, men in both London and others want to share in the treasure.

Is it any wonder that the captain grits his teeth and talks about other sunken ships full of gold that he will salvage? For, most of these, unlike the Merida, have no claims against them.

Sweeping Indian Streets for Gandhi

Has Renounced Title, Husband and Wealth to Follow India's Leader in Path of Complete Humility

By ELEANOR EARLY
Central Press Canadian Writer

Wellesley Hills, Mass. Sept. 27—Miss Cram Cook, American daughter of Mahatma Gandhi, is cleaning the streets of Bangalore, with her painted toe nails gleaming through the gust, and her robe all gray and dirty. She is carrying a little broom and a big basket. Donkeys jostle her, and camels brush against her. But Miss Gandhi puts her duties and plods along with a smile on her face and a song in her heart.

When passersby gather, Miss Cook tells them there is dignity in labor and that it is the duty of every person to clean the streets in his neighborhood. Life would be happier and children healthier, she says, if everyone did his little bit.

Creates Sensation

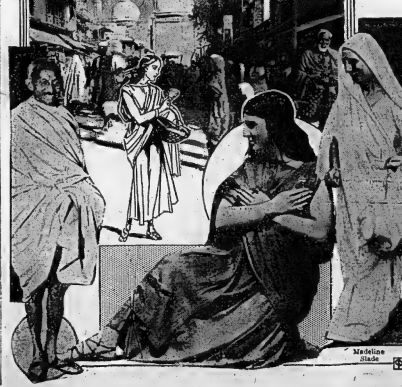
The spectacle of a beautiful and cultured girl cleaning filthy streets has brought many tourists to Bangalore, and Nila is the season's big sensation. She looks like a movie actress and acts like a college professor. She is married to an Athenian nobleman and has a small son, but she has taken very seriously and chastity, and renounced her husband and her country in order to serve Gandhi all the days of her life.

This extraordinary young woman is the daughter of the late George Cram, who founded the famous Provincetown Players. Her stepmother is Susan Glaspell, whose play, "Allison's Home," was a Pulitzer prize winner. The Cooks went to Greece when Nila was a little girl and lived the life of shepherds. They were all painted and picturesque that the king became interested in them, and sent his own tutor to educate the beautiful Nila.

Married at 18

It was the king who introduced her to Nikos Procopopoulos, and in no time they were married. Nila was 18 then, and a very spectacular figure in her cream-colored robe with a lei of scarlet flowers and her hair bound with Roman ribbons. Her cheeks were heavily rouged and her mouth was a thick with lipstick. Her bare feet were thrust in sandals and her finger nails and toe nails were blood red.

When Nila left her husband and took their three-year-old baby to India, Gandhi christened her Mela Mayhi Devi, which means Blue Serpent Goddess, and now Nila's color scheme is brilliant blue, right to her toe nails.



"My only desire," she says, "is to follow Mahatma Gandhi's faith of renunciation, sacrifice, service, celibacy and love. I know that by love humility and truth this great soul will show the world the path to salvation. I have given my property all away, and taken a vow of chastity. By prayer, fasting and meditation, I prepared myself to enter his service. Then I shall be his servant always."

Not Servant of Gandhi

Gandhi does not treat Nila like a servant, however, Madeline Slade, the disciple who went from England to join him, is the real servant of the household. She is older than Nila and plainer, and Gandhi accepts her homage as his due. It is she who serves his food on her bended knee, and launders his loin cloth and scrubs his cell. They say he speaks to her sharply when he detects his set of false teeth or wants her to massage his legs.

But Nila, writing friends in London, says that Gandhi is a saint, and utterly beyond the understanding of mundane people. In order to win his approval, she has learned Hindustani, she says, and adopted the faith of his people.

"I shall never return to America," writes Nila. "I am bringing my son up to be a Brahman. English-speaking people lead a false and illusory existence of passing pleasures which yield nothing in spiritual beauty and durable happiness.

Mussolini Shunts Balbo Into Background Position

BY SEYMOUR BERKSON
Central Press Canadian Writer

ROME, Italy—Premier Mussolini has already begun to lay the ground work for uniting Italy's ministries of war, air and navy into one ministry of defence with himself as supreme chieftain.

Ostensibly "on orders from the front" the Fascist press has suddenly begun to boom the idea and at least one deputy of the Mussolini-controlled Italian parliament has published an article urging the unification.

It is expected that the merger will take place even before Mussolini, in his newly acquired capacity of minister of war, goes to Southern Italy to review the army manoeuvres on the same ground where Napoleon and Hannibal made great glory of military strategy.

What will become of Air Minister Italo Balbo in such a shuffle has become a matter of considerable speculation.

Dims Balbo Star

It is believed, however, that Il Duce will make Italy's next most popular figure his "chief of staff." The effect of such a move would be that Balbo would be shorn of his independence of air minister and Il Duce, who does not relish too much popularity for his aides, will have scored a shrewd political move.

But the reasons for the military merger transcend personal politics, according to best informed circles.

Il Duce is anxious for Italy to make a striking gesture for disarmament at the resumption of the disarmament conference this fall. It is his belief that this is a job for a politician with complete control of the ministries affected; not a job for military experts.

It may therefore be expected that Italy may make some spectacular moves toward disarmament and economy in military expenditures, though Italians most familiar with the situation say that is unlikely the premier will surrender much in the way of military preparedness without similar concessions from France.

Change is Ballyhood

That legislative machinery may soon be started to accomplish the unification of the three Italian military ministries is indicated in an article written for the Fascist newspaper, by Giulia Pier, deputy of the Italian parliament.

He says:

"The search for an ideal military organization for our country calls for a revision not only of direction and guiding but also of spiritual preparation which must place aside the old formulas and traditions.

"This cannot be obtained but with the formation of a centralized ministry of armed forces with the effective functioning of a general staff combining land, sea and air forces. "A single budget would abolish the undesirable lack of uniformity in military budgets, it would allow of economies and would coordinate the needs of each military unit."

It is generally recognized that Deputy Pier would be unable to write thusly in the Fascist press were he not expressing the sentiments of Mussolini himself.

Calls While People Selfish

People of the North American continent are thoroughly selfish, and I want to render some useful service to humankind and to them. In New York, people would say that I am mad, but in India I am accepted as the Mahatma's disciple."

Mahatma is a Hindu title of great respect. It means, literally, the "great-souled one." Miss Slade calls Gandhi "Bapu", which means "papa" or "father"; and for six years she has been his shadow. She walks at his heels like a strange apparition, clad in a white robe, with a madonna-like hood, and though she is very meek, she has never cleaned a street to prove her humility.

SAYS MRS. MOODY IS NO "POKER FACE"

"I do not think Mrs. Moody deserves the nickname 'Poker Face', recently remarked the noted "On-looker" of the London Mail of the American Twain star. "She has a wonderful sense of humor, is a brilliant conversationalist, and is always ready, even on the couch, to praise and smile at her opponent," he continued.

"She certainly knows how to concentrate, but not to such an extent as to be ultra-clinical. Her eye shade hides her smile from the crowd; it is her opponents who profits; how pleased she is as an adversary."

HIGHER RAILWAY SPEEDS

In every country railways are aiming at higher speeds. The wonder is they have not gone so before. Even before the close of the last century engines hauled trains at speeds which make a modern engineer gasp. As long ago as 1893 the Empire State express touched a speed of over 112 miles an hour, and within ten or eleven years seven other American trains had exceeded the 100 miles, the record being 120 miles established by the Plant system in 1901 between Fleming and Jacksonville. Even in 1848 a Great Western Railway train ran between London and Didcot, 53 miles, at an average speed of 58 miles an hour. That was only about 15 years after the invention of steam locomotives. There was a remarkable series of races between the east and west coast railway systems from London to Aberdeen in 1895, a distance of 540 miles, when an average speed of over 63 miles an hour was maintained.

Commenting on this the St. Thomas Times-Journal says: "Obviously, railway companies everywhere, with their far more powerful engines, could have speeded up, but they have been content to "jog along" at averages of 50 to 60 miles on long journeys.

"Why have they done so? Why has progress in railway speeds been so slow in comparison with speeds in other methods of transportation?

"Manifestly executives felt that railways were a monopoly. They failed to foresee the ubiquity of the automobile and that it would become a powerful rival for passenger and mercantile traffic. The railways were too complacent and self-satisfied to anticipate competition.

"W. K. Vanman, president of the Union Pacific, states that the time is not far distant when streamlined aluminum trains will cross the continent at 90 miles an hour. As a matter of fact such trains have already been seen in Germany.

"More speed is one of the ways in which the railways may meet the competition of the truck and the private car. If people can be shown that a train can take them to a destination in less time it would be quite to go by automobile they will use the trains more. Those who are travelling for pleasure will still use the car, but to people who are going somewhere because they have to, time will be an important consideration."

"WHEN WILL CHINA QUIET DOWN?" GOES UNANSWERED

Ever since O. M. Green's return from the Far East, people have been tormenting him with the question, "Will, and when is China going to settle down?"

A "fed-up-ness" he calls it, and asks "which China do they mean?"

"Not counting Manchuria," he tells us, "there are at least five Chinas—Canton in the South; Nanking in the Centre; the North (in a generally fluid state very difficult to define); the huge Western Province of Szechuan; and the Communists."

Will they ever settle down? Just now, he reports in The Nineteenth Century—and After (London), the prevailing feature is incoherence and endless political association, vociferating their own nostrums.

In the midst of all this, "New China is becoming new Chinese," and "Old China is beginning to peep out of its shell."

Nevertheless, Mr. Green discerns the growth of something like a steady purpose, and he is convinced that, more or less more, old and new must tend to draw together for the production of some workable system, "moulded by Western example to modern needs, but tested and approved by Chinese custom and instinct."

EUROPE'S WHISPERING GALLERY

Czecho-Slovakia's geographical situation indicates its high political significance. Its western part, the ancient kingdom of Bohemia, is as huge Slav peninsula thrust out in the sea of Germany territory. Its central portions abut on Poland, under the Carpathians to the north, and on Austria and Hungary toward the Danube in the south. At the east is Rumania. If such a queer-shaped country can be spoken of as a centre, says Robert Machray in the London Saturday Review. Czecho-Slovakia is the centre not only of Central Europe, but of the Continent, and responsive to every sound, and listening even to every whisper in Prague, its capital.

YOUR THOUGHTS

Think of the loveliest thing you know,
Clasp it and keep it as you go,
Through your thoughts ringing,
In your heart singing;
Lovelier then will your whole life grow.

Think of the kindliest, bravest deed
Ever a man did for one in need;
Facing blame boldly
While the world coldly
Judged him, and failed all his greatness to heed.

Though you be mocked at and misunderstood,
Fear not the mob and its cynical mood;
Do you shun sadness?
Would you gain gladness?
Keep your thoughts brimming with beauty and good!

ON THIS DATE in 1856 Ontario was staggered with the news that the steamer Niagara had been burned on Lake Huron with heavy loss of life. Thus starts a very interesting account of this tragedy in Monday's Ontario Intelligencer, by Fred Williams, who contributes an old-time feature to this paper every day under the caption "On This Date." Fred Williams digs deep and digs well and interesting incidents in Canadian history in a way which is refreshing and educational. PUNT SAILING, which has become so popular this summer, provides splendid exercise for the young lads of Belleville who build, launch and sail their own craft. Not only that but the white sails which now dot the Bay of Quinte lend an old-time savour to the scene and add just the required touch of movement to make the scene one of rare beauty.

RING LARDNER, who brought joy and laughter to millions of newspaper readers is dead from that dread disease, "the white plague," otherwise known as tuberculosis which he battled for a long time. Ring had a wonderful sense of humor despite his physical infirmities, and could transmit laughs and chuckles through the medium of the printed page in a manner which won him many friends. fame and considerable fortune. Ring Lardner fought a good fight and died at the age of forty-eight. He lived with a laugh and died with a chuckle. He enjoyed this life despite pain, weakness, and worry, and expected to find a better world of love and laughter just over the hill which had been such hard climbing. "You Know Me Al" was one of Ring Lardner's expressions which gained wide vogue. His plays "Elmer the Great," and "June Moon" were successful and among his stories "The Story of a Wonder Man" and "Love Nest" stand out as leaders in the light literature of Ring Lardners day.

Some of the best anecdotes take years to circulate. This one, about the Prince of Wales as a child, though dating back some years, is well worth repeating.

The Prince was once talking to King Edward about Roosevelt, who was at that time President of the United States.

"Mr. Roosevelt is a very good man, isn't he?" he queried.

"President Roosevelt is a very clever man," replied King Edward.

For a time the Prince did not speak, but went on turning the leaves of the album through which he was looking, and which contained the President's portrait. The next day he said to the King. "I have changed Mr. Roosevelt's portrait from the Album of Rulers to the album where the clever men are!"

RARE DISEASE BEFORE FORTY IS PARALYSIS

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D.
Fellow American Medical Association in Health and Psychology

"Paralysis Agitans" which may be looked upon as a kind of premature senility, is rare before forty. After that it is really, more common than one might think. Unfortunately, this disease is progressive and chronic, because it is a disorder of the organic nervous system.

Three striking symptoms are to be noted in all cases. These are tremor, muscular rigidity and muscular weakness.

Most of the cases develop between the ages of fifty and seventy, and, as a rule, the symptoms are slow to reveal themselves. Occasionally an exceptional case appears suddenly and makes headway quickly.

Once the disorder is fully developed, the patients present a typical picture in the way they look and in their manner of walking.

The tremor already referred to is usually most noticeable in the hands, and is of a distinct type that might be described as a "pill-making." That is, the hands shake only slightly, but rapidly, instead there may be in some cases a more or less constant movement of the thumb and forefinger, which act in a way that suggests the rolling of a pill. Sometimes, however, the legs become affected also, and occasionally the head. This is most marked at the ankles. When the tremor develops in the head, inclination is up and down in a vertical plane, not from side to side.

Muscular rigidity, the second outstanding symptoms, is shown by stiffness of the neck muscles, stiffness of the muscles of the back, in addition to which the patient to be awkward in all his movements.

Not only are all muscular movements rigid, but there is also present marked weakness. Even the act of standing may become difficult. Usually the weakness is first noticed in those parts where the tremor is most marked.

In standing and walking, patients with paralysis agitans bend the head forward, with the arms somewhat flexed. The effect is to give the impression of being about to start running. Indeed, they often find it difficult to run than to walk.

The face in this disorder deserves special comment. It is markedly expressionless; there is little play in the face muscles when an attempt is made to express emotion. The face actually looks like a mask. The eyes are staring and rather wide.

Although the disease is considered incurable, it often is improvable, and its progress may sometimes be arrested. Drugs are of doubtful value. Gland treatment is beneficial.

Sufferers from paralysis agitans do best in warm, dry, sunny climates. They should be protected to cold and damp weather, while freedom from worry and excitement of all kinds is essential. A hopeful and cheerful attitude should always be fostered.

Paralysis Agitans is also known as Shaking Palsy and as Parkinson's Disease. The last name is derived from the fact that Parkinson, in 1817, differentiated the tremors as belonging to a distinct disease, different from all others then recognized.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

The diet in view of the stomach should consist chiefly of milk at first—about two quarts a day—later adding three eggs either raw, poached or soft-boiled. After acute symptoms have subsided, perhaps in a week or longer—well-cooked cereals may be given, also mashed potatoes, milk toast, rice, orange and other fruit juices. When the ulcer has healed, fish and well-cooked, tender meats are allowed, in addition to the above.

CANADA'S FIRST CAMP MEETING

ON THIS DATE, in 1805 the first Methodist camp meeting in Upper Canada, and seemingly in all Canada, opened at Hay Bay, Bay of Quinte, on the farm of Peter Huff, near the first Methodist chapel at Adolphustown. The leader on this occasion was Rev. William Case, a pupil of William Losee, the first Methodist preacher in the new province.

The attendance at this first camp meeting was not large; but the ground was broken and the way paved for other gatherings of the same sort. As the country became more thickly settled and the difficulties enlarged camp meetings became more frequent and in time an annual outing which was looked forward to as a break in the monotony of life in the bush. The aim of the crowds varied; sometimes there were as many as 3,000 and even 5000, and perhaps ten or twelve preachers.

There was a good deal of religious hysteria at these gatherings and much of the preaching was of a hell-fire and damnation and hell fire type which in a way of degeneration would seem to the listener; praying for circling would be formed to prepare the repentant for the sinners' bench; often men or women actuated by the strange influences around would be brought forward and there would be a wailing, shouting, moaning, lamentation, and their recovery was regarded as a miracle.

Naturally a difference of opinion prevailed regarding the value of camp meetings with their noisy expression and their attendant phenomena. Some of the settlers and writers of the period, chiefly of the educated class, declared their efficacy and wrote in a critical way of them, holding that they seldom took place near the towns where the people had the benefit of an educated minister, but that they occurred on the borders of civilization and preached a religion of fanaticism and vanity. But the established these meetings, adopted later by the Methodists, by some of the Presbyterian congregations burned the thoughts of many to God and the change in the lives of many of the participants were so marked as to have wide influence. George F. Playter, in his History of Methodism (Church, 1862) notes: "The young had forsaken their frivolities and were now serious, fond of the Bible, and seeking knowledge to make them useful. Those indifferent to religion, lovers of pleasure and not lovers of God, were now ashamed of their conduct and lovers of the Sabbath. The quarrelsome had learned, in meekness and love, to bear with the evil ones and to forbear. Many drunkards had substituted a heart in the house of God for the tavern, the psalm and the hymn for the song of revelry and cleanliness and sobriety for rags and filthiness."

Looking back at a perusal of a number of books on the subject one is inclined to believe that the camp meetings and their revivals were not all bad. There was did much good in the mass, though now and then their early enthusiasm to the asylums, victims of religious insanity. The churches got the harvest of the camp meetings, just as in our own generation the churches have benefited by the soul saving missions of the Salvation Army.

ENOUGH FOOD FOR 3 DAYS

Disease, Hunger And Thirst Add to Terrors of Tampico

(By Clark G. Leo)

Tampico, Mexico, Sept. 27 (AP)—Disease, hunger and thirst threatened to add their terrors today to those of floods and storms which four days ago brought death and destruction to this area.

An official estimate placed the dead at 50 and the injured at more than 800, but it was feared, that many more bodies were buried in the city-wide ruins and that the number hurt may total well over 1,500.

The slide of wheat was sufficient to last three days more and other food supplies were nearly gone. Medical and food articles have been sent from Mexico, but their arrival was problematical because of disrupted rail service.

Residents started the disheartening task of rebuilding their homes or awaited help from outside. Much of the city lay in ruins, the harbor, filled with mud and debris, could not be used. Residents had to take water from small private wells for fear public water systems might be contaminated.

Troops, to the southwest, came word that 3,000 there were homeless and desperately in need of food, but Tampico could do nothing to help.

Hospitals were crowded with injured, buildings inhabitable to any extent were pressed into service.

Nearby towns sent out appetite for aid, although the hurricane and floods had caused extensive damage. It was feared that a heavy loss of life had occurred in the Tumilla district, on the right bank of the Panuco. All small boats in Lianos Del Golfo were demolished.

General Anselmo Macias, Director of relief work, said every building in Tampico was damaged.

DROWNED IN CANAL

B. C. I. Senior Grid Squad Grouped with Lake Shore Teams for Coming Season

Oshawa, Lindsay And Peterboro Other Teams in Loop — COMPACT GROUP

Coach Orders Team To Start Heavy Drills For Season

After considerable effort on the part of the local executive of sports at the Belleville Collegiate it was announced last evening, that the B.C.I. senior entry into the Lake Shore group of the O.S.S.A. Inter-ball series had been accepted and that the champion Belleville senior squad would now be grouped with Peterboro, Oshawa and Lindsay, making a compact four teamed group.

Although the schedule for the entire season has not been agreed upon as yet Coach Shiels announced this morning, that the Oshawa collegiate seniors were booked to open the season here on Saturday next, Sept. 30th. Despite the fact, that the local senior squad have not been drilling as frequent as they might have this fall, owing to their inability to procure a grooping previously, they need but a few additions to their present ranks to assure them of a team worthy of representing the local tri-colors.

The B.C.I. seniors were strike champions of the O.S.S.A. football honors were a welcomed addition to the Lake Shore group who previously boasted of but three clubs, Coach Shiels stated that the senior gridders with but two exceptions will have practically all filled before the end of the week, are equally as good as his 1932 title holders.

Asks Postponement

Coach Shiels forwarded a request to the league executive, honorably stating for a postponement on Saturday's game versus Oshawa to be played here in Belleville, as he is in charge, the playing field and other matters pertaining to making the opening day a success have been thrown into the hands of the local football too hurriedly and his request was granted by the executive.

The Peterboro dates with Belleville were announced as being Oct. 7th, and 28th, one game being scheduled in each city.

The local tri-color seniors were at once informed of the sudden move and emergency practices have been called by Coach Shiels in preparation for Saturday's game with C.I. senior game. All senior games in the Lake Shore group will be played on Saturday with the Junior Bay of Quinte games scheduled for Friday's this season. "Red" Legon of Interboro baseball and hockey fame, has been named as coach of the Peterboro gridders this year.

More authentic information relative to the personnel of the local senior champions will be forthcoming as soon as Coach Shiels manages to get his squad down to heavy practices.

20TH WIN FOR BEN CANTWELL

Boston Pitcher One of League's Outstanding Hurlers

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer).

If Ben Cantwell had remained with New York Giants, the club which first brought him up in the National League, he might be one of those stars, who are figuring prominently in the World Series "dope."

Instead he was traded to Boston Braves in his second year of big league service and toiled for Boston without much success until he suddenly burst forth this season as one of the league's outstanding hurlers. The lean right hander, was right at the top of the list today with 20 games won and nine lost.

Cantwell chalked up victory No. 20 yesterday at the expense of the champion Giants, beating them for the fourth time this year 5-3.

The fates were with the Boston hurler yesterday. He was tied for 10 hits while his rival, Roy Parmelee, granted only six but he gave only two bunches of hits and Boston equalled one of them to make the score 2-2 at the end of the first and won out, when Pinkey Whitney drove home run with two on base in the third.

The victory preserved Boston's chances of finishing in the first division. By winning their two remaining games they can pass St. Louis Cardinals if the Cards lose their last two.

The Phillies and the Brooklyn Dodgers, seventh and ninth respectively in the National League and with no chance of going higher, played the only other game on the big league programme. The Phils, closing their home season with an exciting ninth inning rally, won 3-2 and made it a little more certain that they will finish ahead of the cellar dwelling Cincinnati Reds.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Fair Volume of Selling a in Market at New York —Some Issues Lose Two Points All Groups on Toronto Board Ease Mode rately in Slow Trading

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Sept. 27—(CP)— Quiet selling characterized the Standard Mining Exchange market today with prices gradually easing to lower levels. Unloading was not sufficiently urgent to cause a break anywhere and prices held within a limit of about $1.75.

International dropped below $20 for the first time in several weeks. It sold at $19.70 around mid-afternoon, and recovered to $19.85 where it was off 45 cents. Noranda showed a loss of 75 cents, Hudson Bay 75, Falconbridge 5 and Base Metals Corporation 10. Sherritt was off 5.

Dome, McIntyre and Lake Shore were the weakest of the senior dollar group. Lake Shore dropped to $46.75, down $1.25. Dome fell to $34.50 and McIntyre $1.75 to $46.75. Pioneer sold at cents, Hollinger 25, Teck 10 cents.

A weaker New York market, lower quotations on the gold and silver and lower wheat markets all combined to unsettled the mining shares from the opening. Losses up to $1.50 were registered for the senior gold shares at the end of the second hour and Base Metal stocks not much behind.

Selling was more insistent than the buying in Hedley issues and the issue also eased back. It improved in the afternoon.

Volume was low in the early trading over the whole board.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 27.—(CP)—Toronto Stock Exchange wound up an all-round week session with a tendency to firmness and volume buying in slow trading. There was a fair turnover in Walker's Common, International Nickel and Brazilian but the general trade was at low ebb.

SLIPPERY ROADS RESULTS IN SKID

Slight injuries from flying glass were sustained by Mr. J. O. R. McCurdy of this city this afternoon when a large roadster being driven by him on No. 2 Highway, left the road near the Cherry Valley Dairy Farm, west of the city, and skidded into the ditch. Some damage to the top and fenders was caused the machine, Mr. McCurdy was assisted by a passing car to a local physician where the minor injuries were treated.

CLOSED SEASON ORDERED

Claresholm, Alta., Sept. 27 (CP) —Farmers of the Northern light district around here have declared a closed season on all birds in an effort to combat the grasshopper menace. They hope non shooting will encourage pest-eating birds to remain in the area.

Pay For Dead Rats

Malden, Manchuria, Sept. 27 (AP)— In an effort to stop the spread of the Bubonic Plague, which has raged unabated here in this area, the government today offered to pay a penny each for rats, carriers of the disease.

In the Nunggan district 281 persons have died.

BODY RECOVERED

Quebec, Sept. 27 (CP)— The body of Ole Hanson, 50, engineer of a dredging scow, was recovered by a diver today, three days after Hanson was reported missing. Hanson had apparently fallen from the scow into the St. Lawrence River. He is survived by his widow and three children in Welland, Ont.

HUNT ESCAPED MEN IN WOODS

Party of Ten Convicts Split After Leaving Penitentiary

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 27 (CP)—An army of police and private citizens today searched a wooded area near Chesterton in an effort to capture four of 10 escaped convicts from the Indiana City State prison and rescue Sheriff Charles Noel of Gordon, Ind., who was kidnapped by the felons.

The four convicts were reported to have entered the woods on foot after they had wrecked the Sheriff's car near Wheeler, as well as another automobile they commandeered from Cecil Stalnet, a farmer of near Valparaiso, Ind. Stalnet's car, with one wheel broken, was found about 10 miles north of Valparaiso. Stalnet was compelled to drive the four desperadoes and their captive Sheriff to Wheeler. He escaped, while they were getting gasoline at a filling station.

Five others of the 10 convicts, who fled from the penitentiary yesterday were arrested when the farm home of William Ferner near Wanatah, where they had gone, until nightfall last night. They terrorized Werner and his family, and then fled in the direction of Lafayette, Ind., still using an automobile taken from Herbert Van Valkenberg of Oswego, Ill.

Van Valkenberg's wife and Mrs. Minnie Schultz, 23, a relative were with him at the time. All of them were forced to get out of the car, but none was harmed.

The 10th member of the fleeing band of convicts was believed to be hiding in the city or nearby.

One group of the escaping men seized Sheriff Noel and his car near the prison shortly after he had committed to the penitentiary James Sandage, who is now in a 10 year sentence for slaying his father.

SUCCESS OF MOVE PROVED

Abundant Crop Yield Average in Soviet Russia

By STANLEY P. RICHARDSON

Moscow, Sept. 27.—(AP)—With machines and unlimited political power as weapons, the Soviet Government appears to have won a decisive struggle with peasantry in the collectivization of farms.

At stake was the introduction of political sections into machine and tractor stations which are the larger proportion of socialized farms.

This year the state has established a right supervision of commissar of agriculture by the Communist party in somewhat the same manner as used so successfully in the Red army. Political sections and foreign agricultural experts agree—that the general organization of the present farms has proved the success of the move.

In contrast to the disastrous winter and spring in the principal grain regions in the Ukraine and North Caucasus because of peasant incomprehension of the which the political sections are designed to present—first-hand observations made in those area by the Associated Press Correspondent seem to confirm Government's claims of an abundant crop—yield average this year. By mid-September the Ukraine and North Caucasus were three months ahead of last year in grain deliveries to the Government.

PLAN DEFENSE OF ALL LANDS

Reclaim Swampy Forests And Plains Under Dispute

Buenos Aires, Sept. 27 (AP)—Paraguay is now organizing a comprehensive project for defending the Gran Chaco, the vast borderland of swamp forests and plains over which she has been in dispute with Bolivia for years.

This plan, it was authoritatively learned today, includes the construction of 250 miles of railroads, the building of strategic highways, and arrangements for the immigration from Western Canada of many Mennonites and from Europe 10,000 Cossacks whose passage a "distinguished Partisan" has agreed to finance.

The Paraguayan War Ministry will assign several regiments of engineers to assist in constructing the railways, which will be designed to enable the uninterrupted provisioning of troops in the most remote sectors.

All civil engineers in Paraguay will be mobilized for building the roads, along with an entire military division of engineers under Captain Caballero Irala, an experienced Chaco campaigner.

General Ivan Belaieff, who came to Paraguay from Russia after the war and who made an honorary general in the Paraguayan army for his services in the Chaco, will be sent to Europe to arrange the Cossack movement.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE AT ST. JOHN'S, MADOC

Madoc—In St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, the Canadian Home Thanksgiving service was held on Sunday morning, September 24th, following Sunday School where the special Thanksgiving lesson was given.

The church was gorgeously decorating with Autumn fruits, leaves and grains, and beautiful flowers and potted plants. The Altar and Lectern were decked with white asters and scarlet gladioli, and the pulpit held vases of roses and sweet peas. Font and Memorial Window and Chancel windows held loads of fruit and flowers, while the ledges were laden with apples, large and small. A good congregation were assembled when the strains of "Come Ye Thankful People, Come," opened the beautiful service. This was followed by the solemn chant, "Ye Decent" as a special act of Thanksgiving. Other hymns used were "We Plough the Fields and Scatter," and "The Sower Went Forth Sowing," used as the Recessional Hymn. The address by the choir was "Now Thank We All Our God," the choir taking the full chorus, while the tenor solo was splendidly taken by Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne. His Honour Ainsworth presided at the pipe organ throughout the service. The offertory was received while all stood to join in "Praise God from Whom all Blessings Flow." HARBOR COMMISSION beer...hardware and other assorted freight. All are taken from the dark hold and piled in neat rows in the large warehouse. Then the process is reversed. Again coming the loading of cheese—thousands of boxes of it—apples, canned goods, honey, and other produce from this district, destined again for the British Isles.

Weekly Procedure

It's the usual weekly procedure as the local dock. Each month hundreds of tons of produce are shipped from here on the boat for Montreal, from which it will again be unloaded and loaded onto larger boats for the trip across the sea. Each month sees also the unloading from the boat of hundreds of tons of sugar, flour and other freight. In between times huge freighters and oil tankers call at irregular periods and discharge their cargoes for local consumers and concerns.

Last year the port of Belleville broke all existing records since the days of old time shipping in this district, for the amount of freight handled at the government dock. Shipments out of the city reached the highest total in years, while shipments into the city also climbed steadily to a new high total. This year, it is believed by Harbormaster Robert Goudy the figure may be equalled, and even passed.

Pressed for a reason for the increasing amounts of tonnages taken off and despatched from boats making their calls at the port, harbor men will tell you it's the increasing interest displayed by all classes of merchants and previous men in water way shipping. A few years ago, shipping was almost dormant. Only a few small boats and oil tankers, which called at the local port kept the dock warehouse open during the summer season.

Gradually, however, fostered by the interest displayed by those associated with the advantages of water shipping, and who have helped the cause along, boats began making their regular calls to the local port, and traffic again threatens to assume the proportions of the old-time days when the port was known all along the lakes.

Wide Area Direct Route

Something lies behind this increased interest displayed by factors in the city who are advancing the cause of shipping by water. In part it is the tremendous increase in traffic from the local docks, the opening of which has been satisfactory.

Cargoes now loaded on boats, which make their regular weekly calls must also be unloaded at Montreal, and then again loaded on the larger steamers for transhipment across the Atlantic. Not yet is Belleville in a position to care for the larger boats, which may be able to make the sea passage direct from the city, but it is toward this end of making this city a direct port for Great Lakes and sea, going freighters, that local men are working.

Already, through representation made by the Harbor Commission and Chamber of Commerce, considerable dredging in the harbor has been done this year. It has been work-ing basin for the larger boats has been deepened out south of the present dock, and from there deepening of ship channels has been carried as far as the Schnarr's dock. At present there is sufficient draught for even the large coal boats to make port.

Further plans of the Harbor Commission call for the construction of a complete new wharf, with plenty of available dockage facilities, and room for the construction of sufficient storage sheds to care for the largest amount of freight. It is admitted by the harbor scheme, but it is not the idle dream of a few interested parties. Belleville business men with sound acumen and business sense are backing the project solidly.

Plans of the new proposed dock which will be constructed of concrete, and run easterly, south of the present dock, provide for a resting dock to a point almost at the foot of Church street. The harbor bottom will be dredged to sufficient depth to care for the largest boats. The material, which is to be removed from the bottom will be deposited behind the dock and used to reclaim land which is now under water, and with the fill extending from the shore line to the new dock considerable new ground will be reclaimed upon which to build storage sheds will be erected. Tentative plans of the scheme have been drawn up, and engineering project have also been made by members of the Commission.

In this fight for recognition as a sea port Belleville is definitely vieing with competition from other cities and towns along the line. This city however, according to optimists of the various boats now entering is situated ideally as a deep water port. Some dredging in the harbor and through the Bay of Quinte will necessary to care for the biggest type ocean-going freighters, but the port is declared to be naturally and when compared with the profits, that will accrue. The sheltered position the local port employs and the favorable location of the inland route through the Bay of Quinte was declared by one skipper to greatly favor this city.

There will be no let up in the matter of making Belleville a deep sea port, promise members of the local Harbor Commission, and in the meantime year by year, with the increased interest, which has been shown, new records are being hung up annually for amount of freight handled and for each season.

SIX INJURED DURING RIOTS LAST NIGHT

Strike Torn Stratford Liable to Have a Settlement Today

3 RIOTS TUESDAY

City Resembles Armed Camp as Police Surround Factories

By JACK HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 27.—(CP)—Stratford's fourth day of unrest awakened today with a hope of settlement of its labor disorders—disorders which Tuesday night led to serious proportions in the city's history. Factory workers, employees of the Swift Canadian Company, spear point of a labor attack which has resulted in the greatest collection of police here in many years, will have decided whether to accept offers held out to them last night by officials of the company.

Three separate riots during yesterday and last night which resulted in the injuring of at least seven, culminated in the statements of Swift company officials they were prepared to meet with employees this afternoon to determine whether or not the strikers' demand for a five-cent rate for chicken plucking would be granted. At present the company pays two cents for demanding of each chicken.

Hopeful attention turned, today from the Swift plant to six furniture factories last night secured to which have declared their intention of re-opening and which have announced row to striking employees with the promise of "adequate police protection" for all who desire to return to work. Strikers from these plants met last night and were unable to stand [illegible] to their request for increased wages. The city was tense as reports were abroad older employees of the furniture concerns were ready to return to work, while the younger element is determined not to accept the proposals of the manufacturers.

No "Breakers" At Work

Rain early last night assisted police in clearing the grounds surrounding the Swift packing plant after a brief skirmish between police and strikers which left the latter in possession of the plant. Stationed at regular intervals, strike breakers were still in the packing plant, the strikers rushed the place, hurling rocks and fighting furiously. A two-man committee inspected the work and manner of the building, and reported to the crowd there was no one in the plant other than the police guards. Police increased during the night, but still pickets kept their vigil. An armed guard of police was mounted on the loading plat-

A sensation has been caused in Canadian political circles by the seduction suit brought against Hon. John E. Brownlee, premier of Alberta, and member of Canada's royal commission on banking, by 18-year-old Vivian McMillan of Edmonton. The statement of claim alleges that Premier Brownlee brought Miss MacMillan to Edmonton from Edson, Alberta, where her father is mayor, and holds a prominent position, with the Canadian National Railways. It is understood that Premier Brownlee secured a position in the government for the girl who states that she was seduced under threat of losing position. The suit is for unstated damages.

"ISLAND GIRL"

by Frank R. Adams

SYNOPSIS

Vernon Mabyt, wealthy young New Yorker, sighs for adventure, but can find no suitable outlet when all give him the desired thrill. Walking home with his friend Dodd Speed, Vernon deplores the lack of romance in the world. As they do, friends see an old man ejected from an old-fashioned restaurant. The old man hammers on the door and is beat by two men. Vernon and Dodd join them.

CHAPTER II.

Dodd may not have been looking for action but he was not the sort of man who allows a friend to be beaten up by a couple of thugs, so he hunkered over to the fracas and joined masterly in. The misunderstanding probably lasted an exact as five minutes. It is a question as to who won the fight. The two strangers left the field but perhaps it was only because they got tired. Anyway they were able to disappear very swiftly.

That is more than could have been said of the other three. The old gentleman who had instigated the riot in the first place seemed to be completely out. Both Vernon and Dodd were pretty well bruised up and their clothes were torn.

"This old chap seems to be badly hurt," said Vernon bending over him. "We ought to get him inside somewhere and see what is the matter."

The only house on the street that is lit up," commented Dodd, "is that one from which he was just thrown out. I don't think it would be wise to take him in there."

Vernon was brushing himself. "I believe we can carry him over to my place. It is only around the corner."

This they managed to do. The old gentleman did not seem to have complete control of his faculties but when they held him up on either side he did contrive to take a few steps. So by alternately resting and proceeding they managed to make the two or three hundred yards that lay between them and Vernon's house. A moving van was backed up in front of the areaway which lay between Vernon's house and the next door on the right. They noticed it as soon as they turned the corner. "Looks as if someone were moving out," Dodd observed.

It is a darn poor time to be moving, I should think. I hadn't heard that either of my neighbors was going away."

They had no breath for further speculation on this subject. Beside the motor of the van was starting and drowned out their voices. Two men who had been carrying out a piece of furniture lifted it into the van and jumped in themselves. The van drove away.

As they approached the front door the dance of rather tinkling music percolated through as if a large jazz orchestra were playing for a grand ball inside.

"If Vernon must have left the radio turned on when he left," said Vernon letting himself in with a latchkey, "I am sorry now that I told him he could go home for the night. If he were here we could get a

Vernon stopped short in his speech. He had entered the living room and he turned on the light. It was absolutely barren of furniture. Even the rug was gone.

"For the love of Mike!" he cried. "Somebody has broken in and cleaned out the house!"

"And the thieves kept the radio going to cover the noise they were making."

"Here, you hold this bird," Vernon suggested, pushing all the weight of their guest forward his friend while he himself went toward the rear of the house punching light switches as he went. Practically everything had been taken. The dining room table and the grand piano's were still there. They were both massive and would have had to be taken apart. Also in the study room was the radio. The radio receiver built into the wall and panelled to match the woodwork. Otherwise the place was empty.

The same was true of the bedrooms upstairs. Everything was gone, even the beds and the contents of his closets. When he came down to report, the host he had found that Dodd had deposited the old gentleman on the floor in a corner of the room and was pouring water on his head from a battered coffee-pot that had apparently been disdained by the vacuum cleaners who had just left.

"I suppose you carry burglar insurance," said Dodd.

"Yes, but only a couple of thousand dollars. Nobody would ever dream that thieves would move out the entire works. We've got to do something with this chap. He may be badly hurt. Go shut off that radio so we can hear ourselves think."

Before Dodd could reach the modern magical apparatus the current had substituted for eight-old custom. King Bohun, taking the place of his herald as they paraded before the opening encounter, rode to the stand of the people of Nimmur. Here, before the logs of Prince Gobred, he drew rein. Again his insolent gaze rested upon the beautiful face of Guinalda, before he addressed her father.

"Prince Gobred of Nimmur," he said in his haughty and arrogant voice, "my valiant knights have bested three so greatly that already the proud bungney is as good as ours. Yet we would make thee s-proposition."

"Speak, Bohun," said Gobred calmly. "The great tourney is yet far from won, but we would hear ye."

"Thy five maidens are as good as ours," replied Bohun, "but give me thy daughter to be my queen and I will grant thee the tourney."

Gobred went white with anger. "Thy words are an offense," he said in a low, even voice, "implying as they do that the daughter of a Gobred is for sale!"

And that the honor of the knighthood of Nimmur has been bargained for. Get back to thine own side of the lists before I set Mela upon thee to drive ye there!" "So that is thy answer?" shouted Bohun. "Then know, dame I shall take the five maidens by force and I will grant thee the tourney, the knights of the Repucher were many points ahead of their rivals. Then again, according to age-old custom, King Bohun, taking the place of his herald as they paraded

Upon the last day of the tourney the knights of the Repucher were many points ahead of their rivals. Then again, according to age-old custom, King Bohun, taking the place of his herald as they paraded before the opening encounter, rode to the stand of the people of Nimmur. Here, before the logs of Prince Gobred, he drew rein. Again his insolent gaze rested upon the beautiful face of Guinalda, before he addressed her father.

"Prince Gobred of Nimmur," he said in his haughty and arrogant voice, "my valiant knights have bested three so greatly that already the proud bungney is as good as ours. Yet we would make thee s-proposition."

"Speak, Bohun," said Gobred calmly. "The great tourney is yet far from won, but we would hear ye."

"Thy five maidens are as good as ours," replied Bohun, "but give me thy daughter to be my queen and I will grant thee the tourney."

Gobred went white with anger. "Thy words are an offense," he said in a low, even voice, "implying as they do that the daughter of a Gobred is for sale!"

And that the honor of the knighthood of Nimmur has been bargained for. Get back to thine own side of the lists before I set Mela upon thee to drive ye there!" "So that is thy answer?" shouted Bohun. "Then know, dame I shall take the five maidens by force and I will grant thee the tourney."

With this threat, Bohun wheeled his steed and spurred away. Jimmy Blake's sword and buckler contest with a knight of the Sepulcher was to be the first event of the day. After a fanfare of trumpets he rode out to salute Prince Gobred while his adversary did likewise in front of King Bohun's box.

AGAIN ATTEMPTS ROBBERY OF STIRLING STORE

Minor Accident When Cars Collide on Frankford Road

Stirling—Thieves attempted to break into two local stores at an early hour on Friday morning and the unexpected appearance of two prominent Stirling residents on the street may have frustrated further attempts at loot. The front entrance to G. W. Leary and Sons drygoods store was tried and one of the locks broken, but fortunately the second held quite securely. Undoubtedly it was the same party that tried to force an entrance from the rear of F. T. Ward's gents' furnishing store on the same morning. Dr. R. A. Carleton and Mr. Alfred Hayworth, who happened to be on the street at approximately 2 a.m., were surprised to see two strangers standing on the sidewalk in front of Ward's store apparently loppering the entrance closely.

Knowing that they had been seen the two suspects began walking westward up Front street, turning northward at Station street. Dr. Carleton and Mr. Hayworth followed behind two, when, on arrival at the United Church corner, jumped hastily into a large dark waiting automobile and drove away. It is believed that there were three or four in the party.

A report has become current that Mr. Alex. Milne's general store at Meade was also robbed either late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. Whether the robbers in this case were connected in any way with the attempted break-ins in Stirling is unknown.

Merchants in town are considering the advisability of employing a night watchman in an effort to end the series of robberies.

A joyride accident occurred on the Front-Bleecker Road near the Cheese factory late Wednesday afternoon when a Chevrolet coach, operated by Gordon Phillips, Wadsworth, was hurled on its right side into the ditch and badly damaged, detached from a car and piled standing on the right side of the road. The Phillips car, travelling southward, turned out to the left when the brakes and in doing so collided with a ninth bound car. Mrs. Phillips was obliged to have the car towed in order to extricate herself, but was not injured in any way. Mr. Phillips escaped with a bruised knee. Baker's wrecking crew removed the car to the garage where it is now undergoing repairs. Constable Wickett investigated the accident and the affair was quite amicably settled.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bailey (nee Hazel Hall), R. R. 2, Tweed, have been spending a few days with the former's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. George Bailey.

Mr. P. G. McGuire of Belleville, was a Stirling visitor on Friday.

Miss Irene Bailey, B.A., is the guest for a few days of Miss Ida Haggerty, Belleville.

Rev. R. F. Ryan of Belleville, called on a number of Stirling friends on Thursday.

Mr. A. E. Meune of Toronto, was in town Tuesday on business.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

If you like to laugh, enjoy romance and get a thrill from intensely human drama, "Double Harness," co-starring Ann Harding and William Powell is your suggestion in the new Radio picture coming to the Belle tomorrow (Thursday) and Friday, matinee daily.

As modern as tomorrow, as sparkling as champagne and as human as life itself Ann Harding and William Powell will prove pleasing favorites. Their talents can comfortably and entertainingly into their "Double Harness" stellar roles, forming a perfect team.

Miss Harding is seen in the most glamorous and alluring characterization of her career as a girl who has militant ideas about marriage. Powell is equally fascinating as the debonair and wedding-wary bachelor whom she lures into marriage. How does she do it? Through the connivance of her sister, played by Lucille Browne, the skittish engineers a successful trap.

After the wedding the real troubles begin. Lillian Bond as an intriguing siren and dashing young widow does her vamping best to retrieve her playboy companion. The dramatic climax comes when the husband learns of his bride's deception. Love, however, has won more than one hopeless battle, and events crammed with suspense, move swiftly to happy conclusion.

The supporting performances in "Double Harness" are uniformly excellent with Miss Browne, Miss Bond, George Meeker and Henry Stephenson contributing outstanding characterizations.

"Double Harness" is adapted from the successful stage play by Edward Poor Montgomery.

The enjoyment of the feature offering is enhanced by the exhibition of a select short program consisting of "Rambling Along Radio Row," introducing favorite Radio stars in entertaining specialties and intimate studies, "The Gang" in a very funny comedy "The Kid from Borneo," and the popular Belle News, with its up-to-the-minute important events garnered the world over.

Silver Cliff Thursday

Another, of the popular All-Silver gift nights will be presented at the Belle Thursday evening on the stage at 9 p.m.

Two first prizes will be presented this week consisting of two, three piece Black Onyx Silver Mounted Ladies companion sets with celebrity they are beauties, and of course, exclusive, as these special articles cannot be duplicated. Right excepional Roger's silver articles will also be presented free to patrons at the

Ann Harding and William Powell play the hunter and hunted in a unique romance in "Double Harness", coming to the Belle Thursday.

"THE MAN FROM TORONTO"

"The Man From Toronto" opening at the Capitol Theatre today will bring back Jessie Matthews, the adorable "Good Companions" star, as charming, as mischievous and bewitching, as in the other British films that have established her Canadian popularity.

Despite her youth, Jessie is Britain's biggest feminine star and her pictures are also proving popular in the United States, where her unique personality and talent are fully recognized. Success has not turned Jessie's head and the reason is probably that she is one of a family of ten sisters. How could any girl with nine sisters possibly be conceited?

The youthful star of "The Man From Toronto" can sing, dance and play serious roles with equal facility. That's why moviegoers in every land are excited about her latest flick to see her pictures.

Fred Kerr, veteran star of many Hollywood hits is excellent as the lawyer-executor of the absurd will which leaves a million dollars to the man from Toronto and the attractive young widow played by Jessie Matthews on condition that they marry. The couple have never met and each, of course, imagines the other to be an impossible person. Love decides to pose as her own maid to test the sincerity of her Canadian suitor and in "disguise" her, but changes his mind when he discovers that he has been fooled. An original and exceedingly funny story that will be enjoyed by moviegoers of all ages. Be sure to be at the Capitol theatre to meet "The Man From Toronto" today, tomorrow or Friday.

Rotary Activities

From a quick check-up on the sale of tickets by Rotarians of Belleville in aid of the Crippled Children, the result means that there will be big attendances throughout the engagement of "The Man From Toronto" during the next three days. Please be early so secure good seats.

Popular Treasure Night

"Tugboat Annie" Leaving

"Still packin' 'em in," reports Manager Forham of the Belle in connection with "Tugboat Annie," co-starring Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery will close its engagement at the Belle Tonight.

Having surpassed in attendance "Min and Bill" which enjoyed a phenomenal engagement at the Belle, "Tugboat Annie" enters its fourth and final day stamped as the biggest box office film to show at the Belle since the boom days of the early talkies.

WORKMEN REFUSE TO ENTER FACTORIES

Factory Whistles Blow Workers Appear, None Enter Buildings for Work

Police on Hand But no Disorders Among Workmen

NOT CALLED OUT

Militia Remain at Armouries Ready For Call

By JACK HAMBLETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Stratford, Ont., Sept. 28.—(CP)—Smiling cheerfully, Stratford's striking furniture workers this morning heard the factory whistles blow—and continued to picket the factories. No one went to work. Despite heavy police guards at all the plants and predictions of trouble, the workmen started no disorders of any kind.

This morning at seven o'clock was regarded as "zero hour," for at that time, the employers had announced, the doors would be thrown open, that certain concessions would be made, intimating unless the workers returned to their machines, negotiations would be ended.

Promptly at seven the whistles blew. The doors were opened. Outside every plant hundreds marshaled in picket-line. They laughed and cheered when the gates sounded. But no one moved toward the open doors.

Militia Not Needed

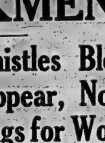
Down town at the Armouries more than 70 soldiers of the Royal Canadian Regiment, reinforced by four baby tanks, were held in readiness for the quelling of any disorder. Bugles blew at dawn and the men packed up ready to move out at any time. But they were not called.

At the McLagan plant six policemen stood at the main entrance. Chief Charles Gregor of the Stratford force drove up to the building and got out of his car. He was greeted by cheers of the pickets and this watching crowd, strikers shouting, "Good old Charlie, the squarest chief in Western Ontario."

Bob Edgar and Dan McPherson, two of the foremen of the plant, were among the first of the workmen, "They can't do anything—they haven't got any men in there," said one picket. Inside, Esquire Myers, aged night watchman, came to the door. He was greeted with his dinner bucket. As he walked down the street to go home the strikers cheered him at every step.

At 8.57 the preliminary whistle inside the factory sounded. More cheers and clapping followed. Usually the whistle indicates the machinery is being started, but this morning it was silent.

Machinery Not Started



Three minutes later the second whistle sounded, and again the crowd cheered.

"Well, we're into now," shouted a number of the pickets, "and that's that." They continued their endless circle of the sidewalk in front of the plant.

Meanwhile pickets remained on duty at the Canadian Chairs plant and a scene of a series of riots two days ago. Roosters and chickens confined to the building provided the only disturbance. Strikers gathered in a knot when a transport truck drove into the yard, but it was announced the truck was merely delivering a cargo of salt, ordered prior to the strike. An engineer from the building carried the shipment in and went about his duties.

At the Moore Bell furniture plant it was announced one fireman and three foremen had resigned when they learned police would be present to protect men, who wanted to return to work. No smoke came from the chimney and here too, the machinery was idle at the appointed hour.

Pickets paraded outside the plant, but they did as the others but again the crowd was good-natured about it all.

BROCKVILLE MAYOR DIES

Fred Wolthausen, Prominent Manufacturer Succumbs to Operation

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)—An immigrant boy who rose to head of this city's leading industry, Mayor Frederick Wolthausen, President of the hat manufacturing concern bearing his name, is dead here following a six months illness.

After a collapse in March Mayor Wolthausen was forced to abandon his official duties. He entered the hospital a week ago, was operated on Thursday for an abdominal condition and died yesterday. Funeral will be held Saturday.

Born in Bremen, Germany, in 1864, Mr. Wolthausen emigrated to the United States at the age of seven with his parents. He began as an apprentice hat maker in New York, later conducting a plant at South Norwalk, Conn.

He founded his business here in 1904 and has taken an interest in local affairs since that time. He was first elected in council in 1929 and in 1931 won the township chair by the largest majority in the city's history.

2000 SLAUGHTERED

Ottawa, Sept. 28—(CP) The slaughter of 2,000 buffalo in Wainwright National Park Alberta has been sanctioned by the government. Tenders are being requested for purchase of the hides during November and December. The animals to be killed are 500 bulls, two years of age, 150 bulls, three years old, 200 cows, three years old, and 1,150 aged bulls and cows.

FORMER RESIDENT INJURED IN WEST

Word was received in this city today of the accident injury to Harry Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith, Centreton, now a resident of Edmonton, Alberta. Mr. Smith is employed as a mechanic in a garage in that city and was fixing a truck on Wednesday afternoon, when the tires blew out, the rim striking him on the forehead inflicting deep cuts and causing a fracture of the skull. He was rushed to the hospital and physicians attending state he has a fair chance of recovery providing infection does not set in. The young man is well known in this district and his brother, Ernie Smith, resides in Carrington, Mrs. J. S. Reid of Victoria, B.C., but is at present on a visit at her home in Camrihn is a sister.

FRUITS MUCH IN DEMAND ON MART

Under the spell of a bright, warm sun Thursday the mid-week market was largely attended. No change in the prices of produce was noticed but remained firm at 30c a dozen. Fresh butter sold at 25c a pound. Fruits and vegetables were in abundance.

CABBAGE GROWN HAS THREE HEADS

Mrs. W. Reid, 193 Yeomans Street, has in her garden a cabbage with three large heads, grown from one plant. This growth is said to be exceptional as many interested persons have called at Mrs. Reid's place to view the plant.

400 REGISTERED FOR RELIEF WORK

Although the rush of applicants registering for relief work ceased last at the Central Relief Office has ceased off this week, a steady dribble of unemployed men are still registering their names for work which is expected to be started in the city under relief this coming winter. At present with the addition of approximately two hundred registrations added to those who are already on the register, the number of men who may be eligible for work has reached the sixty total of approximately four hundred.

NO DAMAGE IN CHIMNEY FIRE

A chimney fire at the home of Mr. C. F. Dolan, 378 George Street, gave firemen a run to that address on Wednesday. The blaze was extinguished without damage.

OBSERVANCE OF FELLOWSHIP WEEK

In line with the province-wide movement, churches, schools, clubs and fraternal organizations of the city are expected to observe "Friendship and Fellowship Week" which will start Sunday, October 1, and continue until Saturday of that week. Following results of the request from the Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, to observe this week, a request is being made of the O. C. Office, addressed to all citizens to co-operate in this movement. No especial crusade has been announced by Mayor Wm. Ellis, it is believed that individual clubs and units as well as churches of the city will observe the week in a fitting manner.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON TOUR OF CITY

A special committee of the City Council, consisting of Aldermen Wm. Donahue, W. R. McCreary, W. A. Wooder, G. A. Bennett, Benjamin Safe and the City Engineer will make an exhaustive first-hand study of work under consideration for relief purposes during the coming winter, before spending the greater part of the day, Friday, in a tour through the city. The committee will report to the Board of Control at the City Council at a later meeting.

WARMER WEATHER IS THE FORECAST

Summer played a return engagement in the district today, Shadowy and dark, and wet for the past several days, bright sunshine which flooded the city and district on Thursday appeared brilliant and strong by contrast. The heat was scorching, however, did not jump to any appreciable high mark. It was cool but comfortable, with the highest point at noon marked at 67. Low during the early morning was at 45.

TAG DAY FOR V. O. N. FUNDS

Saturday the local Victorian Order of Nurses Committee is making its annual Tag Day appeal for funds to assist in the work. Committee members are confident that the public will respond as generously as in the past to this appeal for financial assistance in a community enterprise.

The work of the Victorian Order is well known in Belleville. Daily the efficient, blue-uniformed nurses are seen going about their tasks of visiting the sick. In a year these visits mount to over four thousand. The patients, in many cases at present, are unable to pay for the service and it is only a small sum on Tag Day individuals are able to do their part in maintaining a healthy service to the needy.

The Well Baby Conferences held each Friday in the City Hall take up busy minutes of the nurses' time and this service is free of charge to the mothers of the city.

Those with the good of the community at heart realize that the Victorian Order of Nursing service is indispensable and the generous giving on Saturday will prove their interest in the work.

DIAMOND JUBILEE OF TWO CHURCHES
United Churches East of City Will Celebrate in October
Something unique in church circles in the vicinity of Belleville will take place on the first and second Sundays of October when the two United Churches on No. 2 Highway, east of the city will celebrate their Diamond Jubilee.

These churches, known as the Kingston Road Church and the Front Road Church respectively, were dedicated in 1873, just sixty years ago, and the congregations are uniting to make the occasion one of more than ordinary significance.

The Front Road Church belonged originally to the Wesleyan circuit of which Shannonville was the head, and had its beginning in a revival conducted in the school house by a Wesleyan Missionary, Rev. Mrs. Wight.

Among those who took a leading part on the building committee were Thomas Weir, Stephen Virtan and Thomas Greatrix, each contributing $200.00 toward the building fund.

These men are still represented in the congregation by Mr. George Greatrix, a regular attendant and a member of the choir, Arthur Virtan, a teacher in the Sunday School and Miss Ruth Greatrix who is pianist at the Sunday services.

Mr. George Greatrix is the only one still attending as at a boy he was present at the dedication sixty years ago. Since then the church has passed through successive church unions, until now, it forms a part of the Point Anne Circuit under the pastorate of Rev. W. T. Brough, B.A.

Last year the church underwent a complete renovation with an outlay of more than $200.00 and is now a beautiful little church in first class repair and condition.

Further information regarding the Kingston Road United Church will appear next week.

W. M. S. RALLY FOR MADOC SECTION HELD

Interesting Session at Annual Business Meeting

MADOC — The eighth sectional rally of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, in Madoc district, was held on Friday, United Church, Madoc, on Tuesday, September 26th, with a splendid attendance of nine auxiliaries represented. Mrs. J. W. Rivers and Mrs. J. H. Rutherford of the Madoc Society welcomed the guests in their auditorium. The platform was decorated with beautiful flowers, and shortly after the hour prescribed, the morning session was opened with the convention hymn, "Lead On, O King Eternal", followed by silent prayer, Mrs. P. Dafoe, sectional vice-president, in the chair, and Mrs. J. Ashley presiding at the organ. Mrs. Dafoe graciously extended a royal welcome to the delegates to the meeting on the year's work, made an earnest appeal for all to get back to the standards of 1930 in order to carry out successfully a wish that a general crusade for members be undertaken. The minutes of the last sectional rally were read and approved, Mrs. R. J. Burnside acting as secretary.

Words of greeting and welcome were extended by Mrs. Rutherford, president of Madoc W.M.S., and replied to by Mrs. Kingston of Tweed, sectional vice-president. Mrs. Dafoe then read the resolution sent to Premier Henry by the executive of the Bay of Quinte conference while in session in Belleville.

Reports of the auxiliaries of Cooper and Kennington, Thomasburg, Madoc Mission Band, Eldorado, Tweed, Hazard's, Bethel, Madoc and Ivanhoe were received, being given by the delegates and showed a very all speaking in no uncertain manner of steady progress, and a fine, good uniting enthusiasm on the parts of the points considered in point of membership, average attendance, mission band and, also, the good number of Missionary Monthlies used.

A hearty invitation was extended and accepted to meet in Thomasburg next year.

Mrs. G. W. Rivers closed the meeting with the benediction after the singing of one verse of a Hymn.

RIVER VALLEY W. I.

A successful meeting on health was held on September 7th by the River Valley Women's Institute when a number of members and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. George Wallace (Anson). The president, Mrs. Alex Rush, presided and opened the meeting with the singing of the opening ode and repeating the Lord's Prayer. The roll call "Aids to Health" was answered by many practical suggestions. Correspondence was dealt with and thanks and appreciation voted for the gift in cash and letters of sympathy to the bereaved. A committee was formed to attend to the purchasing and distribution of quilts for recent and prospective brides in the community. The first paper was read on health which was prepared by Mrs. Ernest Wallace and Mrs. F. Rubel and conducted by Mrs. Rubel proved very instructive and helpful. Mary Vanderwort, a practical nurse, gave an excellent paper and talk on "Keeping good health". A fine organ selection was then given by Mrs. Rubel on "Reading, "Care of the Teeth", with final humorous quotations by Mrs. Meisner.

Pleasing instrumental music was supplied by Miss O. Rosebush. Readings in poetical form on the "necessity of vitamins and mental animation", Mrs. S. McIntosh. Reading, "Elimination, Regulation" emphasized by poems of Edgar A. Guest, Mrs. C. Chard. Mrs. P. Rubel then gave a solo, "Christmas Bells" with natural fine voice.

A health article from the department was read by Mrs. W. H. Hanna and the contests conducted by Mrs. McIntosh delighted the assembly with some of her radio songs. Mrs. Reid Wallace (Eggleton) was one of the visitors present and a hearty welcome was given her and invited Mrs. Wallace for her hospitality, also to the program conveners and all who assisted to make the afternoon so enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bush, Bowlyn and Eleanor spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Milton of Cherryville.

The September meeting of the River Valley Study Group was held at the home of Mrs. F. Rubel on afternoon, Sept. 27. Mrs. Roy Bush and Mrs. W. Lindenfield were in charge of the program.

Byrd Heads South Without Famous Mascot

Igloo, Who Made Men Feel at Home on Last Expedition Has No Successor

Igloo, Byrd's mascot on his last expedition, who has since died.

Byrd's plane in which he hopes to fly over the South Pole.

By LEVON E. HORTON

Central Press Canadian Writer

New York Sept. 27—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, with a crew of 70 men, improved scientific equipment and a larger store of supplies has set sail from Boston for the unexplored and unknown wastes of the expansive Antarctic on his second expedition.

But there is one thing missing on this voyage—Admiral Byrd's dog, Igloo, one of the famous dogs of America. Igloo died some months ago and the expedition has departed without benefit of a mascot.

No Successor

"I have not replaced Igloo," Admiral Byrd said to a Central Press Canadian representative prior to sailing. "It can't be done, so we are taking this trip without any such good omen. Igloo was that, you know. There was never any doubt about it. At least I always thought so, and my men did, too.

"I don't mean that we won't do as well without that good luck sign, but we'll miss Igloo, at least the 20 of us who went on our last expedition will. There isn't much to do with idle hours in the cold Antarctic, you know, and Igloo was a sort of companion who tied us up with civilization somehow.

Home-Like Touch

"There isn't much to do there outside of working hours. We play poker and bridge. One bridge game lasted six months. We played poker for cigarettes. And we read, Igloo was there to lend something of a home-like touch to the setting and we'll miss him."

Admiral Byrd will seek on this expedition, which will extend over a two-year period, to establish the fact that there is another continent. He will take his entire outfit at Little America, where there still remains equipment and a radio tower left from the first expedition.

It is hoped that scientific data will be obtained there that will expand greatly on the information available at present on the waste lands that lie beyond South America.

Admiral Byrd is taking a number of scientists along with him on his trip, which is being made possible through contributions by some 14,000 manufacturers who are furnishing supplies and equipment, to delve into the natural resources of the area. He believes there is an unlimited supply of coal and oil to be uncovered there, though he readily admits the cryolite which would be involved in making it available for use in America.

Admiral Byrd explained that the Antarctic is in the stakes of a regular ice age and when the time arrives for that tide to be broken, though it may be years and years away, a new land will be unfolded to the civilized world, possibly a tropical clime, such as he believes once endured there.

Attempts will be made on this expedition to determine something about the past civilization which existed, its people and animal life, for, says Admiral Byrd, "only through the past can we determine the future."

SECOND GUESSES

The first volume of the memoirs of the Great War by David Lloyd George has been issued to the public and is receiving widespread comment. The volume is complete with criticism and "might-have-beens." The St. Catharines Record says the great war-time Premier tells a lot of things which the people have fairly understood for a long time. The War Office was clustered with red tape, there was dissension between the civil and military and lack of a General Staff. Kitchener is criticized, so is the late Lord Grey, and the most saddening statement of all, which although perfectly true and obvious, does not make good reading, is that thousands of lives might have been saved had certain measures been taken, which proposed were rejected. The great war history of Churchill contains, by inference, similar thoughts and it is difficult to read his apologia for the Dardanelles without coming to the conclusion that energetic action—a Nelson in the Straits—would have shortened the war by at least two years. But with Lloyd George it is distinctly a case of looking back and making second guesses.

As one commentator puts it:

It is all so beautifully simple. If ever anyone in the war would have liked to have had a chance to make a second guess, it must have been General von Kluck. For the German commander could only rectify his movements of the first few weeks what a different tale there might be to tell. If von Kluck had been so anxious to be in at the death when Paris fell, he might not have executed his fatal turning movement, which gave Marshal Joffre the chance to work the "Miracle of the Marne." Had von Kluck followed the strategy set down for him, Paris might easily have fallen. But he did not, and the city remained in French hands.

The best war historians have made it plain that both the Allies and the Central Powers made terrible mistakes during the conflict. The Germans did not attain anywhere near the right percentage in their favor for the element of surprise in their first use of chlorine gas. The British, on a narrow front, gave the show away entirely when they first used the tanks. And so it went on for four weary years. The greatest of all military blunders and one which made it touch and go as to the result of the war, was the French plan of attack in the very first weeks; that an ill-prepared and ill-equipped army, which ignored the thrust through Belgium.

But here again it is a case of second guessing. And what a field for it in the life and death travail of over four years!

ISAIAH'S PROPHECY FULFILLED

"In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria . . ." This prediction of Isaiah (19: 23) is an actuality at last, so says the Christian Herald New World. But only within the past year has the final link in the highway between Cairo and Baghdad been completed.

"It is ready for the motor truck, one of transportation's newest tools, to finally fulfil the prophecy of Isaiah, by connecting Egypt and Palestine (Israel) with Iraq which State contains the major portion of ancient Assyria.

"Since last July a Wisconsin boy, driving a big Fordson, has been travelling across this cradle of civilization, helping to build the forty million dollar pipe-line of the Iraq Petroleum Company. This modern ship of the desert, with its four-wheel trailer, is hauling from twenty to thirty tons of steel plates and equipment per trip. It is estimated that improved economical conditions there will be a high-type road paralleling the pipe-line from Kirkuk to the sea at Haifa."

TEACHING BOYS TO LOVE ITALY

Jolly Italian boys from all over the world are camping out in the mountains of Italy and on its seashore. The first of these colonies of boys was founded six years ago by Piero Parini, and now they are an institution. Sons of expatriates learn Italian. They learn to love Italy. For a culminating thrill, they visit Rome, where Mussolini reviews them. Then, as Luigi Bottazzi affirms enthusiastically in La Lettonie, they return home "with something precious in their souls—a great light which nothing can ever extinguish."

A FANCY

The Trojan Helen, when she passed,
Left this strange legacy behind;
Her dust, as long as earth shall last,
Is blown along the languid wind
And where its grain of magic falls
Upon another woman's heart,
The golden Helen's glamour calls
And all the years between depart.

Gone Priam now, and Hector gone,
Achilles and the rest;
Gone Paris who was love's poor pawn
With Helen's bright head on his breast.
But here and there on earth today
Another Helen lives to smile,
And men go mad beneath her sway
As time turns back, a little while.

The Trojan Helen is a breath
Of legend in a world grown cold.
Her loveliness wind-tossed in death;
But still her dust is pale gold!

—Aline Michaelis.

WITH THE LEVELLING OF THE GRIFFIN THEATRE, Opera House, on Bridge Street, a vast company of ghosts of the past flit, mournfully, perhaps around the timber and brick to which this ancient and beloved building has been reduced. Thoughts of theatregoers who lived before the machine age, go back to Fiske O'Hara, Irish actor and singer, who had many friends in Belleville and always drew a large audience. Fiske was very temperamental in his young days on the stage and was known frequently for his way of his role to admonish someone in the audience who was talking or otherwise disturbing his art. Fiske O'Hara, mellowed and tempered by the years, returned to Belleville a few of his Belleville friends and admirers, returned here recently via the films, appearing in a part of the village blacksmith in "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," with Janet Gaynor. A recent article on "Old Timers in the Films," speaks of May Robson, who was a stage favorite for fifty years, and who will ever forget May in "A Night Out?" May Robson is sixty-seven, but she is starring in the films, and never a better or more thorough trouper than her when all the world was a stage and all the people were actors—and no growing town was complete without an opery house. "Close your eyes and put your finger any place on the map, and I'll bet you nine to one that I've played there," said May Robson in an interview. Lookit Marie Dressler, all through, all washed up, facing her second fifty years of life with the stage covered with a curtain and the actors and plays confined in tin cans. Marie just had to have her "coffee and cakes" so she crashed the films, and look at what she has done—a long line of comedy "wows" with "Min and Bill" on one end and "Tugboat Annie" on the other, and folks fighting to get in. Only this week the Associated Press picked up a paragraph at Hollywood which told of a former member of Frank Bacon's "Lightnin'" company, seeing a familiar face in a crowd of extras, and found Miss Pringle, talented actress of the stage who made a hit as the wife of Frank Bacon's "Lightnin'." She was rescued from the extras and now has a comfortable contract and real parts in the celluloid. Pat O'Malley, once well known in the world of theatres and "Ten-Twenty-Thirt", broke into the silent films for $2,500 a week—lost out with the talkies, took extra parts finally, and is now back in speaking parts doing his first bit with Fiske O'Hara in "Paddy, the Next Best Thing." Many other old-timers of the stage have crashed the films of Hollywood but more or less success, while many others have drifted into other occupations, but it is interesting to note that girls like May Robson and Marie Dressler who stood the wear and tear of the trouper's life for half a century and liked it, have faced and conquered the terrors of the movies, the searing Klieg lights and the vagaries of directors raised in a new school of dramatic expression. "Youth must be served," perhaps, in the rough and tumble of modern rushing life, but in the arts and sciences age still leads by a comfortable margin.

ON THIS DATE
By Fred Williams

A VICTIM OF THE MOSQUITO.

ON HIS DATE, in 1819 there was a proof of the fact that even pest are warding off the attacks of one or more mosquitoes you are waging war against an insect which has not only sent literally thousands of victims to early graves but which also took its part in altering the face of our politics. From the most serious student of our early history relating that chief among the problems of the pioneer settlers was how to fight the fever and ague which claimed so many victims. At Niagara, on the more western frontier, at York itself, Simcoe and his people suffered seriously from malaria and its accompaniment (perhaps cause) the mosquito; and even today, in some country districts, the open water barrel or the neglected puddle, breeds its wigglers, to grow into "skitters" and inject all sorts of disease into human veins.

Mr. Justice Riddell has dwelt upon three incidents in our history in which the mosquito has figured. The most important of these relates to that stormy petrel, Robert Fleming Gourlay. When that fiery Scot came to Upper Canada, in 1817, he did not intend to remain more than six months, purposing to return to his farm in Witshire. But in July he was laid up for two months with a fever "caused by the stinging of mosquitoes." And that decided his whole future. Gourlay followed his pen to the people; his bitter quarrel with Dr. Strachan, "the divine appointed by the former, the farmer despising the divine," his campaign throughout the province; his bear-carations at Brockville, Kingston and Niagara; his deportation and all the calamities, financial and political which marking his tragic life. If the mosquitos had let him alone, he would doubtless have returned to his English farm and quarrels with his landlord and his neighbors, the world would never have heard of the "Banished Britain" and our records would not have been stained by the deportation which the assembly of Canada in 1841 designated as illegal and without basis of justification.

Then in 1819 when the joint commissioners met to determine the water boundary both General Porter, the American, and John Ogilvy, of Montreal, the British commissioner, had to travel through the St. Clair flats. Both were bitten, both contracted fever. Porter survived, but Ogilvy succumbed at Amherstburg, September 28, 1819, the doctor ascribing his fatal infection to miasma conveyed through mosquito bites. Ogilvy was the stronger-willed member of the commission. Had he survived and had his way in defining the boundary it might have been quite different to that later agreed upon.

Still another instance where the anopheles, the scientific name for the stinging insect, played a part was in the famous case of Francis Collins, the fiery editor of the Canadian Freeman. In 1826, whose trial for criminal libel was presided over by Mr. Justice Sherwood, whose health was not very good, he "suffering from indisposition and great debility occasioned by a severe attack of the fever of the country" and "tortured by mosquitoes." Had he not been so bitten he might not have inflicted the outrageous sentence upon the editor.

Judge Riddell points out that the word anopheles means in Attic Greek worthless or injurious. A very fitting designation for the insect which the earlier days had been, and still is, one of the drawbacks to summer.

GEORGE KELLY HAS TALKED
Admits He Took Part in Urschell Kidnapping

Memphis, Sept. 28.—(CP)—Prodded by Federal authorities, George "Machine Gun" Kelly has talked.

W. A. Rorer, Department of Justice agent, announced last night the "bad man" from the southwest had confessed a part in the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, but that he had acted merely as "lookout" for crimes.

"You've got me' right on the Urschel kidnapping, but not the Chicago robbery and the Kansas City Union Station job," Rorer quoted Kelly as saying.

Amplifying Rorer's brief announcement, a confidential source close to the Federal authorities said Kelly in his oral confession had named Albert Bates, now on trial at Oklahoma City, as the gunman's actual accomplice in the Urschel kidnapping.

"Kelly made no formal confession but he told the Department of Justice agents," the informant said, "that Bates was the man who did the actual kidnapping and that they took Urschel to Paradise, Texas, and returned to Oklahoma City to collect the ransom.

St. Thomas Wins from Ponies 5-0, Annexing Senior Ball Title on Poor Playing Field

Kingston Wasted Chances But Defeated by Better Team

WELL BALANCED

Winners Made Hits Count Playing Errorless Ball

Kingston, Sept. 28 (CP) — St. Thomas Tom Cats yesterday won the senior O.B.A.A. championship, premier baseball honors in Ontario when they defeated Kingston Ponies 5 to 0 in the second game of the finals. The Tom Cats won the first game at home last Saturday by 3 to 0.

The championship was won on a field little better than a sea of mud. The half an hour the game was held up while St. Thomas strenuously objected to playing on a field that required burning of gasoline to make it playable. As it was, the game was staged in mud and the outfield was almost as bad. With more than 2,000 fans on hand, Kingston insisted on playing and the battle was on at last.

Vaughan, the right hander who worked for the Tom Cats pitched a strong game and was master of the situation most of the way, although poor base running by Ponies and their failure to hit in the pinches cost them many scoring chances. Jamieson was his hard but generous opponent, he lasting 5 to 0 beating. He was relieved in the ninth after filling a man and hitting another, and Fournier ended the game retiring the side with no scoring.

Cats Play Errorless Ball

St. Thomas played smart baseball, despite the wretched condition of the field. They played errorless ball and they punched out the hits when they were needed. They started after the game in the first inning when Pulleck singled, was sacrificed to second by Lindsay and after Dean struck out, Pollock scored on Udell's fine single to left.

Two more runs were scored in the fourth. Vaughan smashed a single through short and Kennedy singled one in front of the plate. J. Armiel threw to second but Vaughan beat the throw and all hands were safe. Gibson also bunted and when J. Armiel fielded the ball he threw poorly to third and Vaughan scored. Carter then bounced a hit to right, scoring Kennedy home. Cabot aided by McCaffrey, fanned, struck out and Lindsay ended the rally with a fly to G. Armiel.

The last score came in the second in the eighth. Udell led off with a fine single to left. Vaughan flied to G. Armiel, but on Kennedy's Fronting double to centre, Udell scored. Gibson singled to left and Kennedy raced home with the score. J. Armiel cut him off at the plate. Carter then sent a two-base hit to deep centre, Gibson scoring, but Cabot would up the frame with a roller to Carpenter.

Ponies Waste Chances

Kingston had plenty of chances but passed them up. In the second the Ponies had two men on but Quinn struck out and in the first with greatest chance was fouled. J. Armiel led off and Amiable to right and Quinn dropped a hit in the same direction. J. Armiel thanks of holding third, tried to score and was thrown out by a couple of yards. The next two men were easy outs.

The Ponies got men on in every inning except the first ninth and ninth, but failed to get a hit in the pinches lost them the game.

St. Thomas deserved to be Ontario champions for they were every bit the superior team yesterday. With the exception of Cabot every man got at least one hit, while both the field been anyway dry, several Kingston hits would have been knocked down, but the luck broke St. Thomas boxes were just to one side of the fielders, who, struggling about in the mire, were unable to do more than spectacular fielding.

WALTER STONE IS NEW HOLDER

Breaks Track Record at Campbellford by Full Second

Racing fans who attended the Campbellford fair on Wednesday saw Walter Stone, former Grand Circuit performer, now owned by the veteran horseman, Lou Dennett of Port Hope break the track record by a full second and one that has withstood all challenges for many years. The thrilling pulling contest, a second mile in 2.11 flat, the record being 2-12 and, to show it was no fluke equalled the record in the last heat, finishing with credit on every heat a race plan and both public and horsemen approving the performance. There was a large attendance, the Northern town escaping the rain that fell in every district throughout the eastern part of the Province. Mayor Geo. A. Cox was in the stand and the classes were all sent off in fast time with a minimum of scoring. The summary:

FREE FOR ALL RACE ENDS PUNT SEASON

Three heats entered in the free-for-all punt race, the last of the season, staged by the South End Aquatic Club at the foot of John on Wednesday afternoon. Kelley's Scowpper manager's score a handy win over the "snipe" class punt, the Eagle, owned by Flagler, when she led the latter over the finish line with two minutes and twenty seconds to spare, and with a longer lead over the third boat, Kellaway's "Sky Co." At the finish of the free-for-all a several more punts which were cruising around the harbor staged a race with Wickerson's dinghy, the Flame, once around the course. The latter finished two minutes, 30 seconds ahead of the Scrapper, and two minutes and 45 seconds ahead of the Punt. The free-for-all races were the best and cleanest staged this present season.

CURRENT SPORT

Yesterday's announcement relating to the local champion B.I.L. striders being accepted into the Lake Shore group of the C.O.R.S.A. league came as a surprise. The local request to be allowed into the Lake Shore group received with open arms by Peterboro, Oshawa and Lindsay.

Now that the Shiels-arrested strikers have landed a berth in the fast Lake Shore loop where the jumps are quite large it is hoped that a better turnout of fans will be in evidence than was the case when the city group games last season. We can safely say that the new loop will undoubtedly be the best amateur intermediate football group in Ontario and the local fans should therefore embrace the opportunity of supporting the strikers in their new venture. Coach Shiels expects at least two years of the present squad back in the line-up before the end of this week.

In the meat, Kingston had the second and final game of the senior O.B.A.A. finals, when Mr. Dean's pets from St. Thomas by the score of 5 to 0 showed their wares and demonstrated in front of four thousand rabid, cheering fans, that the "Tomcats" are worthy champions.

Inability to hit in the pinches spelled defeat for the Dalgo-canuck clan when they failed to hit with runners in the scoring spots on five occasions. Despite the fact that "Sammy" Jamieson gave his best, the visitors failed to connect with the much needed base hits, and the classy Kingston hurler was forced to retire in the face of defeat.

To Ray Vaughan, sizzling hurler of the present senior O.B.A.A. champions, goes the lion's share of the victory, when in the initial game of the St. Thomas hurler showed his wares and proved himself master of the situation. The "Tomcats" are worthy champions.

With but five days left before the world series opens the Senators and the Giants are taking things rather easy these days. The regular hurlers are being carefully groomed for the big series, while the other players are taking no unnecessary chances during the final league games. It is expected that the N.Y.-Washington world series will be hung on the fences and outside on the Polo Grounds and Griffith Stadium are the two ball parks as far as the seating capacity goes. In Washington the park will accommodate 29,000 while the New York park holds over 48,000.

Bill Dannell, Dannell, the versatile writer of the New York World-Telegram, has worked up an NRA code for baseball and it's a humdinger. It reads, as follows:

1—No major league shall be expected to put in more than 16 hours of play per week. No game shall go more than nine innings and all competition shall cease at 6 o'clock each day except on holidays or Sundays.

2—No player shall be paid less than $70,000 a season. Exhibition games extra.

3—Each player shall get two weeks' vacation, with pay, in July or August. The major leagues shall maintain vacation camps and stock neighboring streams and lakes with bass, pickerel, etc.

4—No club owner shall be in base ball for profit. Any magnate caught making money shall be sentenced to owning the Browns or the Reds for one year.

5—It shall be the duty of the umpires heartily for the home club at all games. Any fan causing the home team shall be forced to watch the Reds or the Browns for 30 days.

6—The club owners shall cease the system of peonage which 'now exists and shall grant any player to keep their meal tickets under $4 day. The consumption of food shall not be repressed.

7—Any ball player forced to sleep in an upper berth shall bring his club owner before the Interstate Commerce Committee, the board to loan bank and the beer control board.

8—A manager using abusive language on a player shall send a written apology to the player's family and fine himself $50.

9—If a player has had a tough night and cannot see straight, it shall be the duty of the manager to issue a statement to the press that the player has sprung a charley horse.

10—Any baseball writer criticizing the play of any major leaguer shall be forced to learn the infield rule by heart.

Just who will barf for the Pieton intermediates against the Falconbridge "Midgets" on Saturday in the second game, that will be played in Picton, has not been vouched to ascertain. Manager Vanover is grooming both Church and Phillips for the assignment and as the Prince Edward County crew have their backs to the wall a real game should ensue. Defeat for the Vanoverites means elimination.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins filthy, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the veins, thus drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when J. S. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles no matter how stubborn the case?

Sharkey's Fight Career Ends as Loughran Wins Decision

Boston Gob, Ready to Hang up Gloves For Younger Men

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia, Sept. 28—(AP)— It can be marked down today that the fighting career of Jack Sharkey, stormy petrel of the heavyweights for almost 10 years, is over, and in the same breath there may be telling where 31-year-old Tommy Loughran is going to wind up.

Sharkey climbing into his big car early this morning, slid behind the wheel from the fight arena, and headed home for Boston. The farther he drove, the faster he drove, away from the fight scene, apparently forever.

In Baker Bowl last night, home of the down-trodden Phillies, Sharkey came to the end of the trail. Tommy Loughran pecked his eyes with left jabs through 15 rounds, scored a terrific body blow at the hardinent, grinned back courageously from a bloody stained face and in the end won the decision, though the official referee gave it to him.

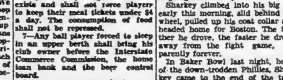
The crowning blow was a right hand punch Tommy flung into Sharkey's face in the 12th round, a desperate smash, that landed on the bridge of the former heavyweight champion's nose, and to the gleeful amusement of a crowd of less than 10,000, knocked Sharkey to his knees, stunning him though he sprang up without a count.

As far back as fight memories go, no one has seen the feather-footed Loughran, famous for his boxing but never his punching, floor a rival.

Sweet Triumph

It was an unsteady, sweet triumph for Loughran, even though he set no pay out the gate receipts scarcely covered the $25,000 guarantee paid Sharkey. Four years ago, when heavyweight title chances were at stake, Sharkey stormed into Tommy in the third round of a battle in the Yankee stadium, whipped an overhand right into the head of a rival who should have laughed at such an unorthodox punch, and knocked him on the floor.

It was Loughran's turn to add the final touches to Sharkey's career after four years of waiting, to add this beating to the knockout Primo Carnera scored in winning the sailor's heavyweight title in New York Stadium and to round out a grisly gave him in Chicago 10 days ago.



There was considerable question in the officials' mind that Loughran deserved the verdict as his foe, Sharkey's dissidatful face, outgaining a rival, who had him in distress half a dozen times with body blows, was unable to sustain his attack, actually had won the decision.

Judge Al Volco gave Sharkey seven rounds, Loughran six and called two even. Herman Weingrad awarded Loughran seven, Sharkey four with four even. Referee "Pud" Mowry scored it evenly six, six and three, but he cast the deciding vote for Loughran because he had scored the sole knockdown of the fight.

There was no question in Sharkey's mind.

"I guess I won all right", he said, and then he headed for home.

Jimmy Johnston, Manager of Madison Square Garden who has frequently signed for three fights this winter, said he was no longer interested. He immediately sought Loughran's services.

Spying on Sports

BY William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

JUST WHO WILL succeed Bucky Harris as manager of the Detroit Tigers is a matter of deep speculation now that Bucky, himself, should have little trouble in obtaining another major league assignment is no guess at all.

Despite his inability to make a championship club of the Tigers, he led in which he was Detroit boss. Harris is a pilot second to none, as a lot—and major league magnates know it.

It is generally believed that Harris could have continued on as Tiger boss if Walter O. Briggs, Jr., and Frank Navin apparently had faith in Bucky's ability to guide the current Detroit team to a better destiny than was in let this season.

This department's guess is that Harris is pretty sure of landing another berth in the majors — or he wouldn't have given up his Detroit job so easily. That Tiger club with its string of young players has potentialities. With one season's experience behind them such boys as Ervin Fox, Schoolboy Rowe, Marvin Owen and the real shoot should something next year.

EVEN BEFORE his resignation was made known Harris was mentioned as a possible manager of the Boston Red Sox in 1934. That Boston job next year is going to be a proposition somebody ought to prove his ability as a pilot. It's going to be a tough baseball town Harris would naturally desire.

It is a virtual certainty that Marty McManus, fired as Red Sox boss by Business Manager Eddie Collins of the Sox, will not be retained in that Babe Ruth will not replace McManus.

Ruth is said to be an admirer of Harris and his ability as a pilot. All of which points to the possibility of Bucky making Boston his home the next several years.

THERE ARE several managers, ex-managers and would-be managers who may be considered as candidates for Harris' vacated post in Detroit.

Among those mentioned is Babe Ruth. However, the Baambino would hardly prefer Detroit to the Chicago White Sox, the team with which the Babe's name has been connected most often.

More likely would be Donie Bush, former Detroit player and current manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Steve O'Neill, former Cleveland and minor league manager, is regarded as a dark horse candidate.

Other Detroit possibilities include Roger Peckinpaugh, former Cleveland manager; Dan Howley and Gabby Street, former managers, respectively, of the St. Louis Browns and St. Louis Cardinals; and Fred Fitzsimmons, former Pittsburgh manager, and Bill Killifer, former manager of the Browns.

Advice to the Lovelorn

THE STEPFATHER QUESTION

Dear Miss Fairfax:

At 15 years of age I find myself with a stepfather. My own father was divorced because of drink and non-support. He is not working and is living with his mother and unable to give my sister and me any money.

My stepfather is of one nationality and we are of another. Naturally, things cannot go smoothly. I was unable to finish high school. I was graduated from Junior high and then didn't go anymore.

Now I am working a day at one place and another, doing housework. I make a dollar a day and work about three days a week. Before I got these jobs my stepfather refused to buy me any clothes or to give me carfare to help find work, but my girl friend helped me out.

My mother now tells me I had better get my board, as my stepfather said I must. He has a good job, but says openly he don't think I ought to pay because I have to buy my own clothes and look after myself. Please tell me what I should do.

ANXIOUS.

You have my very sincere sympathy, my dear child, in your personal difficulties. But I think a girl of only 16, who has enough initiative to get herself employment, doing housework for a dollar a day and board, is going to succeed splendidly.

It seems grasping to demand board from a girl making only $3 a week, especially if she has to provide herself with clothes and carfare. Your stepfather seems trying to force you to live by traditions ascribed to that relationship. Perhaps, being a girl, you'll be able to get a better paying job, in which case you could live at home with your own father and grandmother. You have proved you've plenty of pluck, and that in the long run always wins.

SHE CHANGED WHEN HE TOLD HER HE WAS UNEDUCATED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a girl for future years. I find she always kept something from her. It is that I have no education. She has graduated and has a decent job. When I told her this to him me goodnight, and she replied, she immediately changed toward me. I see her often, but while she tells me she loves me very much, she will not accept me when invitations. She is now going with another fellow and I get frozen and banished and discouraged, competition ceases to be a sportsmanlike game and becomes a menace, a growing fear in our breasts.

The realization that each of us will do a given thing in a most individual manner will help us to cooperate with the other fellow rather than strive grimly to beat him at his own game. When we realize that there is a place for each of us in this world and that no one can do exactly what we are destined to do, then we shall begin to co-operate rather than defy other people who work or play along the same lines as we do.

I think that if we can get this idea constructively placed in a child's mind, we are laying a very sensible foundation for a normal, just and sporting attitude toward other people, for attitude which will endure throughout the child's whole life.

Particularly in families where there are two or more children, the life of the group seems, if not intelligently handled, to disintegrate into one of active and many times open jealousy and jealous competition.

There must first be the absolute knowledge in the child's heart that each child is loved by the parents that those parents have a wholehearted desire to see each child succeed at something. Only when this is [illegible] can any child be free from any thoughts of [illegible]ousy, any suspicions of favoritism, can they really co-operate with each other instead of eternally competing.

One can't teach co-operation to children unless one is innately fair and judicial in one's attitude toward the group, both as a group and as individuals. It is the parent's attitude which can turn a hostile rivalry into a sporting desire to help brother with his project, or sister with her school contest, etc.

Be sure you remind your son to help his sister when she gets a fine prize for her essay. Sister may be glad to help little brother with his lessons and take a real pride in seeing his work improve if there is the feeling of justice and fair play throughout the home. While there is a bit of jealousy lurking in the heart of any one of the group co-operation will be impossible. Get your attitudes straight. That is the cornerstone. Then you can engender a feeling of good natured competition (which is the spur) along with a genuine co-operation which is the good, dependable old horse that will take children a long milk toward happiness.

The Beauty Goes Job Hunting

Grooming And Make-up Play a Part in Her Success

By HELEN FOLLETT

Upon the appearance of the job hunter much depends she should look business-like and be of the mode. Neither the frump nor the speedy dresser has much of a chance. The boss of the office or the shop wants employes to look efficient, be smartly clad, carry not too much make-up.

Well groomed finger nails and well groomed hair are requirements. Manners count for a lot. The big gal and the timid one are both handicapped. The girl who smiles and is good natured is liked. Lady Godiva Gracie might as well stay at home, not go job hunting.

"Much of our white and red within her cheeks" wrote Shakespeare. Lucky girl. There aren't many of her days. Facial make-up don't seem to be blooming and that's why they're taken from bottles and jars. Rouge is the color of complexion coloring.

What's the explanation? Late hours, not enough sleep. We eat more wisely than did the girls of years ago, live in houses that are better ventilated, but life is more complicated, has much noise every pace, nervous systems aren't steady and the old custom of getting to bed at a reasonable hour simply won't settle itself.

If every woman grew her own blushes, there wouldn't be need of rouge. It's artificial coloring and fair play throughout the home. While there is a bit of jealousy lurking in the heart of any one of the group co-operation will be impossible. Get your attitudes straight. That is the cornerstone. Then you can engender a feeling of good natured competition (which is the spur) along with a genuine co-operation which is the good, dependable old horse that will take children a long milk toward happiness.

BOOKED FOR A YEAR—IN JAIL

Sally Rand, whose fan dance made her famous, has 60 days in which to appeal the verdict of a year in jail and $200 fine which was handed down when the dance she did in Chicago was judged "obscene".

mire him very much for this.

I like him, but never intend to marry him, because he isn't the type of husband I want. The other night I went out with him and told him we would have to stop seeing each other, because my mother objected. I intend to stay away from my home town until school starts, so that it will be easier for me to forget him, on the way home he stopped the car and asked me if he could kiss me before we parted, and I let him.

Later, when we got home, I don't know why, but I asked him to kiss me goodnight, and was immediately sorry. I think he must despise me for it, and I feel as though I shall never be able to face him again. I never asked a boy to kiss me before. Please tell me what to do because I would like to be friends with this boy, always.

SALLY.

I don't believe that boy will find it very hard to forgive you for asking for that goodbye kiss, my dear Sally. And I shouldn't be too rigid about not seeing him occasionally.

It's really much more normal and sensible for girls and boys to be friends and have good times at each other than live in the segregated lives some young people live. Granted he isn't the type you wish to marry, he may be the type of which good friends are made.

Teach Child Value of Cooperation in Play

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Competition in work or play is a very valuable spur to everyone of us if we use it wisely. But, like the spur under the foot of a good horseman, it should be used sparingly. An occasional glance at what the other fellow is doing is all right. It reveals to us our own status, our own degree of progress. But when we look so long at what the other fellow is accomplishing that we get frozen and panicked and discouraged, competition ceases to be a sportsmanlike game and becomes a menace, a growing fear in our breasts.

The realization that each of us will do a given thing in a most individual manner will help us to cooperate with the other fellow rather than strive grimly to beat him at his own game. When we realize that there is a place for each of us in this world and that no one can do exactly what we are destined to do, then we shall begin to co-operate rather than defy other people who work or play along the same lines as we do.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"The Man From Toronto" which opened yesterday at the Capitol theatre proved to be a naive and refreshing little picture that brought to Belleville the dainty Jessie Matthews, the handsome Ian Hunter and the thoroughly amusing Fred Kerr and Margaret Yorke. The picture is choice entertainment, for against the background of the plot there are innumerable village characters who provide rollicking mirth as members of a community being "uplifted" against their will. The scenes in the community hall when the erstwhile students discard their work for a romping dance when the powerful Mrs. Hubbard (Kerr) specifically ordered to avoid Mother Hubbard) leaves the room, and those at the garret itself are especially funnys.

The story of "The Man From Toronto" has been adapted from the well known play of Douglas Murray. The plot concerns a young widow of England and a Canadian in Toronto who have been left a fortune if they marry. Jessie Matthews is Lelia Farrar the widow and Ian Hunter is Fergus Winters, the Canadian. Both are indignant over the conditions but Fergus decides at least to come and see the widow. Mrs. Farrar overhears his frank remarks concerning his ideas of what the widow will look like and decides to resort to deception in order to get rid of Fergus. She employs Perkins*, a maid, and in the cottage that she as Mrs. Farrar has rented from an impecunious clergyman, Mrs. Hubbard, proceeds to entertain the Canadian who has been persuaded to enjoy the hospitality of the "absent" Mrs. Farrar. Keeping her identity as a maid is a bit too much and the friendship of the guest and maid gives the villagers much to gossip over. The wrathful cottage owner, Mrs. Hubbard (Margaret Yorke) comes to take command of the situation and the conventional "Polly" who has given the grim Mrs. Hubbard's picture as "Mrs. Farrar" tells the Canadian that she goes under another name to deceive him.

The denouement comes at the village pageant and Fergus saying that he hates deception prepares to leave, but as is inevitable in such a delightful comedy, all works out well finally.

ANN HARDING AND WILLIAM POWELL IN "DOUBLE HARNESS"

Ann Harding's charm and finesse and William Powell's polish distinguished their excellent characterizations in a highly interesting comedy-drama study of courtship and marriage in "Double Harness" feature picture which started at the Capitol yesterday and Friday, matinee and night.

Taken from Edward Poor Montgomery's New York and London stage hit, "Double Harness" nearly fits the talent of Miss Harding and Powell. Miss Harding, as a modern woman with old-fashioned ideas concerning marriage, singles Ian Hunter as her destined catch as her prospective husband. She traps him through virtual "ultragun" methods, but surprisingly discovers the drawbacks of such a marriage and is put to new feminine artifice trying to hold her prize.

Miss Harding and Powell equally show versatility in their performances. In the course of an eve, the talk-bonds queenly actress can veer from a sensitive coquette to a serious old-fashioned maiden; Powell can pass from a suave, man-about-town as facilely as he can represend a bemused and restive husband.

"Double Harness" features an especially splendid supporting cast in Henry Stephenson, as a doctor (Auburn colonel); Lilian Bond as a dashing widow, always on the make, and George Meeker and Lucile Browne as a modern young couple with their own marital troubles and Nydia Westman Gwen.

Special attention has been given to the short reels of the short great that precede the feature offering. Another of the popular "Rambling Along Radio Row" reels, introduces Jessie Ralph as Mamie in entertaining specialties and intimate studies, "Our Gang" is a very funny comedy "The Kid From Borneo" and the popular Belle Baker with the latest world events.

Silver Girls Tonight

Tonight on the stage at 9 p.m. the Belle Weekly Treasure Night will introduce a host of prizes, consisting of two, three piece Black Onyx silver mounted ladies' combination sets and clocks. These two gifts cannot be duplicated and are exclusive entertainment feature will appeal to each feminine patron tonight who has not had an equal chance of winning one of these two gifts, as the coupons will be distributed till 9 p.m. Night other exceptional silver gifts will also be presented tonight.

Claudette Colbert Next

Another Paramount program, show will be presented at the Belle, commencing Saturday. Claudette Colbert, Ricardo Cortez and David Manners are featured in Norman Anthe romance-drama "The Torch Singer" which comes to Belleville direct from the Strand Theatre, Toronto. George O'Brien, Claire Trevor and Ed Brandel are appearing on the same program in Zane Grey's "The Last Trail."

Thieves Hide in Telephone Booths Near Receiving Station

Boston, Sept. 28 (CP)—Three sacks of registered mail containing money and valuables estimated by Postal officials to be worth more than $100,000 were stolen from the south station this morning by four daring daylight thieves. They fled in an automobile.

One of the men was known as a "coin bag" and was outward bound to banks on Cape Cod. Postal officials told the police this contained money aggregating $40,000 to $50,000.

The other mail sacks were to be sent to Providence, R.I., and Portsmith, N.H., police were informed, and contained payrolls, in addition to the general run of registered mail. The post office officials said the total value of the contents of the three sacks was more than $100,000 and might be as high as $200,000.

The thieves, according to police report, concealed themselves in telephone booths near the receiving room of the postal station and rushed the mail bags as they were being removed to be placed aboard trains. Gathering up the registered mail sacks, witness said, the thieves fled through the baggage room to a waiting automobile.

Acting Chief Inspector John Lacey of the New England postal district and Acting Postmaster Frank B. Childs of Boston took charge of the search for the thieves.

Livestock

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP)—With 3400 head of cattle held over from yesterday and practically no trading today on the Toronto Livestock Exchange, observers were that the bulk of the supply would remain unsold. There were no cattle received on the market today. Hogs opened unsettled, sheep and lambs steady.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion (Livestock Branch): Cattle none; calves, none, hogs 335, sheep and lambs 1,100.

Hogs were unsettled at the opening with packers bidding 23 cents flat at $5.75 F.O.B. for bacons, $6.00 off truck and $6.25 off car. Trade was mild steady all day for good ewes and wethers, one lot weig at a top of $4.00. Culls and bucks brought $4.50 to $5.00. The few sheep offered sold steady.

Hogs: No quotations.

CAR DRIVEN BY ACTOR'S SON HITS WOMAN

Body Hurled 26 Feet Through The Air After Impact

Hollywood, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A young woman struck down and killed late last night by an automobile driven by John Huston, 20-year-old son of Walter Huston, the Toronto-born actor, was identified today as Mrs. Raoul Roulien, wife of the noted Brazilian actor who has been appearing in Spanish-speaking films in Hollywood.

Mrs. Roulien was struck by Huston's automobile as she was crossing Hollywood Boulevard. Her body was hurled 26 feet through the air.

Huston was questioned by police as was his companion, William Miller. Both were ordered to appear at the inquest.

Huston recently was in another accident in which Rita Johann, Hungarian actress, was injured. He was driving the car in which both were riding, when it struck a palm tree.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

New York Market Creeps up Regaining Part of Losses of Wednesday — Lake Shore in Demand — Bralorne Range—Nickel, Hamilton and Walkers Supply Main Buying Power at Toronto.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Sept. 28—(AP)—Stocks crept quietly upward in the market today, regaining a point each of the losses suffered in yesterday's setback. Alcoholic advanced 1, as did a number of substantial gains were recorded among metals, rails, utilities and various specialties.

National Distillers and Allied Chemical rose 2 points each while issues up around a point or more included New York Central, Public Ser. U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Johns Manville, Consolidated Gas, General Can, Case, Du Pont and Great Western Sugar. Fractional improvements were shown by U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, Bethlehem and Sear Roebuck.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 28—The main buying was again in, Hamilton and Walkers Consumers in today's session on the Toronto Stock Exchange with a point added to the list unsteady in the morning and firmer in the afternoon. Gains were few and scattered most in the metal and heavy industrial groups.

Hamilton added ¼ to ½ up, ¾ Nickel gained 40 cents in the afternoon session to sell at $16.00 against the previous close with C.P.R. was up ¾ and Ford A. down ¾.

Lake Shore and Consumer Pete traded ¼ higher as 10½ while Imperial and British American were steadied moderately lower.

The market appeared to be suffering from a mild setback was expected to develop from a new dose of Washington recovery news or from an oversold condition in the New York market. Offerings of stocks at the new prices showed small volume picked up only on firmer prices.

Brazilian was again bought for London account and it firmed nearly a point around noon. Dashing shares showed little buoyancy in the early trading.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP)—An improved tone in the standard mining list in the late trading today as Lapa picked up 3 points and base metal shares. This afternoon gains in Noranda and Lake Shore stiffened, the former advancing to $24.00 up 60 cents and the latter 25 cents to $46.50. Teck Hughes, Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer were also firm and Hollinger and Bralorne took narrow recessions.

Rezo and—Ventures were under scattered pressure from the early ground but the general tone of the medium price gold group was firm. Sian Andesite gained a few cents.

Noranda held steady but showed no good buying advance 30 cents.

In the early hours of trading there was some buying of several worth noting, the whole list moved within a narrow range, during slight weakness in the first hour and firmness by early afternoon.

Most of the big gold issues were unchanged to a cents lower with the exception of Dome which picked up 5 cents. Gold Eagle, which was best of the base metal shares, Noranda, Teck Hughes and the others were just holding. Rickardo and the other silver shares were inclined to ease off yesterdays closing figures despite moderate weakness in bar silver.

Attend Graduation Ceremonies at Ontario Hospital

Carrying Place —Sunday's Rally Day services at the United Church brought out an unusually large crowd. Service was held at 10.30 in the afternoon with the minister, Mr. Swayne of Consecon, in charge and the fine response given was a pleasure to church-goers and church workers. Fine weather was conducive to the attendance although it cleared off for the latter part of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Innes and family are spending a month at Lake Jy, while Mr. and Mrs. Will La Tour will occupy the home now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Innes. Miss Daisy and Maisie Innes are attending Trenton High School again this year and with a ten-mile walk ahead of them daily previous to home here, will no doubt welcome any change which will bring them nearer their school.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hanborn, with Miss Aileen and Mr. Stanley Hanthorn motored to Whitby last Tuesday to attend the graduation ceremonies of the nurses at the Ontario Hospital there. Two of Mr. and Mrs. Hanthorn's daughters are resident nurses there, one of them, Kathleen, being in the graduating class. Congratulations are tendered to Miss Hanthorn who has finished her course with excellent standing. The party returned to their home here, accompanied by Miss Aileen Campbell who has been in Hamilton for several weeks, very early on Wednesday morning. A picture of the graduating class appeared in the Toronto Daily Star one evening this week.

Tommy, the tame crow belonging to the Greig boys, has achieved fame. After visiting the school one day last week, his name appeared in this column; and from thence his fame carried him to the front page of the Quinte Loyalist. As though to inform the world that he likes this publicity, he has paid several visits to the "local" since learning, making quite a disturbance before he finally "strutted" in the last time. Pride before a fall, Tommy.

"I WOULD BURST OUT CRYING"

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Steadied and Quieted Her Nerves

"I had a nervous breakdown. I could not sleep, worried all day and hardly knew what I was doing. If anyone asked me how I was, I would burst out crying. I have taken six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and it has done me so much good. I can sleep at night. I am in good spirits and I am not half as nervous."—Mrs. R. Prue, 1717 Dundas St., Fort William, Ontario.

This must be a good medicine when 98 out of 100 women say, "It helps me." Get a bottle from your druggist today. Let it help you, too.

Miss Marie and Mr. Will Corrigan motored to Trenton on Sunday.

The water of the canal seems to have undergone a change of color recently. A slime seems to cover the walls and sides, and the greenish color of the water is causing residents to wonder if dredging operations being carried on in Trenton harbor have anything to do with it.

In connection with a statement contained in this column recently, this version should have been printed: Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hennessy returned from a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Jean Dunn of Detroit, Mr. Kingens at Deller, on Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. H. Murray and Buddy and Mrs. R. Vosburgh of Trenton were Monday afternoon guests of Mrs. Ross and Mrs. A. H. Norrington.

Trenton's annual drama and carnival held on Wednesday evening and attracted a large crowd. A few local people attended but returned early. It is possible that the lateness of the hour spoiled the pleasantness of the evening were responsible for the lack of attendance.

A softball team from Youngs' school came to Carrying Place on Monday evening to win from the local school team by the score of score of 36-6. Much credit is due the visiting team for the splendid way in which the girls and smaller ones played, making sure of their victory with the tremendous smashes that went for extra-base hits. The local team was weak in batting remembering that to lose gracefully is the true mark of sportsmanship.

A bed of giant dahlias in the garden of Mrs. Dave Hennessy are attracting more than a few admiring glances from travellers on the highway. Growing to a height of four or five feet, their blooms are almost dinner plate size in diameter, and their color is beautiful.

Mr. Will Hamilton is a busy man these days with more than his share than he can handle. His garage is open from daylight to darkness, and more than one car is getting its fall cleaning and lubrication.

Messrs Ernest and Harold Hennessy are delivering loads of wood to consumers through the community, having brought a carload of it from their farm at Deller recently.

CARMEL CHURCH HAS SPECIAL RALLY DAY SERVICE

Scenes Depicting Activities in the Stratford Strike Area

MILITIA DETACHMENT SENT TO STRATFORD STRIKE AREA

Conflict between strikers, strike-breakers and police in Stratford, Ont., have become so serious that the authorities were forced to call out the militia to quell the disturbances. Many were injured in the many pitched battles which occurred at the Swift Canadian plant in Stratford. The above layout shows a detachment of 75 officers and men from the Royal Canadian Regiment of London, Ont., arriving in Stratford complete with machine guns, barbed wire attachments and four tanks, hitherto unused for any purpose than army movements. The London detachment is in charge of Col. Langford, O.C., shown at right. Another detachment from Toronto is en route to Stratford.

St. Paul's Y.P.S. was held on Monday evening with President Harry Hulin in the chair. After singing two hymns and prayer, the president gave a talk on "The Book of Ruth". After a hymn and a contest the meeting was brought to a close with the Mizpah Benediction.

Mr. Ned Potts has received the appointment of librarian to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Miss Gladys Joblin.

RAINFALL WAS BADLY NEEDED IN FARM DISTRICTS

West Huntingdon, Sept. 26— The weather man surely comes in for much abuse these days. It seems very hard to please everyone. One half of our farmers are wishing it would clear up and not give us three little showers per week for harvest their buckwheat; the other half are wishing for a couple of days rain, as the ground is very hards, the wells also are going dry. Some have to drive over a mile to get water. A few are digging their potatoes which are an average crop.

Mr. Philip Carr was re-elected president of the Laymen's Association of the Belleville Presbytery at the meeting held in Stirling on Tuesday of last week.

Mrs. Chester Sills entertained the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's church on Thursday. A 2c dinner was served, a number of members of W.M.S. of United Church also attended.

TANKS USED TO QUELL STRATFORD RIOTS

The Royal Canadian Regiment from London, Ontario, called to Stratford to quell riots between police and strikers at the Swift-Canadian plant, took four army tanks along with them. ABOVE is seen the type used by the detachment. They are equipped with machine guns and the most modern small tanks available. The tanks are completely equipped and ready for instant use, if necessary, against the rioting strikers.

APPLE MAGGOT IS DISCOVERED

Insect Infests Orchards, Talman Sweets Being Favorite

Making its appearance for the first time in that section, the apple maggot, or "railroad worm," which has been discovered in the district of Rawdon this year will deprive apple growers and orchardists of that section of a considerable export trade in the varieties of fruit affected.

On the farm of F. C. Starr, Wellman's Corners, Rawdon, the pest had been discovered for the first time by a Dominion fruit inspector who made a careful investigation of the orchard last week. Only three maggots were said to have been found in one variety of fruit, the Talman Sweet apple, but this has been sufficient to ban the export of that particular variety of apple. Well over one thousand barrels of McIntosh, Ben Davis and Northern Spies, which have been packed for export, will not be affected by the ban on the former apple.

Spread of Pest Slow

According to Mr. A. B. Baird, of the Dominion Parasitic Laboratory in the city, the spread of the apple maggot or "railroad worm" has been slow but sure in this section during the past few years. Conditions, he said, however, were not as bad as those encountered in the Niagara district, where the recent strikers' ban will work considerable hardship to exporters all through the section.

In the Niagara district, the presence of even one or two maggots in an orchard is sufficient evidence to condemn the whole crop. Thousands of barrels of the fruit will thereby go stock food.

Methodical spraying of the orchards with lead arsenate is the only remedy for the pest, recommended by the local laboratory.

"The maggot is particularly fond of the Talliman Sweet apple," said Mr. Baird. "It is three trees which should receive careful attention. Spraying of the leaves of the trees with the mate, mixture will kill the flies before they lay their eggs in the apples."

INJURED IN STRATFORD STRIKE RIOTS

Many have been injured in various pitched battles in Stratford, Ont., between strikers at the Swift Canadian plant and police, who were supported by strike-breakers. So severe did the outbreaks become that authorities were forced to call out the militia. Above are shown some of those injured in the riots.

Host of Food in Forest is Tossed Behind Lodge

A local man is getting a bit caught up with this "free meals for tramps" business. He going to crack down hard on the next hack door transient who solicits a handout. The citizen, a businessman, who lives on East Bridge Street, responded to a knock on the back door Tuesday evening. Alone in the house at the time, the local man after considerable rummaging around, prepared several sandwiches and extras, put them in a paper parcel and spud the tramp on his way. Watching idly from the front window the man left and walked down the street. he saw him open the parcel, take out the king's piece of pie, toss the rest of the food along a hedge, and proceed on his way munching the pastry.

INSECT ALLIES DAILY ARRIVE

Wheat And Spruce Saw-Fly Will be Released in The West

Carefully sealed and insulated little packages, handled with all the diference and care accorded the most precious freight, are still being received at the Dominion Parasite Laboratory on Dundas Street fresh from their long trip across the seas from the British Isles and Europe. The carefully guarded and handled little boxes contain the latest additions to the ranks of the friend allies, which are being received regularly in this city from abroad, later to be liberated all through the Dominion by the local laboratory in an effort to control the destructive native and foreign insect pests which have made such inroads in the fields and forests of Canada in late years.

This week several shipments of the tiny parasites of the wheat saw-fly and the spruce saw-fly were received from Europe. The former insects will be shipped from here after a short rest, to the prairies of the west where they will be liberated with the spruce fly. The latter control the wheat stem saw-fly, whose destructiveness to the wheat fields during past years has amazingly grown more troublesome. The consignment of spruce saw-fly parasites received will be forwarded to the Province of Quebec and the Maritimes where the great spruce forests of the east have been threatened with the spruce fly. The latter allies will be fed well and rested before they leave the local laboratory.

GOOD DEED FOR DAY DONE

Woodpecker Found Stuck in Tree is Released

Bill McQuaig, of this city, did his daily good deed on Wednesday afternoon when he rescued a woodpecker from starving to death after he found it with its bill stuck tight in the crevice of a tree.

Returning from a mushroom hunting trip through Tucker's woods, west of the city, late in the afternoon, Mr. McQuaig observed the bird hanging limply from the side of the tree, suspended by the bill, with only the feeble flapping of wings to denote life left. Investigation disclosed the fact that the bill was wedged solidly in a deep crevice of the wood. Climbing up on a low limb he released the bird after the hole was enlarged with a knife, and set it on the ground. It hopped off, still shaking its head from side to side in a very dazed fashion.

And it was a red-headed woodpecker.

THREE LABOR CANDIDATES

and re-election. ward committees were chosen at the meeting Wednesday evening, composed of: Webb Knox, Louie Lake, Louis Palmatier, Howard Thompson, Wm. Kerr, Theodore Goddard, Jos. Knott, J. Williamson and J. Monk. These men will appoint assistants in various wards and will make a thorough city-wide house to house canvass for their representatives.

Signifying his intention of again entering himself to the voters in the coming election, Alderman Benjamin Bale, who was also given a hearty vote of thanks by members present for his efforts on behalf of labor during his term of office this year, spoke briefly on the difficulties encountered by the present council this year.

"Admittedly, there is work to be done in the city, but this council finds itself in the same position as a good many men have—it has no funds to carry on the work. It's no use to promise anything, but I can say the council is looking over two or three projects at present, and perhaps in a week or so there will be some work for you men here."

Enthusiastic applause marked the brief address given by Alderman Bale.

In his first pre-election address to his supporters in the ball, Ald. Bale referred briefly to pay inequities to the excellent manner in which Aldermen Wm. Ross carried out his chairmanship this year. He urged his listeners not to be misled by the Liberal candidate, owing to their greater familiarity with him as chairman of the Association he was addressing.

"Choose the candidate you believe will serve your own interests best," he exhorted.

Men by Clique

In a slashing attack on official-dom in the city, Mr. Baldero promised to "clean up certain civic departments, if elected." "This city is run by a clique, and it has been for years. If elected, I'm going to take it out of the hands of that group and hand it back to the rightful owners—the people," he declared.

"As one instance of what I mean exactly I say that some departments should be overhauled I'll cite a little incident. I was down at the relief office the other day trying to get some information. I rapped on the door and asked for the Mayor.

"Is Mr. Tice in?" I asked one of them.

"Who?" he repeated.

"Mr. Tice! I repeated.

"Don't know the gentleman," was the answer I got.

"Maybe I have been known as an agitator," continued Mr. Baldero. "Well, I admit I am. But I'm not; is also the highest expensive. Agitators are also the highest expenders there are."

A nineteen point platform" was elaborated upon by the speaker. "On that platform I'll run, gentlemen,

SEPT. 28- MR. AND MRS.- RAINY DAY COURTESIES

TARZAN. LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Prince Gobrad spoke the usual charge to a contesting knight that ended with a blessing "upon thee and thy sword." But Blake did not reply in the accepted form. Instead he said: "To the honor and glory of Mimmr, and to the protection of my princess, I pledge my sword and my life." From his expression, the prince seemed not displeased at these unusual words and the haughty look upon Gulnaida's face softened.

Slowly she arose and, tearing a ribbon from her garment, stepped to the front of the logs. "Receive Our favor from thy lady, Sir Knight," she said, "and bear it to victory." Jimmy Blake reined close to the logs rail and bent low, while Gulnaida pinned the ribbon upon his shoulder. His face was close to ours. "I love you," he whispered. In a voice as low as his, she replied: "It is but for the sake of the five maidens that I encourage ye with this favor."

Blake looked into her eyes, "I love you, Gulnaida," he repeated, "and you love me." Before she could answer, he had wheeled away, the trumpet had sounded and he now rode slowly to his end of the field. As before, Jimmy cast aside his bunker, nor did anyone reprove him this time. For had they not previously see him best Sir Maiud without any other defense than his horsemanship and his sword? they shouted in derision.

The trumpets blared again. Blake turned and put spurs to his charger. Straight down the centre of the lists he rode. From the opposite end of the lists came a knight of the Squinbec to meet him. "Sir James!" cried the spectators on the Nimmr side, while the other stand answered with the name of their champion. "Who is the black knight?" questioned Bohun's people. "Look! He hath no buckler," they shouted in derision.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

SYNOPSIS

Vernon Mabee, wealthy young New Yorker, sighs for adventure but can find no suitable outlet which will give him the desired thrill. Walking home with his friend Dodd Speed, Vernon deplores the lack of romance in the world. The friend, as an old man ejected from an old-fashioned restaurant. The old man, hammers on the door and is heard by two men. Vernon and Dodd join in the fight. The assailants of the old man are put to flight Vern and Dodd assist the old man to Vern's home. Vern finds that his apartment has been looted of all its furniture, except the radio, which is going full blast. Over the radio comes a description of a missing man, who fits the description of the friend's friend. Vern and Dodd summon a taxi and depart for the address given—the Wings at the foot of a pier in Yonkers.

CHAPTER III.

It was one o'clock when they arrived at the old loading pier at the foot of Campbell Place in Yonkers. It was easy to locate after me. I don't recollect being hit there but perhaps I would not have noticed."

Vernon couldn't tell in the darkness of the cab what the color of his friend's eye might be. To him it did not, for the moment, seem important.

They got out and went across a rarashackle gang plank to the deck of the yacht leaving their elderly guest in charge of the chauffeur. The hatch over the companionway stood open and there was a light at the foot of the stairs to they descended.

The cabin which was rather shabbily furnished was filled with people, three of them white-haired old gentlemen in rebellious or unintelligible condition.

"An old gentleman's home," deduced Dodd.

"Not at all," Vernon corrected. "These old men are being delivered in response to the broadcast. Look!"

A woman had entered the saloon from a rear compartment probably a stateroom. She was of medium height, slender, with chestnut hair and eyes and complexion of appropriate shades. She wore an old plaid skirt and a khaki middy blouse—probably the most trying thing of clothes for a girl to wear. She was rather pretty, Vernon thought, in a boyish sort of way. Her hair was cut short and her face was tanned. Her eyes were dark and snapped with anger.

"Dad!" she cried. "What are you doing here? I told you to wait in the car."

"Sh-h-h, Sally," whispered Dodd. "I told you she would be a homely old maid."

"Homely old maid!" Vernon repeated aloud. In horror. "Why this girl is young and charming."

"Vern, old man, your eyes are changed."

"She is beautiful." Vernon persisted doggedly. "Sh, she's talking."

Miss Ferguson did have a rich warm voice.

"I'm sorry, gentlemen, but none of these is my father. I regret exceedingly that you should have all your trouble for nothing because I have no money with which to reward you. All that I can do is to thank you for so promptly responding to my appeal."

A murmur ran through the ranks of the somber portion of the assembly. The white-haired old gentlemen moved blissfully on, almost as one man.

One by one the guests departed. Not until they were all gone with the exception of Vernon and Dodd did anyone realize that the white-haired contingent had not suffered the loss of a single withdrawal.

"Gentlemen, wait!" Miss Ferguson appealed in a voice that was almost a wail. "What am I to do with these strange old men?"

No one answered. If any heard it only spurred them to swifter retreat and the noise of departing automobiles filled the crisp spring air.

"Never mind, ma'am," volunteered Dodd. "By morning they will all probably be legs ill off and will know where they belong."

Miss Ferguson turned to Dodd and Vernon as if they were twin pests in a stormy sea, but recalled a little when she saw how disreputable they looked.

"Surely some of these gentlemen belong to you," she suggested, "and you will take at least two of them away."

"No ma'am," Dodd replied. "Me and my tongue-tied friend here didn't bring any of these members of the Pre-Eyed Club to this meeting. But we've got another candidate for admission outside in a taxi."

"Another?" The despair in her voice indicated that she just couldn't stand any more.

Vernon cleared his throat. "It might really be your father," he suggested.

Vernon Mabee had a nice voice himself. It was husky now with unnatural shyness but it arrested her favorable attention anyway for a moment.

"Shall we bring him in?" asked Dodd.

The girl shivered. "No. I'll go outside and look at him. There isn't room on the yacht for one more homeless old man." She wasn't going to take any chance on their going away and leaving their contribution to science on her doorstep.

She came out to the taxi which now had the road to its lonely self; all its lovely companions had faded and gone.

One look was sufficient. "It's my dad. Bring him aboard."

Vernon and Dodd, who were used to handling the old man by this time, supported him onto the yacht and to the bunk which the daughter indicated as being ready for occupancy. Almost at once he was in a worn leather wallet from the breast pocket of his coat and open it. It was empty.

She turned on the two Samaritans. "You have robbed him!" she accused more sadly than in anger. "It was all we had."

ELECTROCUTED BY DEVICE

Testing Target Practice When He Receives Shock

Collingwood, Sept. 26—While hundreds of people thronged the military school here at the Great Northern Exhibition grounds on Wednesday, Lieut. Malcolm Alcock, aged about 23, met his death by electrocution.

Lieut. Alcock stepped on one of the "live" wires of the fair where heavy guns are used for target practice with illuminated bullets, and a terrific non-machine would be had. One of his children was at his side and was hanging to his brother leg. As Alcock grasped his brother he shouted as if in pain, and apparently could not release his hand from the machine. The operator shut off the current and his body walked a distance of about ten feet from the machine before collapsing.

His pulse was found to be strong for about a minute after he was electrocuted. He was rushed to Dr. MacKay's office, where artificial respiration continued until all hope was given up.

Dr. MacKay stated that there was no doubt that Lieut. Alcock had died through electrocution. An investigation of the apparatus shortly after the accident did not reveal any short circuit.

RIVERS REACH FLOOD LEVELS

Further Destruction is Wrought in Storm Stricken Tampico

BY CLARK G. LEE

Tampico, Mexico, Sept. 26 (AP)—The rain-swollen Panuco and Tamesi rivers rose steadily above flood levels and brought further destruction to this port, still prostrate from Sunday's hurricane.

Heavy rains fell west of here and the National Observatory warned that tropical storms might continue until Friday.

Scattering reports came from nearby towns of additional deaths, injuries and property damage. Military aid and federal authorities set forth immediate efforts to meet their needs for food, water and medicines.

Eduardo Vasconcelos, Mexico Minister, expediting relief work, but it was believed the water supply could not be restored within five or six days.

With the food supply rapidly diminishing, Thursday's arrival of the steamship Monterey of a train load of provisions and soldiers to help in reconstruction work.

WALKATHON STILL GOING

Students Raid Show But Order Soon Restored

Montreal, Sept. 26 (CP)—"The show must go on."

The walkathon, that queer endurance test which has been prospering near Montreal since July, continued today despite a raid last night by University of Montreal students just back from vacation.

Authorities soon resumed control, the stumbling, shuffling contestants four pairs and a single, were back amid the drudgery of 50 minutes walking, 10 minutes rest, 50 minutes walking, 10 minutes rest.

It was a hectic night at the $50,000 home of the Walkathon, just off the Montreal-Carillerville highway within the borders of St. Laurent.

The students arrived by street car. They had told the conductors they were going to stop the walkathon and demanded—and received — free rides by virtue of their number.

Armed with vegetables, decidedly on the "out" side, and stink bombs, they descended on the place, forced their way in and cleared the floor. Static bombs and vegetables were used freely, windows were smashed and pandemonium form down. Loud speaker equipment and most of the electric lights were put out of operation.

COLD FIGURES SHOW NRA IS PROGRESSING

$13,000 Return to Work in United States During August

BY SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 26 (CP)—Cold figures have brought warmth to the hearts of President Roosevelt's better-times drive.

Increased employment, slightly faster pay envelopes, a heightening of wholesale prices were on the record and the increasing tempo was carried forward from July into September, even if at a somewhat slower rate than the more rabid supporters of NRA had hoped fully predicted.

The employment of 815,000 persons during August, with 11,001,000 still jobless, was the estimate of the American Federation of Labor.

Race in Bag but Thousands Cheer as Actual Running Staged in Theatre

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 26.—(CP)—Dizzy.

The race was in the bag for Queen Dizzy and everybody knew it.

She was favored to win the first classic of the field. Besides a powerful ring was conspiring against her. Hoy Jockey was dosed at the last minute and she left the barrier with a wild-haired Kentucky mountain girl up.

But

In spite of all this, $100 wouldn't get you one against her from the bookie's windows. They knew she'd win going away—and she did.

The race run last night on a double-entry basis, was not for the delectation of the railbirds, however, but rather for lovers of the drama. It was the climax of the famous American melodrama, "In Old Kentucky," written at the turn of the century by Charles T. Dazey.

Directed by the author himself, now 76, the play was presented on a real race track and with a real horse race for the first time in more than 10,500 performances.

Where before Speedy Queen had been content in the thrilling race had been conveyed to the audience through simulated hoof beats behind the curtain, last night's triumph was actually shown from the start to the desperate stretch drive under the wire. Actors spoke their parts from a 100-foot stage constructed across the race track until the climatic race.

Then a group of horses from the nearby Fairview Park Track entered the cast and the track itself became the stage of the spectacle. Mandy Brierly hooted Queen Bess home a winner to confound the villains and save her ill-treated jockey sweetheart's honor.

WAR CLOUDS LOOM ON FAR EASTERN HORIZON

Chinese Delegate Tells Japan Violated Treaties Predicts War in Far East

Ominous Clouds Gather On Horizon And Plans Laid

INCREASE NAVY

Swedish Delegate Protests Racial Inequalities at Geneva

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Geneva, Sept. 29 (CP Cable)— In quiet tones Wellington Koo, chief Chinese delegate to the League of Nations assembly, today predicted war in the Far East.

The assembly was continuing debate on the year's work. Koo, while praising the League's technical accomplishments, declared the year as one of disillusion. Japan, despite the decision of the assembly, had been permitted to violate with impunity the League covenant, the Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty of Washington, in its campaign in Manchuria and Northern China, he declared.

Even as Dr. Koo, former Chinese Foreign Minister, was speaking reports were received from Tokyo that military leaders were asking an army appropriation of $171,000,000. In the year in history, for the 1934-35 budget, including nearly $30,000,000 for new materials.

"In days' fighting south of Great Wall—in China proper—China had lost 30,000 dead and wounded," Dr. Koo declared. "And still we remained in occupation of Manchuria and Jehol Province, despite Article 10 of the League Covenant. In asking it the covenant was to be nothing more "a scrap of paper."

"Japanese violation of treaties by bombing, he said, concerned the world. Japan "might was right."... It placed a premium on aggression.... It gave a free access to the world to disregarded increased armaments as implying security.

Cenhomes Clouds Rising

"Ominous clouds are rising on the far eastern horizon," said Dr. Koo. "The race for armaments has begun with huge naval and air manoeuvres, fleet concentrations, the fortifying of bases and enormous increases in war expenditures."

The principal mover in the race was Japan—and one of the greatest in the world, had given official notice that it would remain in war still stronger when the present treaty limitations expired. "The writing is in the Far East," he warned, "point to a major conflict in a few years."

Ang from Sweden, R. J. Sandler pleaded for the rights of racial minorities. He did not specially mention Hitlerism but German interference was obvious. The Swedish government, said the delegate, would welcome discussion on the question of the general application of special treaties guaranteeing minority rights.

Criticized Political Theory

Sandler went further. He sharply criticized the whole political theory which established racial inequalities, declaring it contrary to the fundamental principles of the League itself. "We are all men, he said, the same humanity," he quoted pointedly from Kant, as the delegates applauded.

Jonkheer de Graaf, Dutch Minister for Foreign Affairs, then proposed that the assembly make special provision in the 1934 budget for the Jewish refugees from Germany. These had left Germany in the thousands and established themselves in neighboring countries. Should the return home, he said. Private help was inadequate. Formal collaboration was necessary to establish them in countries where they could be placed without disturbance to national economy.

STREET RAILWAYMEN CAST STRIKE VOTE

Against Accepting 15 Percent Wage Cut Proposed

Winnipeg, Sept. 29 (CP)—Street railwaymen employed of the Winnipeg Electric Company, cast the first ballots in a strike vote early today. Union leaders predicted the men would reject the 15-per-cent. wage cut ordered by the company, and would vote in favor of submitting the dispute to a provincial conciliation board.

If the vote is unfavorable to the setting-up of the provincial board, a strike will be called immediately. Results of the voting will be known late tonight.

DEFENSIVE ARMAMENTS REQUESTED

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 29 (AP) —Germany as any risk will insist on the right to possess defensive armaments, a leading member of the German delegation here today declared in an interview.

He confirmed that disarmament negotiations which have been under way unofficially for some time would continue in a friendly spirit.

If Germany is to accept an armament control plan such as the one advocated by France, he added, however, this must be accompanied by the authority to enforce sanctions, like military aeroplanes, which will not be abolished, when the negotiations eventually negotiate about arms reductions.

COUNCIL CAN CALL STRIKE

Running Trades Vote For Strike Against Cut

Montreal, Sept. 29 (CP)—Officials of the railway running trades today notified the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railway they 30,000 members had granted the general council of the five unions power to call a strike against the 10 per cent. wage cut made by the railways.

The railways, he said, accused of "violation of treaties" by the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is acting for both railway companies in negotiations with the running trades, confirmed the statement. He said no immediate strike date was anticipated but it was too early to make any comment on the situation.

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—Joseph V. McKee announced his candidacy today for Mayor as a Fusion ticket.

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—After spending nearly $30,000,000, the Farm Board announced today that it has role as purchaser of pigs and for their sale to packers to be used by livestock centres. By nightfall, the Farm Board officials expected to have as a result of a month's purchases nearly 6,000,000 pigs weighing up to 190 pounds and more than 150,000 sows soon to farrow.

Time Honored Ceremony Performed as Lord Mayor is Duly Elected

London, Sept. 29 (AP)—Charles Henry Collett, identified in a time-honored ceremony at London's ancient Guildhall today as Sheriff-alderman and Glovemaker" today was elected Lord Mayor.

The Sheriff, mounted hat ang sword and carrying a bouquet in his hand rode into the central figure in a colorful pageant. Mrs. Collett and retiring Lord Mayor Sir Percy Greenwood took a balcony.

"All ye who are not liverymen depart from this hall on pain of imprisonment," shouted the common crier to open the ceremony. But it was evident that most of the spectators preferred to risk jail by keeping their seats.

SETTING FIRE TO REICHSTAG IS ADMITTED

Marinus Van Der Lubbe Gives Version at Trial

NOT PREMEDITATED

Idea Came as He Was Walking by The Building

(By W. E. Hockmann)

Leipzig, Germany, Sept. 29 (AP) —Marinus Van Der Lubbe admitted an unequivocal admission of guilt in the burning of the German Reichstag building at today's session of the case in which he and four others are on trial.

Judge Wilhelm Buenger answered "yes" to the question of his own version of the burning. Thereupon the defendant, standing in the prisoner's dock, and Brownshirt eyes replied hesitantly and reluctantly to questions at the head of an earlier confession, drew a confirmation from Van Der Lubbe.

"Do you admit setting fire yourself to the Reichstag?" the Judge demanded.

Almost inaudibly Van Der Lubbe replied, "Yes."

Later, in response to repeated prodding, Van Der Lubbe added: "I had no intention of so doing when I awoke that day. The idea came to me as I walked past the Reichstag building. I spent the afternoon in a suburb returning to the city at eight o'clock."

The father of Hagen Popoff, one of the three Bulgarian political refugees among the defendants, attended court today and was permitted to sit on the defendants' recess.

Smashed Window To Enter

According to Van Der Lubbe's story, he climbed up the west facade of the Reichstag building to a broad window ledge, smashing a window to enter.

The fire was lighted with matches and tinder as Van Der Lubbe dashed in a signag course through corridors into many rooms.

He smashing his way through a floor glass into a cellar and finally came to Hermann Hall. There, the tinder gave out on the way, he used his shirt and, finally, then when the strips of drapery as he found them.

He finally broke straight in the Bismarck room.

At the conclusion of the questioning of Van Der Lubbe, court was adjourned until Wednesday in view of a convention of Nazi Lawyers here.

STRIKING MINERS ENLIST LABOR AID

Miners Battling For Recognition of a Union

Clairion, Pa., Sept. 29 (AP) — Moving to enlist steel's laboring forces in their battle for union recognition, caravans of striking bituminous miners today began action plant of the Carnegie Steel Company at Vandergrift, Pennsylvania.

Shouting and singing, they swept into the Smoky industrial town of one U.S. steel's strongholds of today for Mingo and Logan and 5,000 men recruited from five counties. Their aim, according to their demonstration to add the Clairion plant to the 10,000 already in the 10,000 other steel workers and 75-100 miners already on picket duty in the great Tri-state region of steel and coals.

County officers and Clairion police hailed the trucks at the edge of the town, but no permission for the "marchers" to parade through the streets on foot.

Stratford Strikers Ridicule Invasion of Militia

3 MOTORISTS AMBUSHED

Car, Cash And Jewelry Taken by Three Gunmen

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP) — Ambushed on Riverside Drive near Little River Bridge, three Chatham motorists were robbed of automobile, cash and jewelry by three gunmen shortly before dawn today.

The Chatham motorists were Howard Witt, driver; robbed of $7.50; and his fiancee, Miss Margaret McLaughlin, robbed of cash, watch and chain.

The Chatham automobile was travelling towards home, when the trio of things, coming from behind in another car forced them into the curb. Witt, thinking the pursuing machine was a police car, pulled into the roadside.

The gunmen "commanded" the motorists to get out of their car, robbed them and made away in the two machines.

The stolen car was found three hours later, abandoned on a side road near Tecumseh.

CAR STRIKES TRUCK REBOUNDS IN DITCH

Guelph Residents Injured in Crash

Kitchener, Ont., Sept. 29—(CP)— Joseph Veri and Dick Fero of Guelph were severely injured today, when the car in which they were riding collided with an oil truck midway between here and Guelph. Both suffered head injuries.

Jim Rosa, in the rear seat of Veri's car, and Goldwyn Bauer of Kitchener, driving the oil truck, were unhurt. The car was badly smashed as the car struck it and rebounded into a ditch. The automobile, which Seri is said to have bought only last night, was wrecked.

TRADE AGREEMENT SIGNED

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 29— (AP)—An Anglo-Finnish trade agreement was signed today terminating negotiations begun last May. It was understood Finland has given facilitie sto British textile and herring exporters.

CLAIMS HEAD TO BE THAT OF HENRY IV

Paris, Sept. 29 (AP)—A mummified head which is claimed to be that of Henry IV is now in the possession of a Montmartre photographer named Bourdais, according to an article by the novelist, Paul Reboux, in the current issue of "Vu", a review.

The photographer bought it at an auction in 1919 for three francs. The present owner of the countenance, a mole, and other marks, Reboux writes, has convinced the owner that it is really that of the king, who was assassinated May 14, 1610.

Since the desecration of the Royal Tombs during the French revolution the head has not been accounted for.

King Henry IV was born in 1553. His reign was distinguished by religious and political wars, the signing of the Edict of Nantes, efforts at economic reforms, and plans for forming a European confederation of fifteen states. He was called "Henry the Great" and was known for his quick wit, rugged sense, and affability.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Yellow Springs, O., Sept. 29: (CP)—There has been a decision early today in the office of Mr. Elizabeth McClintock, Associate Personnel Director at Antioch College. A lady cricket on the boards has asked for chair-raping.

This ad followed in the college paper: "Wanted—a husband by a widowed cricket, Gentleman cricket desired with congenial tastes. Good family background. Love of wooden life, children and music more important than financial stability.

Albany, Ore., Sept. 29.—(CP) —For years Matthew Harcourt, married worker, has earned his living as a "human torch." Wrapped in flame, he would leap into a pool of water and he never got burned.

Recently, while driving a truck he discovered the interior was afire. Quick as a flash flames bare-handed and was unburned.

Seattle, Sept. 29.—(CP)— When Arthur Perry wants to get into a show free he just winks at the cashier and walks right in. Arthur is three years old.

After police had been notified he was found in a pool up safely at home. He'd "winked" he said, and got into the show.

ARRIVE IN LONDON

(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 29 (CP Cable) — LLondon was wrapped in its first autumnal fog today when the King and Queen reached Euston station from Balmoral Castle, Scotland having travelled through the night. The Prince of Wales also came back to London, arriving at Kings Cross station.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS TODAY

All Jewry Called To Atone For Their Sins

At sunset this evening will begin the most solemn holiday in the Jewish calendar, Yom Kippur, the day of Atonement, observed by Jews the world over until sundown tomorrow. The Shofar, the ancient ram's horn, which is blown only on the highest holidays of the year, will call young and old to prayer for their sins. Throughout the night Friday, services in the local Synagogue will be almost continuous, and on Saturday until sundown. The impressive rites will be attended by all orthodox Jewry in the city while the attitude will be perfect by other visitors from throughout the district.

8 YEAR TERM IS IMPOSED

Belanger's Sentence Within Month of Completion

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP) — Joseph Isidore Belanger, 21, was sentenced to eight years imprisonment today after the death of Leo Trilsbeck, a fellow prisoner at Burwash Industrial Farm, Mr. Justice O. Kingstone imposed the term just a month before Belanger's original sentence expired.

It was while Belanger was serving two years less one day for theft of a suitcase that the altercation occurred in which Trilsbeck was killed. Belanger was working in the kitchen and the other was one of a group of convicts who had been working late and were seeking a meal before going to bed. In an argument over the food, the evidence showed, Trilsbeck attacked Belanger who picked up a knife. In the struggle Trilsbeck was fatally wounded.

The jury last night found Belanger guilty of manslaughter after first reporting a disagreement. They added a recommendation for mercy.

"Marrying J. P." of Yuma Occupies Warm Niche in Hearts of Stars

By RALPH O. BROWN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Yuma, Ariz., Sept. 29—(CP)— A chubby, pretty, white-haired gentleman in this town occupies a warmer niche in the hearts of many of the movie world's near-great in United States than probably any man in the country.

Why? Because he has married them. They have stayed married, too, on his advice and because exposure to the merry twinkle of his eyes gives usually results in a lifelong friendship.

He is Earl A. Freeman, "marrying J. P." of Yuma, the southwest's Gretna Green. For seven year "the Judge" has been marrying folks left right, including nearly twelve some of the film personages of Hollywood.

Freeman's three day marriage law started it. The fatherly justice of the peace that title is given by a hop, skip and jump from the state line—has kept it going, and growing.

You can be married in Yuma before the ink on your license is dry, if "Judge" Freeman is at hand. And he always is. Only one thing is ever allowed to interfere with his immediate response to a call. That is his passion for fishing.

Freeman has performed ceremonies in his office, in his cottage, in hotel rooms, in his own home, in the open desert, and in Yuma's Ford with music and flowers, or to the accompaniment rattle of a stenographer's typewriter.

Swift Canadian Plant at Stratford to Cease Operations Temporarily

Unable to Meet Demands Made by Employees on Strike

STAY INDEFINITE

Troops Will Remain Until No Longer Required

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 29.—(CP)— All live chickens were removed from the plant of the Swift Canadian Company, workmen who had assisted in their removal were taken out, and the plant was closed early this afternoon following the last of the chickens was pulled out a siding alongside the plant without disorder and the men were taken away in a truck as they left the last carved.

A heavy police guard was on duty. Pickets booed and jeered, but there was no violence. Some strikers who had walked out demanding an increase in the rate for chicken-plucking.

Remove Stock Quietly

The closing was carried out without untoward incident, in contrast to Tuesday's disturbances when strikers made determined efforts to enter the plant. On that occasion stones were thrown and six persons injured during a pitched battle with police. A brief flareup occurred again yesterday but was stopped before it could get well under way.

New men were brought in to pack more than 10,000 chickens in the plant so they could be removed to another establishment. Slight increase of a rail scheduled by the company for ten o'clock in the morning; heavy police guards were rushed to the property, but nothing happened. The new chicken-packers were taken into the building again this morning, and pickets, greatly diminished in numbers since Tuesday, watched the truck move in but made no concerted attempt to penetrate the police barrier.

Cease Operation —

J. H. Tapley, manager of Swift Canadian Company, Limited, Toronto, said today the company's plant in Stratford would remain temporarily out in strike for higher wages, would cease operations temporarily.

"It is with great reluctance that we have to cease operations at this time," Tapley said, "but since the demands having been made for pay rates and hours which it is impossible to grant and continue to operate the business, he said.

Mr. Tapley said he was hopeful the situation may clear up in the immediate future, as the season of agricultural products in the Stratford district may again keep the factory as a source of marketing for their produce.

Will Take Hand

The suggestion that a Stillman's conciliation be taken in Stratford's troubled labor situation was made today by Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General of Ontario, in a long distance telephone conversation to Toronto.

Col. Price was called in an effort to determine how long the soldiers were here as a precautionary measure would remain. They would stay in the city until his department was advised by the Stratford Police Chief that order could be preserved without their presence, he said.

The Attorney General added the detachment of Provincial troops will be moved as soon as order is restored.

BIG BROTHERS WILL INVESTIGATE TERM

Believe Sentence Too Severe for 15 Year Old Boy

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)—Sentence of two years in Collins Bay Preferred, Prison, imposed on a 15 year old boy at Windsor calls for an investigation in the opinion of Frank Sharpe, General Secretary of the Big Brothers, and Rev. Dr. Ernest Thomas of the United Church of Canada. It is expected both bodies will investigate the circumstances surrounding the case.

The lad was charged with theft of an automobile and cash and sentenced yesterday.

BURGLAR SCARED AWAY

Port Hope, Ont., Sept. 29.—(CP)—A burglar thought to be responsible for a number of thefts here recently, last night was sent scurrying by a woman's scream, after he had broken into her house. Mrs. J. Culbertson, in the burglar scaling the verandah. "Get back or I'll shoot," she threatened. The thief fled.

City and District News

KIDS DON'T MIND THE COLD WATER

The swimming season in this district is not over yet. With the evident enjoyment of polar bear clubs, a number of youths braved the cold and chilling winds at the end of Victoria Park yesterday afternoon in their abbreviated bathing suits and spent a half hour splashing and paddling in the harbor. Temperature of the water was in the neighborhood of 60 degrees. Brr-rrr-rrr!

RELIEF WORK PLAN NOT YET DECIDED

Thurlow township council has yet to decide on any relief work projects which may be passed to assist unemployed of the township during the coming winter months. When questioned today, Mr. Wm. Grey, Reeve of Thurlow, stated that so far the matter of work for the unemployed had not been taken up, but that at a later meeting of the council the question would probably be dealt with.

BARBERS DIVIDE ON PRICE SCALE

Barbers of the city were divided in their ranks today over the question of whether to cut or not to cut. While one lady barber stated shops displayed in their windows large signs of the scale prices which have resulted from a small price-cutting war, the other shopkeepers stood solidly pat on their refusal to follow the lead of other barbers and reduce their price from 40 cents respectively for shaves and haircuts. The same scale prior to a number of the shops is twenty-five cents for haircuts and fifteen cents for shaves.

GOVERNMENT BOAT REPLACES BUOYS

The government buoy carrying steamer, Acme, of Prescott, with Captain Barrie in charge, passed up through the bay yesterday on her way to Trenton, where a number of buoys that had shifted position during the past season will be replaced, being placed in their proper positions to mark the ship channels in that port.

BRIGHTON SHIPS 30,000 BARRELS

Thirty thousand barrels of apples, comprising the largest consignment in some years will be shipped from the district of Brighton this season by Mr. Hoek Hoss of Brighton, well-known produce dealer, who has recently completed the deal. Most of the apples, which are mostly McIntosh and other early varieties are being shipped to the British Isles, and are the cream of the bumper crop of the fruit in that district over a lengthy period.

MADE NECESSARY THIRD GAME IS

Word was received in the city today that a third and deciding game between the Peterboro "Sugar Bowl" men's softball team and the Jackson Press of Kingston, would be played at Trenton on Saturday afternoon. Arrangements for this Eastern Ontario final men's softball play-off were left in the hands of Charlie Tebbenoff, secretary of the local men's softball loop. Peterboro won their home game as did the Kingston team. As the two clubs could not come to any amicable agreement relating to locale of the third and deciding game the league executive ordered the game played in Trenton.

NEW MANHOLE ON CHURCH ST.

Considerable work of repairing defective catchbasins and manholes and the clearing of sewers throughout the city is being undertaken by the department of public works this week. In several locations new catchbasins have been constructed to take care of street flooding, and one complete manhole is being built on Church Street north of East Bridge street, where difficulty in past years has been caused in keeping that line of sewer open.

GILEAD ITEMS OF INTEREST

Everyone was glad to see the rain which fell on Tuesday night.

THE BELLE ENTERTAINMENT SEASON" OPENS

At the beginning of each season, motion picture exhibitors all over Canada are bombarded with enthusiastic accounts of what the film companies are going to produce. Glowing word pictures are painted describing the wonders of the new movies.

Famous Players Canadian Corporation officials however, have always waited to be shown and have not rushed into an enthusiastic publicity campaign on the strength of mere promises, no matter how sincere they sounded.

This season, however, company officials have pre-viewed product from the leading studios from both Great Britain and the United States and have no hesitancy in advancing the opinion that the new product, which will be ushered in the "Belle Entertainment Season" by the Belle Theatre in this city, commencing Saturday, is the finest made since talking pictures were invented. The company takes pride in characterizing the pictures coming for as "Canada's Finest," firm in the belief that the new product will live up to the claims made for it.

Never before have such great casts been assembled, or has such care been shown in the selection of stories.

Producers realize now more than ever before, that the public is interested in one thing only—entertainment, and millions of dollars have been already spent in producing the kind of entertainment producers believe discriminating theatregoers of Belleville will like.

ENDEAVOURERS' S.S. CLASS

The Endeavourers' Sunday School Class of the United Church, West Huntingdon met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Post, Sept. 19, for their monthly meeting. BETHEL CHURCH ERECTED IN 1863

To Commemorate Founding at Special Services

Plainfield, Sept. 29.—The Bethel United Church congregation of the Plainfield pastoral charge of which the Rev. J. F. Bowman is pastor is holding anniversary services on Sunday, October 1st. Rev. H. B. Johnson, B.A., of Sidney circuit is to be the speaker for that day. The occasion which is the seventieth anniversary of the erection of the church. A tea meeting is being held on Monday evening, October 2nd.

The Bethel Church which was formerly a Methodist Episcopal Church was erected in the summer of 1863. The mason work was done by James Simmons and was so satisfactory he let the building contractors that they tendered him a dinner party. The carpentering work was done by Allan Embury and was equally satisfactory. The cost of the church at the time of construction was estimated at $2,000.

The dedication service was held on Sunday, January 10, 1864. The morning sermon was preached by Bishop Smith, D.D.; the afternoon sermon by Bishop Richardson, D.D.; and the evening address was given by Rev. J. Gardiner, P.E. Father of the late Mrs. Ella Gardiner. The church was filled to capacity at each of the services.

On the following Monday evening a very successful tea meeting was held. The old school was used as a kitchen and dining hall. Tables were arranged and the ladies in person and these were filled five times and the large sum of $192 community were highly praised for the wonderful success.

The supper was followed by a program which was given in the church, which was presided over by Lewis Wallbridge, the Hon. Speaker of the House of Assembly. People were present from all parts of the county and representatives of denominations. Addresses were given by Dr. Dewart, Rev. Dr. Jeffers, Hon. Billa Flint, Dr. Holden, Mayor of Belleville, A. F. Wood, Esq., Warden of the County and Bishops Richardson and Smith. A choir from Allen's Corners, Hillville furnished the singing and music.

The cash and subscriptions received at the time of the opening services amounted to over $700.00 and was sufficient to provide for the remaining indebtedness against the structure.

The name given to the church was "Bethel" which means "The house of God." The shed has been inclosed and a new steel roof put upon both the shed and church this fall. The cost of these repairs will be about $300.00.

The trustees of the church at the time of its erection were: Jacob Young, George Phillips, Joseph Haslet, Mark Phillips, John Phillips, Jacob Denyes and William Sills. The trustees at the present time are: James Phillips, John F. Kitchenson, Thomas Robson, Hiram Phillips, Lee Ketcheson, Willard Delyea and Billa Ketcheson.

There was a short discussion at the time of its erection were: Jacob Young, George Phillips, Joseph Haslet, Mark Phillips, John Phillips, Jacob Denyes and William Sills. The trustees at the present time are: James Phillips, John F. Kitchenson, Thomas Robson, Hiram Phillips, Lee Ketcheson, Willard Delyea and Billa Ketcheson.

There is a membership of the Young People's meeting on Tuesday evening. A song service opened at 7.45. Following this the leadership was taken by Mrs. Harry Harrison. The Scripture lesson was read by Mr. F. J. Hassard. Prayer was offered by Mr. Frank Hicks. Mrs. Harrison and Jack Cow sang a duet, "God's way is the best way." The topic dealing with the hymns we sing" was in charge of the pastor. Miss Annie Hamilton read a short paper explaining the character of the hymns in a general way, showing that they were not descriptive lexical except by usage. Mr. Frank Hicks gave a short paper on the life of George Matheson after which one of his hymns "O love that will not let me go" was sung. Mr. Everson gave a talk on Isaac Watts, after which was sung his famous composition, "O God our help in ages past." Mrs. Wilbur Elliott read a paper entitled "Talking with God." Ruth Dunning recited, "Crossing the bar." A reading "The Happy Child" was given by Elsie Maynes. Mary Marshall read a paper entitled, "The New Church Organ" and Mrs. Clarence Hall one entitled, "When you come to the end of a day." Mrs. Jean Hamilton conducted a bird contest.

MAY CLOSE TOURIST CAMP NEXT WEEK

Decided Decline Noted In Number Using Camp.

A decided decline in the number of tourists taking advantage of the facilities of the camp during the past few weeks may prompt the closing of the camp for the season earlier than in previous years. Ordinarily the annual closing date has been set on October 15. This year, with the number of tourists stopping off, the date of closing may be advanced to the end of next week. Condition of the weather may assist in deciding whether or not to remain open longer. It is expected that while the number of tourists at the camp this year may be less than last year, the number will be above that of two years ago, the last profitable year for tourist traffic.

SCAVENGER BIRDS MUST BE LEFT ALONE

Warning Issued By Game Authorities at Toronto.

Warning is issued by the Department of Game and Fisheries to all hunters of this district against the shooting of all so-called scavenger birds who may inhabit the marshes or waters where duck shooting is now being carried on. Pointing out that the value of such birds as ceaselessly active in keeping the marshes, rivers and lakes free from dead fish and other putrid matter, notice is also given that gulls, loons, grebe, or bell-diver, cranes and bitterns are in the protected class and may not be destroyed. The warning follows advice given the department that in some districts a few hunters often test their guns in the day's shooting by aiming at these birds at the latter class of harmless bird.

POLICE COURT

A man giving his name as John Burke, of Toronto, was arrested by Constable Evans and charged with common vagrancy in Friday morning's police court before Magistrate Mikel. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ten days in jail.

The arrest followed complaints received regarding his "panhandling" on Front Street last Thursday afternoon. On being searched a small amount of rubbing alcohol was found on his person, most or which had apparently been consumed. The bottle was returned to have the duty on the expiration of his sentence.

A Pontiac coach bearing license plates 50-845 was reported stolen on Thursday night. A complete description of the car was forwarded to police departments throughout the province.

Two defendants pleaded guilty to infractions of the L.C.A. The case was enlarged until the 4th. of October for hearing.

ROSLIN W. I. HOSTESSES TO ZION-BETHEL

Roslin—The Roslin Women's Institute entertained the Bethel-Zion Women's Institute at the home of Miss Beatrice Jones, Sunday Street, Belleville, on Wednesday evening, September 27th. A large assembly was present and enjoyed a pleasant evening.

The main feature of the evening's program was a talk by Rev. Harold Reid on a trip which Mr. Reid took two years ago to the British Isles; this was illustrated with lantern slides. Others assisting with the program were Miss Bernice Arbuckle, who gave two delightful readings; Miss Knight, who favored with a solo and Miss Mildred Ketcheson, an instrumental selection.

Mrs. James Carbuit, District President, and Miss Hanlan, and Mrs. Morton Weese of Redneersville, were present and spoke briefly. The ladies of Roslin branch assisted by Miss Jones serving a delicious lunch, after which all joined in community singing.

Votes of thanks were tendered to Rev. Mr. Reid and the others who had contributed to the program of the evening and to Miss Jones for her very kind hospitality.

At a late hour all left for their homes feeling they had spent a very pleasant and profitable evening.

OBITUARY

LATE ALEX. KENNEDY

Marmora, Sept. 29 (Special)—Widespread sorrow was felt by the whole community on Tuesday morning, when Alexander Kennedy died occurred at 9.30 a.m. at his home here. The late Mr. Kennedy was born at Blairton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dee Kennedy in the year 1871. Prior to his death, Mr. Kennedy had been ailing for a few weeks, and it was advisable for him to be removed to the Toronto General Hospital. There remained two weeks, returning to his home, and was still under the doctor's care and had his daughter, Myrtle, from Toronto, attending him.

He is survived by one son, Percy of Oshawa, and the latter part of his life, up until a few weeks before his death, he was employed as foreman in the Oxide plant, at the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. He was a member of the United Church, Conservative in politics, and was a member of the I.O.O.F. and A.F. and A.M. No. 222.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and five children, Percy of Lindsay; Carmel of Pemberton; Charman of Pemberton; Myrtle, Reg. N., of Toronto, and Miss Marjorie, principal of Pontefract Continuation School. He is survived by one brother, Thomas of Guelph, and one sister, Mrs. Chatterton, of Toronto.

The funeral was held under Masonic auspices on Thursday, from his late residence at 2.30 p.m. to St. Andrew's United Church, where Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth took charge of the service, assisted in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. MARGARET DOYLE

The death occurred on Wednesday morning of Mrs. Margaret Doyle, aged 87 years, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. Brawley, Dekon, Ontario, survived by seven sons and four daughters.

Funeral services were held this (Friday) morning in the Sacred Heart Church, with interment in the Catholic cemetery. Deceased's husband is extended to the bereaved family.

CONVICT SHIP SAILS WITH CARGO IN CHAINS

Most of Those Aboard Vastahed for Life

St. Martin De Re, France, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The convict ship La Martiniere sailed today with a cargo of some 670 caged criminals in its holds, voyaging in chains to the "Devil's Island" penitentiary of French Guiana, 4,000 miles away.

An international record for the most part, condemned in many instances to imprisonment for life, the human freight was the first shipment in two years to the Devil's Island—including the famous Devil's Island—off the Eastern coast of South America that bars the distant prison colonies of France.

Among the unwilling passengers are 70 recidivists, habitual criminals, and 700 convicts have escaped within the last year—was Guy Boucher, 24, of Paris, who was convicted of slaying an American, Richard Hall, for the gold watch a chance acquaintance, possessed and Jean Bonnet, 22, convicted of his gory shipmates, was sentenced to hard labor and exile for life.

TO SEE SON IN ONE YEAR

18 Months Legal Fight Agreeably Settled For Time Being

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (CP)—After an 18 months' legal fight to gain custody of her son, Mrs. Gabrielle Betts in Supreme Court today agreed to return to her home in France and leave her 12 year old son at Nedley College until next summer. Next summer she will be allowed to see him, but not until then.

The boy has been in the custody of his grandmother and uncle in London, Ont., since the death of his father in Reno, Nevada, several years ago.

Both parties are said to have been satisfied with the settlement. The mother agreed it would be better for the boy to continue his studies undisturbed until he is ready for university.

Madeleine Betts married Col. Betts in France during the war. It was alleged in court the marriage took place against the approval of his family and when he was killed in an accident his mother assumed full custody of the boy. He will be of the lad's grandfather a provision was made that "the boy would lose his legacy if returned to the custody of his mother.

POLICE NO NEARER SOLUTION OF DEATH

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 29—(CP)—Police today apparently were no nearer a solution to the puzzling circumstances of Mrs. Peter Gadzala's death than they were on Wednesday when the woman's body was found in a water-filled cask at her home.

Chief of Police Wigle believes that Mrs. Gadzala killed herself. He pointed out today that no marks indicating a decree of violence necessary to force her into the rain-barrel appeared on the body. "We have looked into every possible angle and so far we have not found anything that will explain it," he said.

Boxing Card at Airport Oct. 6

The first boxing card held at the airport for the fall term has been set for Wednesday next, October 4, with Officer L. E. Wray has the program completed, and what a card.

Howard Cole, Trenton's hard hitting shopper is matched with K. Callaghan of Kingston. Cole won his three fights in the spring shows but was K.O.'d by Callihan a month or so ago in Kingston. Gallivan is to be there with hitting and carries the title of Kingston district champ.

Gordie Morris, Belleville's prize bantamweight, will have real tough opposition when he meets H. Wheeler, the hunsa amateur boy. Wheeler was defeated in the finals in 1933 for the Ontario bantamweight title.

Arrangements are to be made to attend a special section has been reserved for ladies and ladies with their escorts. Ten other bouts are scheduled with real action promised in each.

Sandy McLean of Oshawa, will be the referee and Jimmy McKean is a well known figure in boxing circles in Oshawa and Toronto.

Apples

Apples now hold the big share of work in the Trenton district. It is estimated that over one hundred thousand bushels will be picked in the area between Trenton and Brighton. There is a lot of apples and a trip along the highway right now will convince you that the apple crop will lose a lot of business if the slogan "an apple a day keeps the doctor away" is forgot.

"Clenbourne" orchard, owned by Mr. W. Fraser, Jr., is situated just north of the overhead bridge, between Brighton and Trenton, is a huge place right now. Several gangs are now at work picking and packing. Between two and three thousand barrells will be harvested off Mr. Fraser's farm this year.

The Trenton Fruit Storage put on a night shift this week to handle the large quantities to be stored and many to be graded. The Trenton storage is capable of holding nearly 40,000 standard barrels. Our loads are leaving every day for export by the Montreal Steamship Line apples, especially spies, will be picked, starting this week or so. The warm weather and bright sunshine have colored the fruit almost perfectly.

Working Conditions Improved

The past week has seen the unemployed list fall down considerably with many returning to work in the orchards and packing plants in the district. The Benedict-Proctor silverware factory nearly doubled its capacity payroll working full time. The Canada Crushed Stone Co. also has nearly one hundred men last week after nearly two months of short shifts at the Cold Storage and a few being added weekly to the new plant of the Canada Coalter Co. make times look like they did a few years ago. It is hoped to see most of the town's relief bill considerably in the past two weeks. It is to be hoped it continues.

Personals

Mr. Chas. Cook and daughter, Ruth, and two sons, Bernard and Lloyd, motored to Picton yesterday to attend the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Croll have returned home after a motor trip to the Century of Progress Fair at Chicago.

BANK HOLDUP AT MONTREAL

Undetermined Amount is Taken by Two 18 Year Old Boys

Montreal, Sept. 28.—(CP)—Two young men held up the St. Catherine and Rue Jeanne D'Arc street Branch of the Royal Bank of Canada at midday today and escaped with an undetermined amount of money.

The two were said to be about 18 years old and did not wear masks. After obtaining the money they walked out of the bank and disappeared. Police were notified and radio patrol cars rushed to the east end of the city, where the bank is located.

JOCKEY CLUB STAKES WON BY TAI-YANG

Important Race For Three Year Olds In England

Newmarket, England, Sept. 28.—(CP Cable)—Mr. Morriss' three-year-old Tai-Yang, by Solario out of Soubriquet, easily won the Jockey Club Stakes today by a length and a half over the warm favorite, the late Aga's full-brother, with Edward Esmond's Interthing, Derby winner, a length back.

The winner starting at 4 to 1, Felicitation at 4 to 6, and Interface at 20 to 1. Seven ran the mile and three-quarters of the big race, worth approximately $35,000, the field including a Canadian and the best three-year-olds of the season.

21ST MEMBERS AWAIT HOUR FOR RE-UNION

35 From Local Club Will Join "Comrades at Kingston

400 EXPECTED

Programme For Day Arranged With Service And Banquet

About thirty-five ex-members of the 21st Battalion (C.E.F.) are expected to sojourn to Kingston, Saturday, to attend the fifteenth annual reunion and dinner of that Eastern Ontario unit. The big movement eastward, will be made from the Armouries at 1 p.m. though some local parties acting as an advance guard, will establish communication at the reunion headquarters in the Limestone City at the Frontenac Hotel tonight.

Saturday afternoon and evening promises to be an eventful epoch in the annals of the 21st members. Many will form up in the Armouries at 2.30 p.m. and proceed to the 21st Battalion Memorial Park where a memorial appropriate service will be held. At 4 p.m. the annual meeting and election of officers will be held in the Armouries and dinner will be served in the La Salle Hotel in the evening. The fifteenth annual reunion banquet will be the procedures from 11 a.m. onwards.

Invitations were sent out by the committee in charge, Kingston is to be the greatest day and many special illuminations are to be seen at night with a program of music by the 21st Battalion Band.

400 To Be Present

From four to five hundred old comrades are expected to gather in Kingston for the event. They will include two former O.C.'s of the unit in the persons of Major-General William St. Pierre Hughes-Hughes, and Lieut.-Colonel Henry Edward Penne, D.S.O. and Bar, Croix de Guerre, both of who have signified their intention of being present; include, Major Thomas Bell, D.S.O., and Major Kidd, M.C., the old wartime padre of the unit.

The 21st Battalion was organized in October, 1914, by Lieut.-Colonel (later Brigadier-General) William St. Pierre Hughes, and was shortly afterwards embarked for overseas service. The unit was recruited from Eastern Ontario, including Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville, Picton, Cobourg, Brockville Lanark, Perth, Smith's Falls Carleton Place, Almonte, Arnprior, Renfrew, Pembroke, Lindsay, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Trenton, Lake Shore, Campbellford and Cornwall.

It went to England in May, 1915, and to France in September of that year, where it was in the Canadian Division and saw service on all sectors of the Western Front till after the armistice. Altogether, the battalion served with the army of occupation in Germany and was the first unit of the 2nd Division to cross the Rhine. Demobilization of the unit was made in Kingston on May 24th, 1919, after a service of five years, all but a few months of which was in the front line with the Canadian Corps, and its members have always held the high fighting position it held and the notable record it made in active service.

PRESENT BRIDE AND GROOM WITH LIBRARY TABLE

Thomasburg—A very pleasant evening was held in the Oddfellows Hall on Thursday, September 21st, when a hundred friends and former neighbors gathered to spend another social time with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dudgeon, bride (formerly Miss Ethel Boldrick. Ralph) believed the bride could not for the occasion of his marriage pass without remembrance, Mr. Harry Coulter, in a few well chosen words read and Mrs. Dudgeon to take chairs at the front of the hall, Mr. Coulter read a very appropriate address and the presents were presented with a library table. Ralph replied expressing their thanks for the beautiful gift and invited one and all to visit them in their new home. Mr. Dudgeon, father of the groom also spoke expressing his appreciation of the thoughtfulness shown to his son and his bride. Lunch was then served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

A few from here attended Stirling Fair on Wednesday despite the unfavorable weather. The public school children also took part in the championship, several carried off prizes.

THE TREATY WITH ARGENTINA

The seal has been set upon Britain's new trade agreement with the Argentine by the signing of a tariff treaty between the two countries of Buenos Aires. This puts into practical operation the policy set forth by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales when he opened the British Exhibition in Buenos Aires in 1931 and in the addresses he subsequently delivered upon the subject of our trade with South America before various British Chambers of Commerce. The main idea behind that policy is to readjust trade relations between the two countries by means of mutual tariff concessions, designed on the one hand to stimulate Argentinian exports of raw materials to Britain and to increase the volume of manufactured British goods to Argentine, and at the same time to set free a large volume of frozen British assets tied up during the depression by the action of the Argentine Exchange Control Commission. This is to be effected through the granting of a loan by Britain to Argentina. Argentine duties on British cotton textiles, machinery and automobiles will be reduced, the Argentine shipment of meat to Britain readjusted, and the Argentine Government accorded a loan of some $60,000,000 for the purpose specified.

Before the new treaty was planned, the Argentine Republic had all the best of it in her trade relations with Britain. She exported to the Old Country nearly $200,000,000 worth of produce, while importing 000,000 worth only a little over $100,000,000 from Britain—less, in fact, than she bought from the United States. And this despite the fact that it is almost wholly British capital that has been used in the development of Argentina. Britain owns and manages over 16,000 miles of railways in Argentina, and these always draw all their requirements in locomotives, rolling stock, rails, machine tools and coal from Britain. Half the shipping that enters Argentinian ports is British: there are many other important British enterprises creating a demand for British goods and the annual interest of British capital and in normal times, before depression, there was a return of some £25,000,000 subject to income tax; credited every year from British capital invested in Argentina.

It is clear, therefore, that Britain has a substantial and direct interest in the promoting prosperity of the big Latin-American Republic and in the development of reciprocal trade. The stable exports of the two nations are complementary, and the British market is essential to Argentina; and the new treaty, which it is confidently anticipated will redress the adverse trade balances indicated above, is designed to open up broader markets on both sides. Great Britain has not been unmindful of her obligations under the Ottawa Pact in effecting this new agreement. The interests of the Dominion are declared to be adequately guaranteed. It is American trade with the Argentine which will be most heavily hit, and it is with the object of offsetting this that negotiations are to be opened shortly between Washington and Buenos Aires. Whatever may be the result of these, they cannot affect the new and substantial advantages assured to British exports through the new tariff accord.—Montreal Star.

ANGLICAN BLACK BISHOPS

The friendly little chappel of Lambeth Palace was crowded with imposing dignitaries of the Church of England. The rector's daughter read the King's mandate, signed in George V's own handwriting. The Archbishop of Canterbury examined the Bishop-designate in certain articles of the faith. Returning, after putting on his episcopal habit, the applicant knelt while the Archbishop and six assistant bishops laid their hands on his bowed head. Thus, narrates the Manchester Guardian, was Canon Alexander Babatunde Akinyele consecrated as assistant Bishop of Lagos.

This new black bishop is the seventh West African to be raised to the episcopate of the Anglican Church. The first was the late Samuel Adjai Crowther, whose son Archdeacon Crowther is already far advanced in age. The new bishop is described as a slightly-built little man, possessing "a rich brown skin and live expression of a young man, though he is actually fifty-seven." He was greatly impressed, adds The Guardian, with the beauty and solemnity of the consecration ritual at Lambeth.

THE 1936 OLYMPIC GAMES

Germany is already laying elaborate plans for the 1936 Olympic games, to be held in Berlin. A stadium in western Berlin will be the scene of the meeting. Near by, in a temporary settlement, like Olympic Village in Los Angeles last year, visiting athletes will be lodged.

German authorities preparing for the games are looking forward to a turnover of $2,750,000, an Associated Press dispatch from Berlin reports. They expect to sell from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 tickets at prices ranging from $1. to $3. A government subsidy, a national lottery and sales of memorial stamps and memorial phonograph records will aid the project. Swastikas will be removed in order to provide for additional seats, bringing the capacity of the stadium up to 85,000.

THE SEASONS

Spring is a lad with a lute in his hand,
Capering over the land,
Wooing the flowers with his wistful notes,
Putting his tune in the meadow-larks' throats;
Whimsical, mystical, brimming with joy,
Spring is a madcap dancing boy.

Summer is glad with a deeper mirth,
Bringing her bounty to bless the Earth,
Green is her robe, with rich brocideries,
Flowers and fruits on her grasses and trees.
Singing she goes through the sunwest days,
Fertile her ways as a woman's ways.

Autumn is only a gypsy maid,
Wandering freely and unafraid;
Leaving her path splashed with scarlet and gold,
Gaudy her raiment, her laughter is bold.
Autumn seems poised, at a breath, to depart;
Ah, how the charm of her captures the heart!

Winter, an old man who strides through the world
Under his white flags, far-flowing, unfurled;
Fierce is his mien as he conquers the Earth,
Nothing about him of bloom or of mirth;
Only, locked deep in his breast (ah, who knows?)
Memories may linger of lark and of rose!

KILTIES' BAND REUNION, scheduled for next month in Hamilton holds interest for many Belleville people, some of whom took an active part in the band. Prof. and Mrs. Albert Johnstone, of this city, and their wee daughter "Kittie," accompanied the band on the "Kilty" Grant of the C.N.R. Express Co., Belleville, versatile drummer, made the 'Round the World trip. The Kilties Band was organized in Belleville in 1909 by the late T. F.A. Power, who piloted the organization successfully through twenty different countries. At the Crystal Palace, London, the band played to 170,000 paid admissions; Philadelphia 150,000; adison Square, New York, receipts of $7,000 for one day; Coliseum, Chicago, receipts of $6,000 one day. At Sydney, Australia, the Town Hall, seating over six thousand people, was sold out ahead for two weeks. The Belleville Kilties played to 1,000 in the Million Dollar Festival Hall at the World's Fair in St. Louis, Missouri, the Panama California Exposition and had many other notable engagements including "Command" performances before the Royal Family in England and Scotland. The tour 'Round the World started at Belleville, May 24, 1908 and closed at New York City, August 7, 1910.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS include a report of a wedding in Cuba, the parties were poor, living in a fishing village but the bride wore a handsome $700 dress, gift of the admirer who looked it during the revolution. This gown had been designed by one of Cuba's smartest modistes at a cost of $1,000 and had been worn once by an official of the Machado government. It is a safe bet that the fisherman's daughter was happier in the grand gown than the official's daughter.

UNITED STATES SENATOR ROYAL S. COPELAND lost his pants in Erie, Pennsylvania, having hung them up in his hotel bed room, while he courted sleep. Thieves entered and removed the pants and some four hundred dollars in cash, but refused to take a Canadian banknote for $100 which Senator Copeland agreed with him to accept as a keepsake. They evidently thought the bill was phoney, for which the stripped Senator is profoundly glad.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion Should TRY THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food repeating, etc., are caused nine times in ten by too much acid stomach," says well known authority.

Nursing bottles acid accumulated in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis or stomach ulcers. Don't clog an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestants that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a dose of Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meal will digest naturally and you will feel better than Bisurated Magnesia is so certain to do this that it offers to return the money if stomach acts and indigestion is not relieved. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist. It is safe, reliable and guaranteed to use, is not a laxative and is not at all capricious.

Letters to The Editor

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 29, 1933

Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

Dear Editor:—

Please insert in your valuable and appreciated columns for the benefit of the public, including our fair-minded Mayor and conscientious aldermen, three views regarding the operation of the local arena, which is, undoubtedly, a credit to the city.

Last winter through the fortunate continuance of the arena privileges, a figure skating club was formed here and practised under the skilful training of a competent instructor from Toronto, to a fine degree of perfection. Should the arena have to close up this season, all of the preliminary organization and laying of the foundation will to a great extent come to naught. This club is an additional achievement to the interests of our progressive city, and the enterprise of certain individuals in this respect should be encouraged and backed up by all possible co-operation. Where is there such splendid advertising medium as that furnished by good intercourse of community groups composed of sports folk with same endeavors?

Taking into consideration that money expended for the arena's fine physiques and culture of our youth is well invested, that only a few hollows for many months about the only recreation that can be enjoyed to advantage and that school children particularly have free skating indoors, Saturday afternoons throughout a long skating season. It behooves serious regard for thanks for the heritage possessed in this respect.

Our city council is elected to protect the welfare of the citizens, to exercise just judgment, over maintaining our unique opportunities, and to lead out as model of vision for every advancement possible.

In case the arena management cannot weather the present situation, our city fathers should be alert to safeguard and help to save what is accumulated already by much effort. By all means, let us keep the rink, not backward any more.

With gratitude for your co-operating service, I am, on behalf of the Belleville Figure Skating Club,

Stanley W. Wilbur.

LINDBERGHS LEAVE MOSCOW CAPITAL

After four days of sight-seeing and study of Soviet aviation, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off shortly before noon today for the Scandinavian destination, which was believed to be Helsingfors and Stockholm.

The couple arrived on Monday from Leningrad and Nizhni Novgorod were busy in a round of teas, functions to their honor, visits to aviation tours of schools, museums, and aviation plants.

Tonight they took a cordial send-off by civil and air officials who crowded the landing stage at the Dinamo Boat Club on the Moscow River.

They took with them two tame rackets given them by inmates of a Moscow prison police camp for homeless waifs near Moscow, which the Lindberghs visited yesterday.

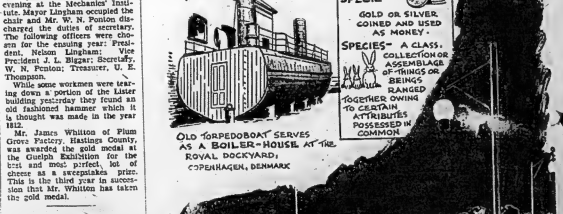
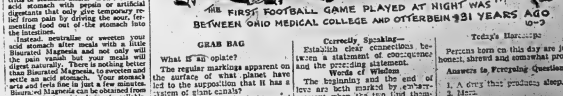
THE BIRCHALL MURDER TRIAL

ON THIS DATE, in 1893 a jury at the Woodstock Assizes returned a verdict of wilful murder against John Reginald Birchall for the killing of Fred C. Benwell, who had been lured to Canada as a "farm pupil" by Birchall and done to death in a swamp near Princeton in Oxford County.



The story of that awful crime has been well told by Dr. A. R. Hassard K.C., of Toronto, in his "Old Country and Other Murder Trials," as well as by this late John Murray, for as many years the chief inspector of Ontario Police, in his "Memoirs of a Detective." There is no need here to go into the sordid details; it is the trial in which we are interested today. It was held in the ancient town hall of Woodstock, one of the oldest in the Province. Presiding over the long judge was Hon. Justice Macdonald, a judge of legal talent, who has never been equalled in any court room in Canada. H.B. Osler, Q.C., John Cartwright, Q.C., and S. O. Ball, Crown Attorney for Oxford, conducted the prosecution: George Tate Blackstock, I. F. Hellmuth (still much alive and in the forefront of the Toronto Bar), and S. O. MacKay defended. The trial lasted a whole week. Newspaper men were there from all parts of the continent, special correspondents sent long accounts to the English papers; in short, it was a world sensation.

Mr. Blackstock, than whom there was never a more picturesque and efficient figure in our courts, did his best, but his case, drama.ic though it was, was shattered by the meticulous analysis of the evidence by Mr. Osler. "His speech, over 13,000 words, was read in full length" to the London Times.] Judge Macdonald's charge occupied over two hours; and then the jury retired. They were absent only an hour and a half. The silence with which the crowded court room greeted the reception by the jurors from their box was more eloquent than words and when the word "Guilty" fell from the foreman's mouth, there was a sigh of relief from everybody. No one had anything to say after verdict: the evidence was too damning. Even in these days there was sometimes a doubt as to how far a jury could be swayed by eloquence and by the skill of counsel. The prosecution of Oxford County, however, were not to be diverted. They had heard the evidence and their verdict rested upon the facts.



The sentencing of a man to death is always a tragic thing to witness, perhaps more so than usual in this case, as the murderer stood up in the dock to hear his doom. Some one at the press table remarked to the judge put on the black cap. "There goes the snuffer on Reginald's candle of life." The sentence was brief and in the usual formula. He was to be taken back to the place from which he came and there to be hanged on November 14 following. The execution was supposed to be private, but there were many witnesses. "Woodstock was crowded; the vicinity of the jail was thronged and when the black flag went up signifying that the law had been vindicated, the people dispersed to have a drink, talk over the case, and wonder if they would ever hear its like again."

SON OF OLD-TIME GRID STAR CANADA'S 13-LETTER MAN

BY BEN GOLDBERG

TORONTO—Among the great college athletes on this continent the name of Dr. Eddie Sinclair will probably go down as one of the greatest. To him goes the distinction of being the only Canadian thirteen-letter man.

In the history of college sport few athletes have ever won double letters, but no one has ever reached the thirteen mark.

In the United States the names of George Owen of the Boston Bruins hockey team and Barry Wood, formerly or Harvard, are looked upon as super ex-College athletes. The former was a nine-letter man while the latter won eight. Yet when one considers the achievements of Sinclair the all-round exploits of the foregoing pale into insignificance.

There was hardly a sport in which Sinclair did not participate at the University of Toronto, from which he graduated two years ago. These achievements are commemorated in the form of some one hundred and fifty medals and trophies. One of his most prized medals is the "varsity bronze "T", most coveted prize the college can give. It can be won only through award. Only fifty athletes have ever won this "T" during the 100 years' life of the university.

As a boy Sinclair excelled as a sprinter. In 1923 he won several inter-scholastic Ontario track titles. The following year he won the Interscholastic track championship of Canada, establishing a broad jump record. The next year found him a member of U.T.S. Canadian football champions. At U.T.S. in 1925 he defeated Chapman, Canada's Olympic breast stroke swimmer. Sinclair practically gave up track athletics in favor of football and swimming. He played for the O. R. F. U. until he received a fracture shoulder. In 1928 he established a Canadian record for the 50 yard breast stroke. He also rowed for Varsity at Henley against McGill.

Not only did Sinclair participate in athletics, but in 1928 he managed the Varsity intercollegiate football team. At that time he played two intercollegiate title winning teams—as a member of the swimming team and on the water polo squad. It marked the first time that Toronto won the polo title since its inception some twenty-three years ago. The next year he captained the polo team and won the intercollegiate breast stroke championship. In 1930 he made the wrestling team and went to Montreal to compete in the finals, where he met an opponent some sixty pounds heavier than himself.

Now a dentist, Sinclair still finds time to coach Toronto Varsity's polo and swimming teams. In between his dentistry he wrestles regularly at the Y.M.C.A. In fact, he is thinking seriously of becoming a professional grappler and continuing dentistry as well.

Sinclair is the son of that great old-time athlete, Alec Sinclair, one of the greatest Canadian gridiron stars or all time, as well as a mighty caveman.

Eddie Sinclair comes by his 13 letters honestly.

By a Ballot of Wheels the Motorists of BELLEVILLE agree with the rest of Canada in preferring GOODYEAR TIRES

More motorists in this district ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind. This was proved the other day by a "ballot of wheels"—an accurate tire-by-tire count on cars parked at our recent Fair. The figures are given below.

All over the country tire surveys offer convincing demonstrations of Canada's overwhelming preference for Goodyear Tires. The "ballot of wheels" at the Canadian National Exhibition showed that 40.56% were Goodyears. At twelve Canadian fall fairs an average of 40.84% were Goodyears. At seven leading Canadian race tracks an average of 40.37% were Goodyears. At the Canadian Open Golf Tournament 43.71% were Goodyears.

Wherever large numbers of cars of all makes are parked it can be proved that more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind." This is the strongest statement that can be made about Goodyear Tires, because the public speaks—not Goodyear.

RESULT OF SURVEY AT BELLEVILLE FAIR

1st Tire—GOODYEAR	40.56%	5th Tire	5.51%
2nd Tire	14.18%	6th Tire	4.26%
3rd Tire	7.51%	All other makes	16.67%

WESTERN TEAM HAS PLENTY OF NEW "MOUNTIE" MATERIAL

Coach Al Ritchie Announces He's Through With Prairie Champions—New Coach Named—Stalwart Figures Lined up For More Anticipated Honors

(By Andy McDermott)

Special to the Ontario Intelligencer

REGINA—Eastern Canada may be putting all its hopes for Dominion senior football honors in American importations—but not the Regina Roughriders, perennial champions of the Prairies.

"Get Your Man!" should be the red-and-black clad westerner's battle cry for 1933. It has been the byword (so the writer's tell us) of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for years.

For Regina Roughriders this year have a squad of ten recruits from the ranks of the famed scarlet-coated force to work on. And in the squad are Dan Manzie, one of last year's Ottawa Roughriders' line stars; Chuck Forbes, sprint record smashing "mountie" athlete and Pacific coast English rugby half who accompanied Canada's touring team to Japan a year ago; Donaldson, former stellar player of the Ottawa Rangers, Quebec-O.R.P.U. champions, a smart lineman, and several others including two former Royal Military College football stalwarts.

Have a New Coach

Regina has, otherwise, practically the same squad as swept through to the Dominion finals last year—but not the same coach—maybe! Al Ritchie says he's through. But Al has said that every year, and after the first two or three practices, he's out there again with his flow of colorful fire and brimstone language. But the team is starting out with Carl Schave, former North Dakota University star, at Regina's steadily for the past three years, in coaching role. Freddie Wilson is still manager. Curt may also call signals this year.

Only Two Americans

Regina's half line last year was one of her best. This year sees no changes, with Charlie Harrison, last year's Calgary import, still doing the booting; Cliff Rossborough, 1932 Saskatoon import, despite offers from Montreal Winged Wheelers after his remarkable performance against Hamilton last year, still in the line-up; "Moose" Stinson and Andy Young, former junior Pats, who starred against Hamilton with the Roughriders; Gilhooly, regular stalwart; Fred Goodman, Roughrider-turned-Winnipeg-Back-to-Roughrider, despite a broken leg; Schave, fleet wingman, and Austin DePrate, signal caller, forward passer and former North Dakota State "U" player.

The latter two are the only Americans on the team this year—and they were there last year.

Regina's big job is to rebuild the line with Ellis, Mjaglalen, both American imports; Busch, Warner, Barber and others gone.

"Red Coat" Material

However, there is plenty of new material from the "red coats" along with "Tiny" Thompson, Jersey Campbell, John Garuik, and others of last year's first line. "Tommy" Tomecko, star lineman last year for Saskatchewan "U", now teaching in Regina, has turned in the Roughrider line along with Bert MacGillivray, chunky ex-Pat and McGill 'U' player. Riders also hope to acquire Pinlay, last year Hamilton Cubs' player, now working in the harvest fields near the city.

The first battle in the western series was September 16, when Roughriders journeyed to Edmonton to tackle the Quakers. Moose Jaw Maroons, after first threatening not to play senior, will also be in the Saskatchewan League along with Saskatchewan "U."

Looks like a nice season!

SPRINTER'S SUCCESS DUE TO HARD WORK, COURAGE

Harry Colman Rose to Fame Overnight—Began in Winnipeg

TORONTO— Harry Colman, a quiet and unassuming 19 year old Jewish youth, stands today as one of the outstanding athletes in the Dominion. Practically unknown outside of Winnipeg, Colman sprang one of the greatest upsets in track history to rise to fame overnight when he defeated sturdy Bert Pearson, Hamilton flash, at Port William, Ontario, recently, to wrest from him the 100 yards championship of Canada.

The athletic career of Colman has been comparatively short but his rise to prominence has been rapid. As a youngster, he competed in playground meets, but first became enthusiastic about track and field while a student at St. John's Technical High School four years ago.

So interested did he become in this form of sport that he decided to join the Winnipeg North-End Athletic club, which he did in 1930. His first success of any importance came in 1933 when, while still a junior, he won the Manitoba 100 yards championship in the time of 10 4-5 seconds. He also gained premier honors in the shotputt, hurling the iron ball a distance of 38 feet 2½ inches. That year he also did well at the Scottish sports and the inter-faculty meet. In the latter event, he had only Clere Gerry for aggregate honors.

Greatest Success

This year, which has seen his greatest success thus far, he was beaten early in the season in the inter-club 100 yards by Jack Secrey in 10 1-5 seconds. However, Harry gained revenge for this setback by leading Secrey to the tape in the Manitoba championship in similar time.

After the Manitoba championships, Colman decided to beat his way down to Port William for the Dominion meet, where he competed in the 100 yards, discus and shotput.

So lightly held were the chances of Colman and the others who lined up against Pearson for the 100 yards final, that it was decided to give

WINNIPEG SPRINTER

Harry Colman of Winnipeg, who sprinted to victory against Bert Pearson, Hamilton, Ontario, flash, at Port William, recently, to gain the 100 yards championship of Canada. The rise to fame of this 19 year old Jewish lad has been unusually rapid.

Pearson his pick of lanes in hope that the Hamilton flash would set a new Dominion record. However, at the starting line it would have been interesting to know what was going on in Colman's mind.

In a statement to Wray Youngand just prior to the race, he said: "I'm all flustered, Ward." Youngan replied, "If you weren't I'd make you. That's the way you want to be, Harry."

At the sound of the gun, Colman got away to a perfect start. He did not heed the gun as it was claimed by eastern officials. His team-mates and some of the officials will agree to that.

Caught Colman

Once Pearson got started, he came down the track like a whirlwind, and many ball and others claim that he caught Colman at about the 65 or 75 yard mark and that Colman pulled away in great style to kick dust in the face of the best sprinter in the east.

Colman, conversing with Wray Youmans after the race said: "I was in a daze almost, while I was running, then I suddenly heard someone along side of me. In a flash it dawned on me that it was Pearson. It was then that I guess I pulled away.

If he never runs again, Harry Colman will always have in the annals a niche in the Hall of Fame insofar as sprinting is concerned. His success will always be a living example of what hard work and determination can do for an ambitious youngster in the world of athletics.

The former, in the opinion of Lyndon, was one of the greatest umpires in history.

"Baseball of today is much faster and there is more inside ball" declared Lyndon, "but I don't think the present players have their heart and soul in the game like the old timers. The game is cleaner, however, because there is a better class of men entering professional ball, particularly, with many of the college boys breaking into the game."

"There is little to choose between the players," said Lyndon, "players of my time are just as good as those of today. When Toronto won the Stehert cup presented by a Syracuse brewer some years ago seven players were up to the majors and stayed there. That is a good example of the ability those men had.

"A good thing for Canadian baseball," advised Lyndon, "would be the forming of a Canadian professional league where players could go if they didn't do so well in a higher league."

RUDY DUSEK WINS BOUT

Rolling Cradle Specialty Takes Zarynoff in One Fall

Toronto, Sept. 29.—Rudy Dusek, rough and nasty, used his rolling cradle quickly once in the main bout of the wrestling show at the Maple Leaf Gardens and it pinned Count George Zarynoff for the only fall of the hour struggle. Dusek was a trifle too solid for the acrobatic Nobleman, crowding in close all the time to prevent Zarynoff using his gymnastic attacks while he warded off his rival with slashing elbows that generally landed in wicked valleys under the heart or across the face.

Zarynoff was abused and bruised by Dusek's battling tactics and he seldom had any chances to display his spectacular style. The bout was a close and almost cruel exchange of holds that failed to enthuse the crowd of about 4,000. Following a series of sensational shows which have been attracting thousands back to the wrestling game last night's card was below the standard for action although there was plenty of good wrestling and all matches were even.

The opener supplied the most fun with Bob Wilkie and Al Getzewich putting on a harem scarem battle that included a foot-race around the outside of the ring and a bad injury to Getzewich, who suffered a deep gash on the face before he gained the winning fall. It took two stitches to close the wound. Buck Weaver, a husky 246 pounder, made a good impression in his first bout here although losing to Earl McCready when he failed to return to the ring before the count of 10, after being spilled through the ropes. In the semi-final Mayes McLain dropped Matros Kleiienko with a flying tackle.

Main bout, two falls out of three, one-hour limit — Rudy Dusek, 215 pounds; won from George Zarynoff, 200 pounds, getting fall in 46.37, for only fall of match.

Semi-final, one fall, 45-minute limit—Mayes McLain, 212 pounds, won from Matros Kleiienko, 212 pounds, in 24.08.

Second bout, one fall, 30-minute limit—Earl McCready, 231 pounds, won from Buck Weaver, 246 pounds, in 11.07.

Opener—One fall, 30-minute limit —Al Getzewich, 215 pounds, won from Bob Wilkie, 210 pounds, in 17.45.

Referees—Jack Portes and Phil Lawson.

HAMILTON TIGERS ON WAY TO THE WEST

Expect to Bring Back Senior Championship in Lacrosse.

Hamilton, Sept. 29.—Hoping to wipe out all challengers and keep on towards Vancouver, Hamilton Tigers, Eastern Canada lacrosse champions, last night entrained in search of the Mann Cup, emblematic of Dominion lacrosse supremacy.

Manager Ernie Rohmer had his full team of regulars for the trip and every man was in fine fettle for the long western sojo. Financial details were completed and the sudden-death games arranged and the Tigers were confident they would bring the trophy and championship to their home city.

Saturday night the Tigers tackle their first obstacle, Fort William Pontiacs. If successful, they move on to Winnipeg to meet Argos, the Manitoba champions. Saskatchewan will have no challengers. Shamrocks of Calgary, holders of the Alberta title, will meet Tigers if they vanquish Argos.

With Calgary the last prairie stop, the survivors move on to Vancouver where they meet the Salmon Bellies, British Columbia titists, in a series for the Dominion championship.

A large crowd of fans gave the Tigers a rousing send-off. Hal Wallace, because of business, was the only substitute player on the roster to be unable to make the trip.

QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The September meeting of the Quinte Branch W. I. was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. Latta, second concession of Thurlow. There was a goodly number present to enjoy the afternoon's programme.

Mrs. A. Keen, 1st Vice President had charge of the meeting which opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The minutes of the last two meetings were read and adopted. Several letters of appreciation were read for fruit and flowers sent in illness and bereavement. After routine business had been disposed of, Miss Mary Donaldson gave a most helpful paper on "Do's and Don'ts for the Institute", and passed on some splendid hints for Institute workers. The roll call "Pickle Recipes" was well answered, and each member took home some new ideas for pickling. The solos by Miss Virginia Orills and Mrs. Haight were much enjoyed by all. Mrs. A. Clasie gave a most inspiring paper on "Things My Grandmother Knew". The meetings closed with the National Anthem and singing of grace, after which the hostess, Mrs. Latta, and the convenors served a dainty lunch.

Out-of-Door Exercising Is Fun

Effective and Takes Monotony Out of The "Daily Dozen"

By HELEN FOLLETT

It is not surprising that women can't get stamped up over calesthenics, no matter how much they may need them to trim down the figure. Out and dried exercises aren't inspiring or thrilling, most women hate 'em and that's all there is to it.

Recreations out of doors are better. They entertain the mind, forget the spirits, start blood streams humming, wash out the cobwebs and are a lot of fun. Be a golfer. Play tennis. Take a daily walk.

Tossing a rubber ball against a wall and catching it tugs on the muscles of back and legs, and that's where everyone needs fiber movement. Arms and legs are fairly active, it's the torso that doesn't get sufficient exercise. Anybody can do something to make your muscles laugh.

Whitehends appear on the face, usually on the cheeks and under the eyes, when pores close and sebaceous glands back up into beautiful masses.

The deposit must be removed. Hold a fine needle in a flame to sterilize it, split the seed-like ace with the whole length, and open with the needle point. It is next to impossible to press it out, although that sometimes can be done. Touch the wound with boric acid solution.

Good looks may be a legacy handed down by a beautiful grandmother, but charm is something that you create yourself. It is so easy to be charming. It is astonishing there are any growling dumbies or tiresome whiners in all the world.

Never introduce depressing or subjects into the conversation. Be a good listener. Don't be afraid to laugh. Cultivate delightful manners. When you have a nice thought, go ahead and say it.

Cultivate poise, ease. Don't chatter. Chatterers are tiresome. Don't talk about clothes eternally, or do some women. Read the newspapers and the best magazines. Keep in touch with what is going on. Then you can give for conversation, your head for heavy thinking.

SUMMER READING INCREASES AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

36,527 Volumes For Adults And 2,724 Children's Books Borrowed

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 21, 1933.

"The Corby Public Library Board, "Belleville, Ont.

"Gentlemen:

"The following is my report of the summer activities of the Library and a few suggestions for extended and improved service for the winter months.

"During June, July and August, 39,251 volumes were borrowed from the Library, and reference books were consulted 739 times. 36,527 of the volumes which circulated were from the adult section and 2,724 from the boys' and girls' room. Last year for the same period, our circulation totalled 34,790 adult and 4,264 juvenile. Thus the adult circulation of books is somewhat ahead of last year, while juvenile borrowings have decreased. The reason for this is traceable to the fact that Miss Adams and I made a tour of the schools last year, and the interest aroused among the teachers and pupils. It has not been possible to do other libraries that these contacts must be renewed each year in order to keep that interest. This year, I am hoping that principals will co-operate with us to the extent of allowing the individual teachers in the centers to visit the Library during a school period. Then, we will show the books to the children, explain the shelf arrangement and start them on the path of self education through good reading channels. I have also arranged with Miss Adam from the Ontario Library School in Toronto, to lecture to the boys' and girls' room. As she specialized in children's work, she is a very competent guide to steer their reading tendencies. She conducts a story hour each Saturday morning at ten o'clock to which all children are invited. During the summer months, we have relieved the shelves in the boys' and girls' room of a good deal of waste material—books whose value was negligible and which were not being read. These must be replaced by new books and attractive editions of the classics. We plan to concentrate on this section and bring it in line with other good children's libraries in the Province.

"On June 7th, Mr. Jennings, Inspector of Public Libraries for Ontario, paid a visit to Belleville. Mr. Cushing met him here and together we discussed the condition of the Library and the books and records were inspected. His comment on the appearance of the building was: "It looks like a cross between a church and a bank." He also stated that there should be a minimum staff of five persons to handle our present circulation of books.

"On August 20th, 22 books were bought and put into a separate collection which we have labelled the "Duplicate Dept"—Duplicate implying that at least one copy of the book is also in the general collection and "pay" informing the borrower that he will be charged according to the length of time he has the volume on loan. Two cents a day is the charge and we also give the added service of phoning the borrower when the volume is available, if he wishes to reserve it. As these volumes pay for themselves, (a tin less than a month, on an outlay of $40.00, over ten dollars has been collected) no borrower has a right to object to the collection in any way. In fact, the person who does not wish to take advantage of this service, actually benefits by it, as the number of borrowers availing themselves of the pay collection volumes lessens the number looking for the general collection copies. Also, when these duplicate copies have paid for themselves, they will be put into the general collection, and are thus actually donated by the borrowers using this collection. From time to time, as the desire is expressed, new volumes will be added.

"I am, sirs,
Yours most faithfully,
Margaret Z. White,
Librarian."

Weddings

LATCHFORD—LALONDE

A quiet wedding took place in Stirling on Saturday, September 16, in the Presbyterian Church Parsonage, when Miss Dorothy Lalonde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lalonde, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Mr., Milton Latchford, son of Mrs. Bertha Latchford, also of Belleville. Rev. Joseph A. Koffend officiated. The young couple will take up residence later in Belleville.

FULVE—PROFIT

The marriage was quietly solemnized on Wednesday at St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, by the Rev. G. Bousfield, of Beatie A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Profit, of Peterborough, and Ava C. Pulver, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Pulver, of Redeerville.

The happy couple left on a motor trip to North Bay and other points and on their return will reside on the groom's farm near Belleville.

SABINE—WILKES

Marmora, Sept. 29.—A pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church Parsonage, Marmora, on Monday morning, the contracting parties being Howard Garth, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sabine, and Bessie Mabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wilkes. The Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiated.

The bride was attired in navy blue triple sheer crepe with grey accessories to match. She was attended by Miss Edith Henry and the groom was assisted by Mr. Murvis Jones. Following the ceremony the happy couple left for Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara and other western points. Both were remembered on the "Marmora Herald." On their return they will reside in Marmora.

LADIES LODGE PAYS VISIT TO KINGSTON

Enjoyable Evening Spent in Limestone City

On Thursday evening the members of Lodge Pride of Belleville, No. 97, journeyed to Kingston by the Rawson Bus to pay a fraternal visit to Lodge Duchess of York, No. 56. Twenty members made up the party while others were disappointed at not being able to attend owing to sickness. However the visit was a most pleasant one and every minute was enjoyed to the full. When the business was concluded progressive euchre was played and four of the eight prizes were won by Bellevillians. Refreshments were served as only the ladies can do when entaining their guests and well filled and well satisfied, and after a very noisy but well meant goodbye and Godspeed was given and the visitors left for their homes.

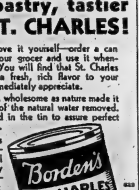
HAD TO TAKE PIE

Kansas City, Sept. 29.—(CP)—Col. Roscoe Turner, transcontinental air speed record holder, flew in from the East last night and put in a double order for his favorite dish—catfish, at a restaurant. He then asked the waitress:

"Would you consider me mad if I asked for catfish for dessert?"

She would.

Turner took apple pie.



You will make lighter pastry, tastier desserts with ST. CHARLES!

Don't take our word for it, prove it yourself—order a can of Borden's St. Charles from your grocer and use it whenever the recipe calls for milk. You will find that St. Charles will give a blend creaminess, a fresh, rich flavor to your cooking that your family will immediately appreciate.

St. Charles is rich, creamy milk, wholesome as nature made it with nothing added and 60% of the natural water removed. It is sterilized after being sealed in the tin to assure perfect sweet flavor and absolute purity.

That is why Borden's St. Charles Milk tastes so fresh and sweet—why it improves the flavor of all recipes where you would usually use milk. St. Charles IS better—ask for it—use it—and PROVE it.

Canadian Pro Baseball League Advocated by Veteran Umpire

BY GEORGE T. LAWRENCE

TORONTO—Many years have passed by Joseph Loxdan as an umpire in the International League than by any other Canadian.

From 1906 till 1907 London officiated in the International League which was then known as the old Eastern League. Before that time he played ball on the amateur sandlots. In 1890 he started umpiring amateur baseball and then went into the Canadian professional league which was composed of Guelph, Hamilton, Chatham and St. Thomas where he completed his first two years.

Until the present day there have been only a few Canadians ever to officiate in the International League, namely, Bob Emslie, Andy Sharkey and the late Tip O'Neill.

BUSINESS IN CUBA TIED UP DUE TO GENERAL STRIKE

Communists Honor Julio Antonia Mella, Killed in Mexico

Havana, Sept. 29 (AP)—Virtually all business in Havana was tied today by a general strike called by Communists in honor of Julio Antonio Mella, student Communist leader who was killed in Mexico.

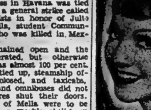
Banks remained open and the railways operated, but otherwise the strike was almost 100 per cent. Docks were tied up, steamship offices were closed, and only a few street cars and omnibuses did not operate. Stores shut their doors.

The Capitol Mella were to be deposited on a marble obelisk in Universal Square, scene of frequent rioting. The strike was scheduled to last from noon until 6:00 p.m. Numerous soldiers and police were held in reserve to prevent disorders.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop was taking a wawk Satiday afternoon and I said G. Washington was a good man.

Meaning a suitcase, standing on its parasol, outside of a cigar store with so many hotel labels on it you couldn't hardly see the suitcase, when he stopped going passed and started to look at it, he says G. Wash. O, yes, Hotel Gladstone, Paris. He must of been a swell guy.



The lucky dog, pop said. Long tables boarded with short round tables, the far famed wines of the country served by French speaking waiters, all the little sweet girls singing O la la instead of twist me a lemon, and the fellow seems to of been everywhere just look, Grand Hotel Terminus, Marseilles, Hotel Vienna, I feel the old wanderlust coming over me, I long to be on uncharted waters with experienced navigators, pop said.

Here's one says Hotel Ritz, Madrid, what's that remind you of, pop? I said, why yes and Of Course, strangely enough. Bewitful senorita peeping shyly from behind her fluffy fans, ripe olives dropping musically into shining rice fields,

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Stocks Were up in Early Hours But Later Gains Pared or Eliminated — Gold Stocks Had Flurry in First Two Hours —Distillery, Metal And Interlisted Shares Hold G ains.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 29—(CP)—Modest advances in a few volume were boarded at the Toronto Stock Exchange today as a mild rally in the Wall Street, New York market confidence a little. Metal and distillery shares had the best part of their gains.

In the distillery group Walkers Common, Industrial Alcohol and Distillers Seagram registered gains of 1-2 to a point and brewers and distillers gained 8 cents. Consolidated, Smelters and International Nickel failed to hold their best prices but were well over Thursday's close. Smelters showed a gain of 2 and Nickel 35 cents. Brazilian, Ford A and C. P. R. picked up 1-4 to 1-2 each.

Base metal opening flurry that carried along for an hour and tilted up from range upward, trading slowed down and was moving in light volume by early afternoon with some of the gains recorded receding materially.

Distillery, beer, metal and the interlisted shares generally held good ground in early afternoon. In the distillery group advances were 1-2 to a full point.

The opening rally was apparently local response to short covering in New York and this had added 1 to 3 points to the leaders.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP) — The Standard Mining Exchange Board was subdued and dull, Advances today, all groups contributing to the leadership. Lake Shore was up 50 cents, Teck 40 cents, Hollinger 25, Sylvanite 20, Wright Hargreaves 15 and Pickle Crow 10 cents. Trading was light, 68,000 shares.

Lake Shore, McIntyre, Dome, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves were in active demand. After getting off to a slow start, Lake Shore eased back to $48.50 where it had a net gain of $2.10. Dome at $22 was up 50 cents, McIntyre advanced $2.75 to $45.25, Bralorne added 25 cents, and Teck, Hollinger and Hargreaves about 10 to 25 cents each.

Pickle Crow showed a gain of 60 cents and the other base metals a fair list, holding their gains.

The gold stocks had a nice flurry in the first two hours on a moderate volume w buying. Lake Shore, Dome and McIntyre climbed $2 to $3 and gains of 5 to 25 cents ran through the other shares of the yellow metal group, including Hollinger, Teck, Hargreaves, Bralorne, Reno, San Antonio and Sylvanite. A higher price for gold in London and a firmer New York market contributed the main impetus towards buying.

Base metal and silver shares moved up with the golds, slightly different prices ruling. In the Metal Corporation, Hudson Bay and Noranda.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

(By Victor Fobank, Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Sept. 29—(AP)—Little rays of sunshine continued to trickle through the market clouds today but the general feeling of fidgence apparently was not of sufficient strength to prevent the booming of prices generally.

Stocks were moving upward in the early hours when most categories improved under the leadership of the Alcohols and Rails. Also numerous gains were pared or eliminated.

National Distillers' shares got up about 6 points as a result of the repeal of this. U. S. Smelting showed an advance of about 4 after an interim gain of 6. Others up fractionally to around a point were Allied Chemical, Commercial Solvents, Alaska Juneau, American Smelting, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, Union Pacific, General Motors, Chrysler, U.S. Steel Preferred, Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York and Johns-Manville. American Telephone was heavy, losing about 2 while U.S. Steel Common, Consolidated Gas and Western Union eased.

TITLE HOLDERS ARE WELCOMED

Mayor Gives Credit For Wonderful Showing of Team

St. Thomas, Sept. 29—The St. Thomas Tom Cats baseball team all executives attended a reception last night by Mayor Jarvis and other dignitaries on the steps of the city hall on the arrival in St. Thomas from Kingston, where they defeated the Kingston Ponies for the senior O.B.A. championship.

The music of the Elgin Regiment band and the hundreds of thousands of fans the players were welcomed back to the city with their O.B.A. title that St. Thomas has ever known.

Mayor John A. Jagoe in an address of welcome gave credit for the championship and showed the Manager Leo Doan who unfortunately is suffering from his indisposition brought on no doubt, by the strain under which he has been working during the past few weeks when the Tom Cats won nine consecutive games on the home grounds.

We are rewarded good baseball management, gentlemanly conduct and honest play, the mayor declared the mayor in voicing the appreciation of 16,000 citizens of St. Thomas and district. He complimented the players individually and hence that they had brought honor to the city.

A telegram from President Reddick, of the International, conveying congratulations on winning the O.B.A. championship and which upheld every tradition of the International in winning the title and you are a credit to us, to our city and the O.B.A." was read at the gathering.

President Stan. Gilbert in a few words declared that there has not been a single moment of friction among the players this season. He also announced that the club have a surplus of several hundred dollars as the result of their playoff games.

Livestock

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)—Losses predominated on the Toronto Live-stock Exchange this week, with declines on all offerings except sheep and lambs. The cattle market was heavily overloaded and there were 729 head left over on Thursday, the heaviest receipt in 10 years. The heavy run included western cattle. Prices were down 50 cents on Wednesday on all grades except fed calves. It is apparent the market will not be cleared unless runs are cut down to the minimum.

WE INVITE

STOPS RHEUMATIC AGONY IN 24 HOURS OR NO COST

WILL NOT UPSET YOUR STOMACH WILL NOT AFFECT YOUR HEART

Here is an invitation that no rheumatic sufferer can afford to ignore. We will tell you why. We are going to give you a new, different formula for rheumatism. A formula that will, within twenty-four hours, stop pain and misery. Limber up stiff, swollen joints, reduce swellings and knock the aches out of your muscles. WITHOUT UPSETTING YOUR STOMACH, SPOILING YOUR APPETITE, OR AFFECTING YOUR HEART.

How can we do this? Let us tell you! By a new scientific method we now give you in handy, tablet form, the one treatment, recognized by doctors the world over, as the best of all rheumatism remedies.

If you suffer from rheumatism you probably have tried everything you ever heard of. And have found most rheumatism medicines hard to take, upset the stomach, ruin the digestion, make heart flutter, and you have to stop taking them before they can do any good.

Not so with TER-SOL, the new scientific formula. TER-SOL CAN NOT upset the stomach; CAN NOT ruin the appetite; WILL NOT affect your heart. It is so compounded you get all the benefit of this treatment. WITHOUT ONE BIT OF STOMACH OR HEART DISTRESS.

TER-SOL works so quickly and so surely, that within 10 minutes after it enters your system, it begins to unfold its virtues and within 24 hours the torturing agony of rheumatism starts to leave your aching muscles and stiff swollen joints. You can almost feel stiff joints limber up—pain and suffering vanish like magic before your eyes. And remember: IT POSITIVELY WILL NOT UPSET YOUR STOMACH OR AFFECT YOUR HEART.

Sounds too good to be true, doesn't it? That's what we thought, WON'T! Because if TER-SOL won't do all we claim for it, if within 24 hours you do not find the most blessed relief you ever had, go to the druggist and get your money back. Any druggist can supply TER-BOL with this understanding.

Don't suffer another day from crippling, torturing rheumatic agony, when it is so easy to get relief. Don't wait another day. Get TER-SOL today. Only 35c per bottle. Sold by druggists everywhere.

A Dark Man, from Away

by Jack Hanley

Bill's face was very pale as he spoke.

"Your name should have been Will-not instead of Wilma," he snapped. "I suppose marriage seems less important to you than seeing that greasy pig-dog's been hanging around you lately."

Wilma's eyes grew tearful and blue sparks crackled in her eyes as she answered.

"Speaking of names I can understand why they called you 'Bill'—you're always trying to run around every so often to upset people."

"Then your answer is final?"

"Of course."

As the hollow slam of the door sounded in her ears Wilma's finger stood irresistably with a soft, red underlip, and for a panicky instant she wondered what she had done. Bill was going—far away—without her, and angry. How much, she thought guiltily, did the pronouncement of that word mean? What to do with it?

Then she tossed her head and strode resolutely from the window, back to the table to look at Ramon. Certainly the fortune teller had nothing to do with giving Bill impossible ideas. And there was that crack about Ramon . . .

It had all started quite a while back when a synthetic gypsy in a tea room had told Wilma she would marry a dark man. Wilma shook her head, puzzled.

"But I'm engaged—and his hair is light."

"He has dark skin?"

"No—fair." The gypsy's head shook, determinedly.

"Maybe he is your fiance; but I see you marrying a man who is very dark," she said positively. "He comes from away."

Wilma hadn't paid much attention at the time; merely laughed it off uncomfortably. She and Bill had always managed to get along pretty well and she knew he adored her. Of course she didn't say a word to him about it: he would have rumpled her hair, grinned and called her an old sil'.

But when occasional quarrels popped up as they do in long engagements she found herself appraising him with a new light of speculation in her eyes. And the engagement had been pretty long because Bill, with conditions as they were, was having a time of it landing a job that would support them in reasonable comfort.

And then Ramon arrived Dark, sleek and undeniably handsome, he caused a feminine flurry in the office of the importing firm where Wilma worked. Ramon Alfredo Valdez, of the South American branch. And he ignored all the girls but Wilma. Her first quarrel with Bill had been over Ramon, when she told him about the handsome Spanish executive.

"You're going for him, like the other dizzy dames in your office," he accused her. And even while she denied it, vigorously, a sudden thought danced into her brain and twitted her . . .

"A dark man—he comes from away," the gypsy had said . . .

Anyway, it was over now. Bill was gone, driving south in his old roadster, covering the Southern territory for some firm he was sure all enthused about. And he had left angry because she refused to gamble with him by getting married and coming along. Slipping along the roads under the sunshine on a business honeymoon; he was sure he'd do well. A few months ago Wilma would have jumped at the chance. But in this new mood, it had ended in a quarrel. And he'd gone—alone.

Meanwhile Ramon courted her assiduously. And as the weeks went on Wilma found herself feeling strangely lonely with no Bill to fill her evenings. He had said he'd write. And she couldn't write, not knowing where he'd reach him . . . but that she would have, of course. The umpteenth time Ramon Valdez asked her for a date she said yes. She was tired, and lonely . . . and the gypsy had said a "dark man—from away."

Maybe it was force of habit, acting so used to Bill, that made Wilma feel vaguely uncomfortable all evening, especially when Ramon took her arm or looked at her with fiery eyes. It wasn't only force of habit, though, that made her smack his face and blame it him in the taxi coming home when he crushed her tightly in his arms and pressed a hard, moist kiss on her lips. Luckily they were nearing her house.

"Don't ever speak to me again!" she sobbed, and ran up the steps slamming the door behind her. She was humiliated, and terribly insecure as she scrubbed her mouth viciously with the back of her hand and her eyes stung with tears of vexation.

Then the phone rang. Sniffing she answered it.

"Bill!" It was a happy, glad cry. He had just arrived—could he see her?

"C—come up, Bill, right away!" In the dim hallway she opened the door to him and clung very tightly.

"Oh, Bill, dear — I've been m-miserable! It was all my fault," between glad sobs. "Me—my all my fault—the faking old gypsy said a dark man—from away" . . . and—and I've been an old sil . . . I don't care what she said . . . I love you Bill . . ."

"Easy, hon." His arms were reassuringly tight around her. "I don't get it, but it's all O.K. now. I pulled up a record down there and they made me Southern sales manager. We can get married right away—and no race for our honeymoon."

"Oh Bill . . . I've been so f-foolish . . ." She stopped in amusement and shared at him. "B-Bill?"

"What's the matter?" Quickly. Then he laughed. "Oh—this! It's from driving with the top down, honey. Like it?"

But Wilma was holding him fiercely again, eyes wide. Southern sun had burnt Bill brown as a nut or . . . "a dark man—from away."

HORDLY SPECIAL SERVICES IN ROSLIN CHURCHES

Roslin.—The annual Harvest Thanksgiving Service was held in St. Paul's Church, Roslin, on Sunday evening. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with grain, vegetables, fruit and flowers. The congregation completely filled the church. Rev. Beaser delivered a splendid sermon choosing as his text Proverbs chapter 10, verse 5, "He that gathereth in summer is a wise son; but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame." Hymns suitable for the occasion were sung by the choir, and Rev. Beaser sang a solo.

Rally Day service was held in the Dilled Church on Sunday afternoon. The church was suitably decorated with flowers for the occasion. The superintendent of the Sunday School, Mr. E. Davison, was in charge of the service. The opening hymn was "O Worship the King." This was followed by call to worship and prayer. Miss Evelyn Davison read the Scripture lesson, Luke 23-37. The hymn, "Praise Him, Praise Him, All Ye Little Children" was sung by the beginners and primary classes. Recitation, "What Can a Little Chap Do," given by Masters Donald Chisholm, Everett Harrison, and Gerald Bailey after which the following hymn was sung, "Father, Lead Me Day by Day." Miss Alberta Bowen gave a reading, "Ex-sent finds a way to serve his country." Rev. Brandon then gave a short address on "Serving Jesus Today" and also took charge of the remainder of the service. The closing hymn was, "Jesus calls us; o'er the tumult."

Rev. F. C. and Mrs. Beaser assisted the superintendent in connection with the laying of the corner stone of St. Mark's church at Boonsaw on Tuesday.

Dr. H. J. and Mrs. Welsh and family spent Sunday with Mr. Charles Brown and the Misses Brown of Roseneath.

Who's Who in New York Some Successful Giants

BLONDY RYAN

JOHN RYAN, New York's peppy infielder, first saw light of day in Ryan, Miss., Jan. 4, 1906.

Following graduation from Holy Cross, Ryan batted the Chicago White Sox in 1930. After playing a few games for the Pale Hose that season, Blondy was shipped to Atlanta in the Southern league.

He played the season of 1932 with Buffalo in the International and did so well the Giants grabbed him. Blondy thus faces his first work grades at the conclusion of his first year in major league baseball.

Ryan is a right-hander, 5 feet 9 inch tall and weighs 175 pounds.

JOHN LEWIS VELOZ, Giants' third baseman, probably will not play in the world series—an attack of appendicitis laying him low some weeks ago. The operation, which followed, while successful, hardly permits his becoming active in baseball again this year.

Veroza was born in Oakland, Cal., July 8, 1903. He broke into Texas league in 1926. The following two seasons he played with Terrell, Tex., and Ogden, Utah.

Late 1928 found him with Oakland in the Pacific Coast League. He was sold to the Giants in 1930 and has been a regular since—until his operation.

LUCH . . . Vi . . . CUTZ, Giants' second baseman, recently celebrated his 32rd birthday. He was born Sept. 17, 1901, in Statesville, Miss.

Hughie broke into baseball with Chattanooga in the Southern league in 1923. He kept it up through the following year in the Mississippi State circuit, then back to the Southern with Memphis. Minneapolis bought him and he became an American Association star.

Cincinnati paid $27,000 for Hughie in 1929. In consideration of $275 Pittsburgh sent the Giants in the trade for Pitcher Larry Benton. Hughie is 5 feet 11½ inches tall, 168 pounds. He is a right-hander.

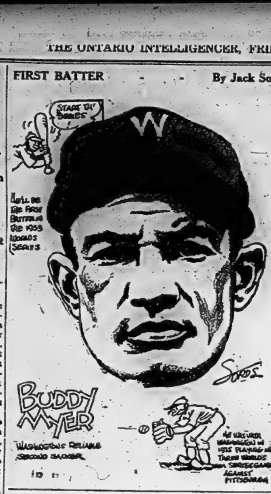
Crowder And Stewart Show Wildness Preparing For Series

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)



The "nine-up" games for the World Series are rather meaningless affairs, since the teams which have already clinched the Major League titles don't care much who, ther they win or lose them, but it is rather interesting to note, that of the four prospective World Series starting pitchers, who have gone through the motions of preparing for the big fray, only Carl Hubbell has had any success.

The Giants star southpaw, who may be the outstanding figure in the series if the "dope" holds true, came through his trial brilliantly Wednesday. The ace hurler silenced his teammate, Al Schumacher, took a trimming and yesterday two of Washington's mound mainstays, Wally Stewart and Al Crowder were pasted all around the lot by New York Yankees.

Both Stewart and Crowder suffered costly streaks of wildness. The former was the victim of a seven-run uprising by the Yanks in the first inning, and only the power of Senatorial sluggers kept Washington in the running long enough to lose by an 11-8 count.

Jimmy Foxx, the leading American League slugger, was the outstanding figure in the other contest on the programme for the big junior circuit although he was on the losing team. Foxx delivered two doubles in four times up to bring his year's total up to 209 hits, but Boston Red Sox were more lonely with their hitting and came through with a 6-2 victory.

Boston Braves striving mightily for a first division berth in the National League got a little closer to St. Louis Cardinals by defeating Brooklyn's Dodgers 5-4 in the first one of a doubleheader. But an existing afterpiece wound up in a 3-2 tie, when darkness halted proceedings at the end of the 7th inning, the frame which ough all the scoring as Hutchi ts and Ray Benge each pitched shutout stanzas. A game between the fourth-place Cards, the ers were scheduled for another t today in the playoff of the tw.

How Rival Teams Compare in Pending World's Series

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor).

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—The "mutual admiration society" has two new members in Joe Cronin and Bill Terry, at least for the time being, and while they are basically shaping their plans for the World Series war, beginning next Tuesday at the Polo Grounds.

Big quarters was asked or given to face the umpire-in-chief duel of home plate and shouts "Let's get but there is an oft-the-field friendliness and on-the-field respect for each other, that marks the rival managers of the Senators and Giants as two of baseball's most engaging and colorful personalities. Joe is a great guy, a wonderful shortstop, and he has done a swell job in bringing the Senators through to the top, even as all I have been told," remarks the black-haired dark-eyed boss of the Giants.

"You can't help but admire Terry for the spirit and drive he put into the Giants this year," says Cronin. "They showed they could produce the stuff, but the way our club has come, it should be a great series from every standpoint. I shouldn't be surprised to see it go six or seven games unless one team or the other is lucky to get most of the breaks."

Pitching Will Count

Cronin agrees with Terry, too, that pitching will decide the series although the pilot of the Senators feels pretty sure he has the edge in hitting, man for man.

"Hubbell must be as great as they all tell me he is," says Cronin, his blue eyes twinkling, "but we have been going against some pretty good pitchers all season and doing pretty well against them. Anyway, I have the greatest confidence in all four of our probable starting hurlers — Crowder, Weiland, Weaver and Stewart."

The suggestion that the Senators may gamble on Weaver for the opening game persists in the Washington camp. If Weaver is selected, however, it will not be because Cronin wants to save Crowder but because he thinks Weaver is the best bet on that particular day, against Hubbell or anyone else.

The "Five Goose" Regularly

Playing the "percentages," Cronin has about decided to use the veteran Goose Goslin regularly in right field, against right and left-handed pitching, instead of alternating the Goose with Dave Harris, the No. 7 outfield substitute.

"The Goose has a great faculty for rising to the emergency," says Cronin. "When he is right, he can hit southpaws as well as anything else. He is the rare type of hitter, who can break up a ball game. He is the nearest thing we have to the Foxx, Ruth and Gehrig type of slugger."

The Giants are well fixed with outfield reserves in Leffy O'Doul and Homer Peel, but they are handicapped otherwise for any emergency operations. Most of the infield reserve strength already has been called on by the replacement of Veraza by Jackson at third base. The Senators have a hard-hitting youngster in Ben Soken, for infield duty, and two able-bodied catchers in Bolton and Berry if anything happens to Luke Sewell.

Grid Teams Tune Up on Tough Teams in Exhibitions

Every Team Will Display Every Trick in Bag For Fans

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)— There will be a generous ironing out of football faults for all to see and not very many secrets left unlearned, when tomorrow's gridiron engagements are whistled to an end in the eastern sector. The units to be feared should emerge from inter-league games into bold relief, for the final round of preparatory shooting before league campaigns open, there are not many soft spots. The champions have arranged to battle either near-champs or else Mr. Average on either hillside, you can write your own ticket on most of the games.

Three or four points are certain to be settled. They've been wondering around the big four if Ottawa's Rough Riders, flash even with Dave Savage, the Hamilton giant on the line can stand up to genuine punishment. In intercollegiate circles there doubt has been expressed, that Ted Reed has a contender at all in his Queen's team.

The Roughriders and the Tricolor will at least partially settle these questions at Ottawa. Roughriders impressed veteran capital observers as packing a great deal of power when they defeated Balmy Beach two weeks ago. Now they'll find out that Wally Masters' all-American backfield is even better than looked at first. The line is the problem.

We Shall See

There should be a few doubts as to the strength of Montreal's Winged Wheelers when Imperials are finished with the day's work at Montreal Saturday. If you want to know how good our team is, just take on a foe averaging over 190 pounds a man on the line with a heavy kicker and a half-dozen fine broken field runners and plunkers to back it up.

Imperials, preparing to defend their Ontario rugby football union title, toppled Western University last Saturday. It will take a fine Wheeler brigade to stop them from making it two straight. The Sarnia-Montreal and Argonaut-University of Toronto battles are regarded as the day's tid-bits. The two Toronto teams are slated to meet for the city championship at Varsity stadium—hopes without young Jack Taylor, brilliant running back and Varsity's all-round strength led by Jack Sinclair.

Hitching may have much to do with the result in both cases. Montreal will pit Ruth Welch against Sarnia's Hugh Hammer; Stirling and Sinclair will match his lofty drives with the booming spirals of Ab Box.

Hamilton Tigers face University of Western Ontario in the other important tilt of the day and Balmy Beach and St. Michael's College both O.R.F.U. entrants meet here in a preliminary to the Argo-Varsity game here. McGill tunes up against the Intermediate Royal Military College team. Only league game of the day brings together Ottawa Rangers and Montreal Westwards at Montreal in the opener of the Ottawa-Carty football union intermediate series.

Yesterdays Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Babe Ruth, Yankees clouted 22nd homer and two singles against Senators, driving in three runs.

Danny Taylor, Dodgers — Hit a double and single in first game against Braves and scored tying run in second after a pinch triple.

Mel Ananda, Red Sox—led attack on Athletics, with three singles and stolen base.

American League Prexy Backs Arguments with Cold Facts

Calls Senators to Win Series to Go Six Games

(By Paul McNeton, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP) —Sure, Will Harridge, scholarly looking President of the American League, picks the Senators to win the World series, but he's saving a batch of statistics instead of a flag to back up his arguments.

As he finished packing his suitcase today for his trip to the big city and the big show, he hauled out the offensive and defensive records of both teams and started in. "Before I get started, he interrupted himself, "I'd like to say that this talk about the difference in the National and American belts is greatly exaggerated. Klein is leading the National League in batting today at .372; in our league, Foxx leads at .357. In the World Series last year, one home run was hit in the Yankee stadium with our ball. Up comers were hit at Wrigley Field with the National League ball. In the all-star game at Comiskey Park last July, they all expect the series to go six. Most all star games, maybe the limit, I think the Senators will win as they have one of the best balanced teams in ten a pennant in many a year. They are better hitters than the Giants. They are superior fielders. They are better base runners and hit into fewer double plays. They have a better double play combination, and they have a spirit equally as high as the Giants.

CURRENT SPORT

Providing the Picton intermediates down the Falconbridge "strip" in the return game of the season on Saturday there is a possibility that the thrilling and glorious way be played in either Picton or Napanee.

"Ernie" Gibaard, Eastern Ontario's representative on the O.R.A.A. executive, was in Hamilton yesterday where he presented the idea to Secretary Bill Snyder. The idea is to have Falconbridge play over the week end at Picton, if a game can be borne by the Prince Edward County nine, and the third game to be played Monday next. Of course he Tamworth outfit have to win Saturday's game to necessitate one of that third game referred to.

On their return trip from Falconbridge last Tuesday the Picton club were guaranteed 2,000 paid admissions if they would play the Sunday game in North Bay! It looks as if they are expecting baseball would be run round there days. Why we understand that well over 3,000 fans saw Lefty Goldsmith defeat Haileybury less hand-ed last Wednesday.

Recently we referred to Pitcher Ralph of the Falconbridge nine as being from Belleville. Ralph, who started for "Bob" Elliott's Dairy "Sliners" some six or seven years ago. Upon questioning Manager Yaverey of the Picton club yesterday "John" informed us that whether a question of a doubt the present Falconbridge twirler is the same Billie Ralph, who all baseball lovers know in this vicinity some years ago.

The B.C.L. senior football executive are considering daily three days in preparation for their opening clash with Montreal Wanderers. Coach Shiels is driving his charges at top speed to understudy anything up to the minute football tactics. Lots of practice is being done.

Following the winning of the senior O.R.A.A. title by the St. Michael's team on Wednesday the Hamilton press had the following to say:

"Congratulations to the new Ontario championship! They were the better team yesterday and are worthy holders of the highest honors in the gift of baseball in Canada."

Better hitting in the pinches and clever pitching by Vaughan gave the Tyro Cubs their championship. The big right-hander for the most part had the Pirates popping up the whole day and was effective in the most dangerous batters on the Cubs' roster.

Perhaps Chicago might have been different had the Pirates piped heads up ball all the way. In the fifth they had the bases filled and their big chance to win the game but they were unsuccessful. They would have made things interesting with Lee at the helm. Perhaps these things just didn't happen and the Pirates had the opportunity of the championship to congratulate the new champions.

FIELD DAY AT STIRLING A SUCCESS

Fourth Form Wins Shield For Fourth Time

MANY ATTEND

Stirling Bowlers Win Doubles at Cobourg Tourney

The annual Stirling High School field day was held on Wednesday afternoon and was discontinued at 3.30 because of the Chautauqua only to be concluded on Thursday. The students took an active interest in their field day meet and a good number participated in every event.

The school was divided each year to the form with the highest number of points was seen by the form. Incidentally, this form has taken the shield each of the past four years, first in the first form, then in the second and third and now in the fourth. This is itself speaks well for the fourth form athletes. Their points numbered 1461/2 while the boys contributing 80% and the girls the remaining 66. In the girls' events, Ruby Stapley had the greatest number of points in the senior class while her sister, Pearl Stapley, took the award in the juniors. For the boys, Ralph Campbell, Morley Wright and Burton Morton took the awards for the junior, intermediate and senior championships respectively. These awards of medals will be presented at the commencement exercises later in the year. Mr. R. O. Lawlor, principal, and Miss Olive Disbrowe, Rev. J. A. Kotfend and Rev. R. W. Bowden had charge of the boys' events while Miss Kathleen Mundy, physical instructress, was in charge of the girls.

The results of the different events are as follows:

ROOSEVELT TO BOLSTER MOVE FOR RECOVERY

Leaves For Home at Hyde Park to Study Question

MAY OPEN BANKS

Five Billion of Held Assets Would be Released

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 29.—(CP)—An expected United States today awelled a seething humbush Roosevellian move to bolster the recovery drive.

Unusual activity of Treasury, Federal Reserve and Economic officials at Washington indicated an early announcement on matters "monetary, credit, or both." But Willam Woodin raced at surprising speed for a man of his age in one conference to another yesterday, he made no moment to tell worrying newshounds.

"We have not by any means fired our last shot for prosperity," he was pressed for an intimation of what was in the mixture" as to whether it was credit expansion, monetary policy, or both. But he would only say an announcement would have to come from President Roosevelt himself. He was off again on short legs, that worked like pistons.

Meantime the President was in the restful seclusion of his ancestral home at Hyde Park, N.Y. As he passed through New York enroute he met a super reception by Hudson River, the Metropolitan Press counted the huge smile on his face, with the broad, contagious smile of self-confidence. Today political writers covering his "vacation" pictured him as preparing to make a "momentous" announcement.

May Open All Banks

A general prediction was that he would declare a far-reaching effort to thaw out the country's closed banks, containing something like $5,000,000,000 of frozen assets. There are many beings and closed banks, and depositors running into the hundreds of thousands, any loosening of funds should start a spending rally.

There was no doubting the importance of increasing purchasing power. The Washington correspondent of the New York Times reported an official of the National Recovery Administration as predicting a consumers' strike this Fall unless something was done hurriedly.

JOS. V. McKEE MAY NOT RUN

To Meet Newsmen But Did Not Show up

New York, Sept. 29.—(CP)—Another political bomb was exploded today as word went that Joseph V. McKee, Bronx Democratic leader, would not run for mayor after all.

McKee, former aldermanic president, has been mentioned often when he became acting mayor and quarreled with Tammany. He had a date with newspapermen. Half a hundred of them were on hand in a hotel suite, ready to receive an expected announcement of his candidacy. McKee did not show up.

This, the New York Times said today, "was regarded as tantamount to a declination." McKee promised a statement for today, and the Times, said, "there was every indication that he had reached a decision not to run."

This reported decision left only two formal entries in the mayoralty lunch hooked by Mayor John P. O'Brien and Fusion standbearer Fiorello H. La Guardia. Both plan to campaign throughout the week preparing to register voters.

$75,000 FIRE

Chaplin, Sask., Sept. 29 (CP) — Practically the entire business section of Chaplin was in ruins today following a fire which destroyed 8 buildings, causing a loss estimated at $75,000.

Starting in a pool room late last night, the flames swept through two general stores, two garages, two hotels, the pool room, and a cafe. No one was injured.

GOVERNOR OF CEYLON DIES AT COLOMBO

Director of British Transports During Late War

Colombo, Ceylon, Sept. 29 (AP)—Sir Graeme Thomson, governor of Ceylon and director of British Transports and Shipping during the war, died last night at the age of 58.

He was buried today with full military honors.

Sir Grame Thomson was named governor and commander-in-chief in Ceylon in 1931. He entered the Admiralty in 1900 after being educated in Oxford University. His years of duty took him to British Guiana, and Nigeria. France, Russia, Italy, Belgium and Japan decorated him.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Excellently acted, superbly produced and told through the medium of a powerful story that never lacks suspense and dramatic fervor, Paramount's picture "Torch Singer," featuring Claudette Colbert and Ricardo Cortez, comes to the Belle tomorrow, and Monday as the opening attraction of the New Belle Entertainment season.

Adopted from "Mike," Grace Perkin's Liberty Magazine story, the picture presents Miss Colbert in a dual personality role: first as a deserted mother who finds the social barriers too difficult to overcome and later as the brazen, hard-hearted torch singer of the cabarets, who still longs for the baby she has been forced to give up.

David Manners is cast in the role of the man who "did her wrong," but, nevertheless, in his repentance, he wins the audience's sympathy. Comedy relief comes from the ever popular Lyda Roberti and the charming baby LeRoy who created such a nation-wide sensation in his initial screen appearance with Maurice Chevalier in "A Bedtime Story."

But, all in all, it is Miss Colbert's picture and we who feel we can see enough of her, are glad of that. Tender, wistful, appealing is the key part of the picture. The character she plays undergoes a complete change, but through a clever twist in the plot her long struggle to true happiness and romance keeps us reading that is a delight to the spectator.

New Zane Grey Story

"Last Lead Trail," the Zane Grey action romance, and the second feature offering on the same program, must be put down as the finest film ever offered George O'Brien in the bas sinking speed, breakneck action, tender romance and hilarious comedy. O'Brien does some of his hardest riding and most daring fighting he has ever presented and proves himself more than ever the premier exponent of western roles. The lovely Claire Trevor, featured with O'Brien in his last picture, "Life in the Raw," also has the leading feminine role in "The Last Trail." She will make a deeper dent in your admiration than you would think possible.

The hilarity, in the highly capable hands of Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey and Lucille La Verne will keep you howling. A comedy cartoon and a news reel will be added to the big bag on the same program. A new chapter of "Chandu the Magician" featuring Tom Tyler will be exhibited at the Saturday matinee show.

"Double Harness" tonight

AT THE CAPITOL

Realism is carried to its very extreme in Columbia's sensational underwater drama, "Below The Sea" showing at the Capitol theatre Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. Take this scene for an illustration.

On the ocean's floor, in a great diving bell, are a man and a woman, facing death. The chain that lowered the bell has been brokenshaken apart by a giant octopus. Their airlines and telephone-lines have been severed.

Through the glass window of their bell they watch a duel to the death between the octopus and a diver—Ralph Bellamy going through with this dangerous performance.

Now, in these days of photographic miracles, this dramatic highpoint of "Below The Sea" might well have been pictured in the studio of a studio set. But, not so with these scenes, which Al Rogell directed from Sterling's original story.

A real octopus was procured. It measured fourteen feet from tentacle-tip to tentacle-tip. Clark Plummer, a professional diver, caught it in the warm waters off the Mexican coast. It was carefully guarded and nourished with fresh clams, in a Southern California swimming pool.

And a genuine diving bell — of the same general sort as those used by Dr. Will Beebe and other marine scientists and oceanographers — was designed and welded together in a Los Angeles machine shop.

The bell is seven and a half feet in height and four and a half feet in diameter. It is of steel one-half inch thick, and capable of descending 120 feet below the ocean surface. It holds two persons comfortably, and three can be squeezed into it. It has air-locks, of course, with extra flasks of oxygen in case of emergencies.

Also there are telephone lines, over which the director guided the action of his players from above; and the necessary electrical appliances to record their voices was also contained in the big metal cylinder.

The bell has a window of the finest plate glass, two feet square, through which the actions of the players inside were photographed from a "camera-bell", somewhat similar in shape, but a trifle smaller. From this latter contrivance was pictured also the fight between the diver and the devil-fish.

The underwater photography was in charge of Homer Scot, who did some spectacular work recently in "Tiger Shark" and "Bird of Paradise". Also, Scott was cameraman for Annette Kellerman in her early subsea pictures. Underwater scenes are photographed in technicolor.

The story has to do, in part, with the adventures of a scientific expedition seeking rare marine specimens. This all serves as the background for a romantic love drama between Fay Wray and Ralph Bellamy.

"Below The Sea" plus comedy and news will be the featured attractions at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, the last two days being Dinnerware Gift for ladies as usual.

Appreciation And Warning

Chris C. Hickens, both in his capacity of a member of the Belleville Rotary Club and also manager of the Capitol Theatre extends through these columns his heartiest thanks for Belleville's wonderful support of "The Man From Toronto."

The Crippled Children Fund will benefit to a very great degree by the substantial sum accruing from the sale of tickets by Rotarians for their "adopted" movie.

To Mr. Holmes' thanks on behalf of the Rotary Club are added the appreciation for the warm reception given to Jessie Matthews, in "The Man From Toronto" and the warm distance' from the British film star tonight is the last opportunity of seeing this piece de resistance.

PINNED TO BED BY LUMBAGO

Scarcely Moved for Weeks

Thanks Kruschen for Return to Fitness

Acting on his principle of " when you know a good thing tell your friends about it," a man who has had very bad lumbago writes as follows :—

" I had suffered from lumbago in my back, and for weeks could scarcely move in bed. I had treatment, but it did not ease the pain very much. A friend said, ' Why don't you take Kruschen Salts ? Take them every morning, and you'll find you will get relief from that awful pain in your back.' So I have taken them every morning. This is the second bottle I have had, and I am in fine condition for my work again—thanks to the Kruschen. I will surely tell my friends about Kruschen Salts. I will never be without them in my house."

— R. S.

Why is it that lumbago, backache, rheumatism and indigestion all yield so swiftly to Kruschen Salts ? What is the secret of their amazing effectiveness against the whole army of common complaints ?

The secret is an open one. It is revealed in the analysis on the bottle—for physicians and everyone else to see. Six vital mineral salts. That is the secret. The identical six salts that Nature contains for your healthy well-being. Each of these six salts has an action of its own. Where one cannot penetrate another can—and does. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up in a top-notch condition by the use of Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

CHAPTER IV.

"Madam," Vernon began stiffly, "I assure you that you are in grave error."

"Even though we look it," supplemented Dodd. "There's many an honest heart beats beneath a torn pair of trousers. Ouch! What did you kick me for?"

"I did not mean that you were necessarily hold-up men or anything like that," Miss Ferguson explained, "But I know my daddy's failings and when he starts to gamble with sharpers—"

"Like us," Dodd suggested.

"When he gets to gambling with unscrupulous persons he loses everything before he realizes what he is doing. I should have suspected him when he offered to go to the bank and get our securities but I thought I could trust him this time because he knew how dreadfully important it was for us to have the money. When he didn't come home for lunch yesterday I suspected the worst and when night came and he still did not show up I knew that he had not been able to resist the old fever to double—or more—his pile. Instead of being it home to surprise me, That's what he has been meaning to do all his life. He never brought anything home but once and that time I think the shock was what hastened my mother's death. I don't know why I am telling you points of the full face out of this unpleasant and distinctly heartbroken looking outfit. So he did as requested. He had had one fight earlier in the evening already and had lost it. His natural confidence in his fighting powers, few the incorrect, shattered.

So he grumblingly accepted the proffered settlement of his account and departed, the taxi-driver was not so surprised at the turn of affairs as was Dodd Speed who was fairly bursting with questions which he wanted to have answered as soon as they were alone.

"Why did you—" he began but Vernon's look leaving the floor warned him and he shut up abruptly.

"You may are really entitled to a reward," the girl suggested, "but you can see how it is. That money I just paid was all that I had in the world. Better times will come soon perhaps, although I don't know exactly where they are coming from but when they do I will be glad to pay you for your time and trouble. Tonight you will even have to walk back to where you came from."

"But perhaps we can be some assistance to you?" Vernon suggested diffidently.

"Not unless you care to ship as a swamper on this boat," she replied, "But it's only fair to tell you that my regular crew left me because I couldn't pay wages."

"When do you sail?"

"Right away. I've a day late in getting started now and I've got to be outside of Sandy Hook before daylight to make the run home in time."

"But you just said you didn't have any crew. What can you do?"

"I'll run her myself. I'll start the motor and then take the wheel until my dad comes up enough to relieve me."

There is quite a sea outside. The wind is onshore. Suppose your motor stops."

"I've got to trust to luck that it won't." There was a trace of the bitterness of despair in her voice. "It doesn't matter much one way or the other. I've got to start. If I don't get there I shall at least have tried. But I'll get there,—and in time, too."

"Is it then so very necessary?" Vernon asked gently. His eyes questioned her.

She sensed the sympathy, the understanding. "It is quite necessary."

"Then I'll go with you."

CHAPTER V.

The decision was as simple as the decision of the wind to blow. If there was no alternative for Miss Ferguson there was none for Vernon either. He attempted to explain that to Dodd when he came out on deck to try to reason with him.

"You stay here and wait for me," he said firmly. "If the girl I've been waiting for, all the years, turns up in reparation. As soon as I saw her I knew it. You know the old poem about 'Opportunity' and Shakespeare's 'tide in the affairs of men'? Well this is my tide and I'm going with it and I wish one was going to go anywhere save where this girl goes would be to deny fate, destiny, whatever it is that has brought me down to this lonely wharf tonight."

"What do you mean, us? Nothing brung me down here but a taxi-cab and I wish one was going to take me back to a nice warm bed."

"Perhaps it wouldn't be wise for you to go along?"

"Wise? It ain't a question of wisdom, it's a question of safety. If Mabel got home and found out that I had gone cruising unchaperoned on a gasoline schooner with even a scarecrow in petticoats she'd be putting her acquittal from a jury inside of six months. The only thing that worries me is what to do about you. My duty is to go home where my wife and family expect to find me but I've got to get you out of the middle of this brainstorm, too, someway."

"No chance, Dodd. You know I couldn't let this girl put out to sea all alone and you forgive myself for it afterwards."

"It isn't as if she was a bearcat for looks," Dodd mused. "I suppose if it was Mabel—"

"There you see you've reasoned it out for me. If it was Mabel you'd go and I'd return to my home of the club. Now I'm going to go and see."

"But, Vern, this Jane isn't a Mabel."

"Of course not."

"She might even marry you for your money."

"How could she if she doesn't know I've got any. She's the first girl I ever met who might like me regardless of trimmings. I know that's a big thing to say, regardless whether she has any interest in me or not doesn't enter into the case. Something tells me to have a hand in this party. You can kid me all you like but I'd do it anyway. I know I'm a joke myself but I can't laugh it off."

"Suppose something happened to you?"

"Suppose it did. That's what I'm going for. My nearest relatives are cousins and they probably wouldn't grieve very long if I stepped out. Without leaving any heirs near'r than themselves. Nobody's going to worry much about me."

"You lie like a gentleman and a golfer. I'm going to worry."

Vernon was silent. Then, "I forgot, Dodd. It does happen that there are pretty close to somebody aren't we? I'll tell you what I'll do, wire you from the first port we touch. Our destination can't be very far away because this is a gasoline cruiser and probably doesn't carry more than three or four hundred gallons at the most. If you don't hear from me soon you can send Terry after me."

"Since when has a Rolls become a sea-going bus?"

"Never mind about what he comes in, Terry will find me and give me a decent burial even if he doesn't arrive in time for anything else." Vernon Madoc laughed. "What we're so jugubrious about I don't know. This probably is only a picnic."

"You know darn well it isn't. Beside are temperamental things and there's something that isn't right about this one. You've felt it yourself. Look here," Dodd stepped over to the single life-boat which was suspended amidships on the port side. He pushed his finger against the planking and it went through. "The wood is rotten. This boat was built before you were born and it hasn't been painted since the Spanish War."

"Probably the hull is all right."

"And then again, probably it isn't."

"It doesn't make any difference. I can't let that girl go anywhere that I don't dare follow."

"Why not? There's thousands of girls in trouble in this world and you don't have to go around risking your fool neck just to help them."

"But this is different, Dodd. This girl is different—"

"Bosh, they're all alike."

"And some funny trick of destiny brought me down here."

"Bunk! It was the radio. And destiny doesn't take wireless into consideration."

But Dodd had no further arguments to offer. Anybody, even a blunt brain, would have recognized himself into a frame of mind from which it would be impossible to dynamite him with reasons. He had hooked himself like venison and there wasn't any use wasting breath trying to disentangle him.

Their conversation was brought to any end by an abrupt series of explosions below decks, the note of an old-fashioned marine motor which has been tormented into activity.

"All ashore that's going ashore," declared Miss Ferguson emerging from the companionway and taking off a pair of gloves which she had evidently worn for her hour with the engine.

"Hah, I'll cast off." Vernon rad forward to the bow-line.

The old yacht began to swing out at an angle to the pier.

"Then you're going?" questioned Dodd in an agony of indecision as to what he should do.

"Yes, and so are you unless you jump. It's your choice."

Dodd wavered and jumped. "Good bye, Vern, I hope you recover."

Vern let go the stern line, too. "I'm going in for homesquilly," he returned.

The distance between the boat and the shore widened. Dodd stood waving his hat.

The morning mist creeping in from the sea blotted him out.

Unrest at Night

THOSE who suffer from backache, pains in the ankles and feet, dizzy spells, dull, heavy feelings and are frequently disturbed at night would do well to try this powerful remedy of Dr. Pierce's, called "Anuric." T. A. Bessey, 643 Wellington St., Teeswater, Ont., stated: "I would have to get up two or three times at night. I would be a screwed across my kidneys especially in the morning. I had a dull pain in the small of my back. I had a bad headache and was tired and sleepy all the time. Anuric drove away the pains and I feel fine now." Price $1.00.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR CHILDREN
Children respond readily to our treatments, even more readily than adults. This no doubt, is due to the fact that the responsive power of the human being is greatest during its younger years, and there, too, the ailments are generally not of long standing. "A stitch in time saves nine." If your child is not enjoying the best of health, at every child should, our treatments will do for your child what they have done for other children.

GATHERS WINTER SUPPLY

MacGregor, Ja., Sept. 29.—(CP)—Cutting down timber in a cow pasture, D. R. Wilder, MacGregor farmer, discovered he had cut himself a 300 pound comb of honey for the winter so well as kindling wood. The hollow of a big elm contained a solid column of honey eight feet long.

FEELS STRIKE IS JUSTIFIED

Former Judge Stubbs Says Strikers Want Only Chance to Live

London, Ont., Sept. 29.—(CP)—Action of the Ontario Government in despatching troops to the Stratford strike area came in for caustic criticism when ex-Judge Lewis St. George Stubbs of Winnipeg addressed a fair-sized crowd, here last night.

"It's an outrage, a disgrace and an insult," he exclaimed when commenting upon conditions at Stratford, where he had just visited.

There can be no question about the justice of the cause of the Stratford strikers, they are perfectly justified. They are striking for the right to live and that is all," he declared. "I'd like to see every one of those commercial heads at work plucking birds for two cents apiece. Then they would know what it is like," he added with reference to the walkout at the Swift Canadian plant where girls are demanding three, instead of two cents, for denuding chickens.

Mr. Stubbs is touring Ontario in the interests of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and at the same time advocating reforms in the administration of justice.

BULK SHIPMENT IS PROTECTED

Fruit Growers Claim Shippers Not Being Fair

Kelowna, B.C., Sept. 29—(CP)—Some 500 men, women and children of Kelowna stood guard over the railway tracks through last night and today, protecting their recently won fight for better fruit prices.

A switch engine, unable to proceed because of the massed guard, turned back from its errand, which was to pick up six cars of bulk apples, prepared for shipment in contravention, it was said, of the new stabilization agreement.

The whole city was alight and bustling through the night, practically every section of its population represented in the crowd that gathered in front of the Belco Co-operative and Rowcliffe packing house from which the cars were to have been shunted.

The passive-resistance effort was made in preference to anything more drastic, after the crowd was addressed by President W. E. Hanington of the British Columbia Fruit Growers Association. He urged the growers to refrain from violence, and told them T. G. Norris, barrister, was enroute from Vernon in attempt to secure an injunction against the shipment. The growers kept warm by a bonfire of packing boxes, cheered their leader and assured him there would be no movement of cars until after the result of the injunction effort was known.

YOUNG'S MOVE TO PHILLY

Desire To Live Their Own Life Given As Reason

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (CP)—Prospect of a cocktail bar and a desire to "live their own life" are bringing George Young of Toronto, noted Canadian distance swimmer, and his equally famous wife, the former Margaret Ravior, to live in her home town of Philadelphia.

Mrs. George Ravior, Margaret's mother, told the Associated Press the young couple has rented a home in the northeast section of this city and would take up residence here in about a month.

"George has splendid prospect of a job as swimming coach for a first-class club," Mrs. Ravior said. "I would prefer, however, that you get the details from him."

Young, who won international attention by his victory in the Wrigley Catalina Island marathon several years ago, left for Toronto by automobile Wednesday after several days of house-hunting in this city. He was accompanied by his wife, three-time winner of the Canadian National Exhibition 10-mile marathon swim for women.

"Margaret and George have a lovely home in Toronto and I kind of hate to see them leave it," Mrs. Ravior said. "But you know, Margaret says she can't get used to the attention she and George attract. She tells me people even follow them into the department stores whenever they are recognized.

"Of course, the job has a lot to do with them moving here but money isn't everything. They want to live their own lives."

BIRTHDAY CONGRATULATIONS.

COL. J. T. C. THOMPSON HEADS NEW BOARD

NEW PENSION BOARD NAMED BY MINISTER

Will be Composed of Eight Members in All

LESS TRAVEL

Col. J. T. C. Thompson, Former Chief Will Head New Board

Ottawa, Sept. 30 (CP)—Colonel J. T. C. Thompson, Chairman of the Board of Pension Commissioners, has been appointed to head the new Canadian Pension, it was announced by Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions, here today.

The new commission includes seven members besides the chairman, as follows:

Dr. R. J. Kee and Dr. J. F. Ellis, both of whom were members of the Board of Pension Commissioners; Dr. D. W. Gray, H. A. L. Conn, (General) Sir Eugene Fiset, V.C.; Dr. Lionel Robert and Stephen Price.

Announcement was also made of the appointment of R. Reis Richard of Sackville, N.B., to the Pension Appeal Court in place of Lieut.-Col. L. R. LaFleche, D.S.O.

Statement Issued

Issuing the names of the personnel of the new commission, the Minister gave out the following statement:

"The new Canadian Pension Commission, which will take the place of the Board of Pension Commissioners for Canada and the Pension Tribunal, will consist of eight members, who, for the most part, have had long experience in pension matters. While this number constitutes a reduction in personnel, when the entire membership of the two bodies which are being replaced is taken into consideration, the commission will be large enough to deal promptly with the applications already submitted and with those which will hereafter be made. The proceedings of the commission will be simplified in many of the proceedings expedited. It is expected that the commission will commence to hear cases about the middle of October.

"The situation regarding those members of the pension tribunal whose terms of office have been concluded at an earlier date than has been anticipated, will receive the consideration of the government."

Some Reappointed.

The new commission retains Sir Colonel Thompson, Dr. Ellis and Dr. Gray, all the members of the pension board, the chairman of the tribunals, Sir Richard Turner, V.C., is reappointed.

Dr. Kee was chief medical adviser of the pension commission for a number of years; Mr. Conn was a commission counsel under the old act; Dr. Robert was connected with the pension board in Montreal, while Mr. Price was a member of the Ministers today as a "departmental agent."

On the pension appeal court Mr. Richard Skills the requirements of the act which calls for a legal member of not less than ten years standing.

With regard to the reviewing officer, Mr. Lapointe said it was noted that he would be appointed in a short while.

The amendments to the pension become operative tomorrow, Oct. 1.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Seaside, Sept. 30.—(CP)—The Rev. Hector L. Wilhelm has been a busy man this year. He has supplied the whole neighborhood for several years. There's another excellent crop this year.

"Some folks, I'm told," he said, "make pear brandy with their apples. If so the brandy must be good, the pears always are."

Detroit, Sept. 30.—(CP)—Police are wondering if Paul Bunyan, the giant of legendary lumberjack, is stalking the earth again, and if he has taken up tiddlewinks.

Someone has stolen 40 manhole covers from the streets.

Harper, Kas., Sept. 28.—(CP)—After being in existence for 46 years, the Fall Women's Club of Harper will have no excuse for the when the leaner members of the Club were no envious of the others that they used pillows and weights to deceive. Not recently they took a look at the latest styles—and decided to reduce.

Greensburg, Pa., Sept. 30.—(CP)—Mrs. Vaughn Fern Rubright thought the rattling she had dropped snakes down her back. She was granted a divorce.

GERMAN DELEGATE

DR. PAUL J. GOEBBELS.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in the Hitler government, is mapped following his arrival in Geneva to represent Germany at the disarmament conference. He is expected to ask the conference that Germany be permitted to rearm, and that German colonies seized by the allied forces following the world war be returned.

NO SOLUTION STRIKE SEEN

Workers Refute Charge They Are Guided by Outside Unions

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 30 (CP)—Little hope existed today for immediate ending of this city's labor troubles. At six furniture plants and a packing establishment pickets were maintained, but there was a complete absence of disorder.

The packing plant, owned by the Swift Canadian Company, was the first to doors yesterday and closed temporarily after a large number of the chickens had been moved by strike breakers, while all but four windows in the plant were doors locking again today.

The furniture workers will issue a statement sometime today in reply to an ultimatum handed down by the manufacturers yesterday in which they claimed the Workers' Unity League, with which the Chesterfield and Furniture Workers' Industrial Union is affiliated, was in turn a Canadian branch of "The Red International of Labor Unions with headquarters in Moscow." It stated they withdrew all concessions offered to the men.

The employees had stated previously, however, they would return to work under the manufacturers until the 120 troops and five tanks which have been mobilized here are withdrawn from the city. Presence of the soldiers there has caused considerable feeling, and last night petitions were circulated throughout the city asking they be removed.

SECOND TRIAL WILL BE HELD

Jury Disagrees But New One Empanelled to Hear Case

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP)—A second trial will be held in the case of Rev. Father Bart, charged with manslaughter as result or an accident in which the priest's automobile struck and fatally injured Fred Rose, 19 year old bicyclist last August.

A Supreme Court jury sitting under Mr. Justice Hoel Jeffrey, failing to reach an agreement in the case after deliberating for five hours last night. The panel was discharged and the priest released on his own bail of $5,000.

The jury returned once during the five hour interval to receive further instructions concerning the difference between negligence and criminal negligence. They retired and one and a half hours later reported they were unable to reach a verdict.

Father Bart will appear again for trial at the present Assizes after another jury has been empanelled. Algiers.

CUBAN LEADERS FORGET ENMITIES

COL. BATISTA. PRESIDENT SAN MARTIN. BLAS HERNANDEZ

Forgetting enmities of the past, President Ramon Grau San Martin of Cuba, shakes hands with Blas Hernandez, rebel leader of the island republic, as the latter visits Havana to assure the new president of his support, discounting reports that he was opposed to the revolutionary regime. Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the Cuban army, stands by at the two meet on friendly terms.

COMMUNISTS CLASH WITH GOVERNMENT

Disagree as to Where Ashes of Dead Leader Should be Interred

CAMERAMAN HIT

Six Killed And 14 Wounded in Street Battles

(By Edmund A. Chester)

Havana, Sept. 30. (AP)—Street battles between Communists and soldiers, in which six persons were killed and 14 were wounded, today left this capital tense.

The shooting and wild disorder attended a demonstration of thousands of Communists in memory of a Cuban Communist leader, who was killed in Mexico four years ago and when ashes were brought here this week.

Through the night shots were heard intermittently, automobiles rushed through the city, and soldiers remained on guard. Feeling between troopers and Communists continued at high pitch.

Many feared a new outbreak today for the ashes of the slain youth, the student Julio Antonio Mella, apparently were in the hands of the soldiers, who planned to bury them in Colon Cemetery today.

The Communists had planned to inter the remains in a huge obelisk they were building in Fraternity Park, in opposition to wishes of the government. This disagreement brought on the shooting from house tops near the park and started the general battle yesterday afternoon.

Scattered by rifle and machine gun fire, the Communists individually worked to force a general strike, but government officials said they met with questionable success. Transportation facilities operated as usual today, army commissaries and operators acceded to Communists' demand for a six-hour closing yesterday.

Cameraman Hit

Joe Gibson, 45, an American news steel photographer was recovering from bullet wounds in his leg. Six others of the injured, however, were Cubans.

A statement issued by the Ramon Grau Can Martin administration said the communist party had been authorized by the government but that the Communist Confederation planned to bury the remains in Fraternity Park, an army captain was killed and Communist marchers to ask leaders to conduct the funeral to the municipal cemetery.

Then, the communique added, a company of soldiers surrounded by a mob. Hernandes Ruda was sent to the vicinity "to prevent disorders and bloody encounters between which the government had been informed that its enemies were planning to create disorders."

"The first shots of general shots were fired and Capt. Hernandes Ruda fell, gravely wounded. The soldiers upon being attacked started to shoot in the air to disperse the crowd, but the crowd was hostile, and as several shots were fired at the soldiers, they fired back. Two soldiers were wounded.

"The first shots were fired from the house across the street. Several persons were arrested and rifles and ammunition in the house were confiscated.

ONE MISSING AS STEAMER EXPLODES

Crew of 20 Removed After S. O. S. Is Received

London, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A report to Lloyd's from the British steamer Hartside today said the Latvian Steamship Andromeda sank after sending an S.O.S. from 48.40 north and 7.3 west. Her crew of 20 was saved, but the first engineer was missing.

The captain of the Andromeda said he thought an explosion or striking an unseen obstruction caused the wreck. The Hartside and the British vessel Carinthia picked up the Andromeda crew and proceeded to the distress call. The Andromeda sank left Barry on Sept. 28 for Algiers.

U. S. Strike Situation

New York, Sept. 30 (CP) — The United States strike situation today:

1. President Roosevelt signed an hours-and-wage agreement for the Western Pennsylvania soft coal mines operated by iron and steel companies. He expected the pact would end a strike of 73,000 miners.

2. Eighteen hundred steel workers slept on hastily rigged cots in the giant Carnegie Steel Company mills at Clairton, Pa., last night. Outside clamored 3,000 coal miners who had pushed into town seeking to call the steel workers out on "holiday". Tear gas released by company deputies forced these hundreds of miners to move away from the main entrance at midnight.

3. Henry Ford remained silent as labor troubles mounted in scattered assembly plants. His Chester, Pa., plant was closed after a walk-out. Strikers at the Edgewater, N.J. plant shook clenched fists and shouted "rats" yesterday at men still working. There was trouble too in the Richmond, Cal., factory. Threats of a "big push" to the great Dearborn, Mich., plant were heard.

4. A truckload of miners riding home from work was ambushed late yesterday at Madisonville, Ky., six men were wounded by gunfire from behind bushes.

5. Many other strikes were still in progress, including one involving 10,000 auto tool makers in Michigan.

6. Some new strike calls were sent out, including a summons to 300 garment workers in Cleveland.

7. NRA mediators and others pressed for settlements. Among the disputes concluded was a month-old strike of bullion workers in Newark and Hoboken, N.J., and Pittsfield, Mass.

FORMER EMPLOYEE HELD ON KIDNAPPING CHARGE

Ship Owner's Family Believed Held For $25,000 Ransom

New Orleans, Sept. 30 (AP)—Geo. M. Cox, New Orleans and Chicago ship builder, whose wife, son and daughter-in-law, have been absent from their home here since last Saturday night, said today a man had phoned from Chicago last night asking if his $25,000 reward offer for the safe return of his family "was authentic".

The caller said the family was "well and happy".

A man who identified himself as William Davis, Jr., of Louisiana, was taken into custody by police today after they said New Orleans authorities had informed them that the family of George M. Cox, wealthy ship owner, was believed to have been kidnapped for $25,000.

The family, consisting of Cox's wife, 37, their two-year-old son George, Jr., and Mrs. Cox's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Arnold, left Cox, when he returned to his Lake Pontchartrain home six days ago following a visit of five weeks at Copperstown, Ill.

Chicago police said the first they were called in on the case was when Chief of police of New Orleans telegraphed them that Cox had received a telephone call from a man who gave his name as George Wendt in Chicago and who told Cox to get together $25,000 for the return of the family.

Previously, Cox had offered a $25,000 reward for their safe return when he discovered them missing.

Police Act On Tip.

Acting on another tip, the source of which they refused to reveal, officers arrested Davis, who until two weeks ago was employed on Cox's lake steamer, the Isle Royale, at a hotel. He denied any knowledge of the whereabouts of the family and said he was preparing to return to Louisiana.

Later police said they arrested Davis upon information provided by a long distance telephone operator who listened in on a conversation in which Davis, with a man, who had attempted to reach Cox in New Orleans from a south side Illinois station.

LIGHTNING AREA IS IN ALGOMA DISTRICT

Extent of Area is Given as 5,000 Square Miles

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 30 (CP)—A belt of 5,000 square miles, extending from Lake Superior to Blind River, is the "lightning area" of Algoma, in the opinion of N. R. Krnsit, Chief Forester.

For the past ten years, the Jersey's records show, 90.8 per cent. of lightning fires in the district have broken out in this specified belt.

The Chief Forester's theory is being investigated, "through it we have already learned much information about lightning storms and fires," he said. "We have a staff of Fire Forestry Branch in the placing of towers and in patrol work following storms.

SIEGE CALLED OFF

By I. R. Lindgren

Clairton, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP)—The siege of Clairton by 1,000 striking coal miners was called off suddenly today as the miners may study a coal code agreed to last night by the H. C. Frick Company and other "captive" mine operators.

REACH HEIGHT OF 11.18 MILES INTO ETHER

Surpass Record of Piccard And Only up Four Hours

QUITE COLD

Temperature of 22 Degrees Below Zero in Gondola Registered

By STANLEY F. RICHARDSON

Moscow, Sept. 30—(AP)— Less than four hours after taking off in an army balloon for a flight into the stratosphere, three Russian air service veterans came down today and claimed they had flown higher than man has ever gone before.

They said they ascended 19,000 metres, or 11.18 miles, if their instruments were correct, a new record of 16,700 metres set by Professor Auguste Piccard in August 1932, was surpassed by 1,200 metres, or 3,936 feet. Piccard stayed aloft 17 hours.

The balloon's pilot was Prokofiev Ernest St. Birnbaum and Konstantin Gudenoff, had made eight previous attempts to get their craft, which they call the Osoaviakhim, off the ground, but today, thanks to perfect weather, they had easy sailing.

Five messages sent while they were soaring left told of their rapid progress upwards. About two hours, 30 minutes after they took off they wirelessed they had bettered the Swiss scientist's altitude and were climbing.

Drifted Short Distance

They had been drifted only 24 kilometers from the straight line upward, they reported, and said the equilibrium of their craft was good. They did not complain of the cold, although at that great height the temperature inside their gondola was 22 degrees below zero, centigrade, and the outside temperature 56.6 degrees centigrade below.

Only a few persons were at the field to see the take-off but thousands saw the silver-white big ship appear shortly after nine o'clock. The crew were heavy fur-lined, three-quarter length coats, felt boots and knee-length caps, and regulation aviators' helmets.

The three air service veterans had as their purpose to study cosmic rays, atmospheric, electrical and magnetic conditions, and the biological effect of high altitudes on men, and disclose subjects.

Their balloon is a frubberized percale and has a gas capacity of 20,000 cubic meters. The gondola of Aluminum, is ball-shaped, with nine portholes for observation purposes. It has liquid oxygen for three men for 50 hours, and numerous scientific instrument which function automatically.

TRACTOR DOES JOB AT BARN RAISING

Takes Place of Three Hundred Men Placing Barn

Oakdon, Ont., Sept. 30.—(CP) —The spirit was the same. But the method was different when Lorne Wanted a barn, and his neighbors decided to give him a helping hand raising bee. Seventy-five turned out, and with the help of Lorne's McCormick's tractor, had the massive beams in place and the framework up in less than an hour. In the old days it would have taken 300 to do the same job.

Irish Delegates Frank in Discussion of League

NOT HELPING

Building Armaments And Otherwise Destroying Peace Structure

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Geneva, September 30 (CP Cable) —Sean O'Kelly, Vice-President of the Irish Free State, today frankly placed responsibility for the League of Nations' failures at the door of the great powers. Speaking to the League Assembly, O'Kelly said the machinery of the League had not broken down, but the responsibility for its failure to maintain peace throughout the world must lie with the great powers, which owing to their economic servitude to the League, had failed to carry out its purposes.

The situation, said the Irishman, could only be described as grave. It could not be glossed over with fine phrases. The powers in all parts of the world were dangerously active in preparing for a chemical warfare in more terrifying and inhuman shape for civil populations than had been hitherto known. The situation was one which might well jeopardize the continuance of the great experiment on which so large a part of mankind had founded its hopes. It must be fearlessly examined, that the causes might if possible be removed.

Why asked O'Kelly had international conference proved so effective a weapon? Had the members of the last war become so dim as not to be able to preserve the nations from the menace of a further race in armaments? Peace and the will of peace, he declared emphatically, was essential.

Small States Can Help

While O'Kelly placed chief responsibility at the door of the great powers he thought the small states also had their responsibility for the success or failure of the League. By their impartiality, candor and independence they could contribute towards the solution of many of the League's problems. This particularly applied to those states elected to represent their fellows on the League council.

The duty of the League, he concluded was to face its difficulties frankly. "Then it must, for there is no alternative but international anarchy," he said.

A demand for a special convention under League of Nations auspices to study the question of the individual's regardless of race, color, or religion" was also made before the assembly by M. Frangulis, a Greek who is Hellas's delegate.

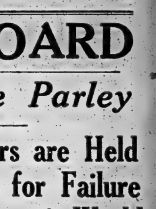
Kellogg Anti-War Treaty

Recalling the principles sought in the Kellogg anti-war treaty, he said the convention should be concluded before the end of the year 1919 and 1920 respecting minorities. Haiti, he added, had always defended the principle of peace.

Meanwhile, League circles believed the reform in the cabinet of Konstantin Von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, would have little effect on disarmament situation, regarding which Germans here gave the impression of a firmer attitude.

Before leaving for Berlin to report developments at Chancellor Hitler, the Minister said Germany will insist on equality with Geneva arms at a level to which neighboring countries would consent.

Should this viewpoint not be accepted, League circles felt pressure would be brought to bear on Germany by guns, bombing planes, and the like, besides cutting the armed forces.



FAVORITE WINS DUKE OF YORK HANDICAP

Kempton Park, England, Sept. 30 —(CP Cable)—Shouldering top weight Hit And Run easily Tuesday, the favorite, won the Duke of York handicap over the mile and a half quarter route this afternoon a length and a half over W. A. Yeatman-Biggs' Shrewton, with A. Barclay's Celadon another length and a half back in third place.

The winner, a four-year-old brown colt by Hurry On—Verger, carried 122 pounds and started at odds of 4 to 1. Shrewton, with only 82 pounds, was at 10 to 1 and Celadon 110 pounds, was 5 to 1. Sixteen ran.

City and District News

RECORD CLASS AT BABY CLINIC

Seventy cooing, smiling babies, between the ages of six months to six years, made up the largest well baby clinic in the city held on Friday afternoon ever handled in this city by the Victorian Order of Nurses. All perfectly healthy, scarce in spirits and temperament. Illness was experienced by Misses Dunnals and Miss Webster in caring for the record crowd of babies. Although the majority of the babies ranged in age from one to three years, a number of the tots were in the neighborhood of five and six years.

HIGHWAY MINISTER STOPS IN CITY

En route to the east following his trip of inspection through the western section of the Province, the Hon. George McCrae, Ont. Minister of Public Highways, made a brief stop over in the city Friday night. Unrecognized by local residents, the Minister and party remained at the Hotel Quinte and continued their trip Saturday morning after an early breakfast at the hotel.

POLICE LOOK FOR THREE LOST BOYS

The provincial police of Eastern Ontario have been called upon to do the lookout for three missing Oshawa boys who apparently ran away from home on Friday last. They are Ham Dodge, 15, medium build and wearing a blue coat; Stanley Tucker, 16, slim build wearing a blue overcoat and jacket; Norman, 15, fair complexion, wearing a blue and white striped sweater were the descriptions received by the police relative to the three missing lads. Their parents believe the boys are Ottawa bound.

SLIGHT BLAZE ON EAST COLLEGE ST.

A slight blaze in the dry woodwork of the wall behind a lighter kitchen stove in a residence on east College street, gave members of the local fire brigade a busy department a run to that location late Friday afternoon. A few pails of water soon subdued the fire which threatened trouble. Little damage was occasioned.

THREE SCHEMES WILL BE STUDIED

Three major projects which will be considered by the City Council under a scheme or relief work for the unemployed during the coming winter are objected to be recommended by the committee of the City Council who spent the morning, Friday, on a field jaunt which was followed by a trip of inspection through the city. It is believed the principal discussion by the council on Monday evening when the report of the committee is submitted will center on the Zwick's Island project, the reclamation of the Moira River and river bank, and the suggested overhaul of sanitary and storm sewers in the city. Other minor projects will also be aired.

MANY FREAKS OF NATURE NOTED

Raspberries are holding their second crop of fruit in this district. In the garden of Mr. D. A. Weaver, 81 Alexander Street, the purple variety of this berry are in bloom at the same time bearing luscious fruit. Mr. W. H. Hall, Bridge Street, has bushes in a like condition and on Church Street a plum tree is in bloom.

NEW CHOIR LEADER GIVEN WELCOME

For the purpose of re-organization, a special meeting of Holloway Street United church choir was held in the church parlors last evening when the entire personnel of the choir assembled to extend to welcome their new choir leader and organist, Arthur Crumplar, who was introduced by Rev. H. B. Neal. Following a social gathering, the election of the choir's officers was found Frank Rayfield, President; [illegible]

PLUM TREE WORKS A DOUBLE SHIFT

Nature is still giving the lie to the calendar in this city and district. Reports from outlying districts of berries ripening serenely on the bushes, of lilac trees in full bloom, and of dandelions growing again on lawn covered lawns, were shaded into oblivion today by the sight of a plum tree owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Monk, 169 Church Street, in full bloom, and threatening to develop a new crop of plums —unless the frost comes too early.

107 BLOOMS AND BUDS ON ONE PLANT

Mr. Roger E. Parks, 206 Charlotte Street, brought to this office Saturday morning a fine bouquet of dahlias grown from tubers given him by Mr. J. Marsh of Point Anne. On one of Mr. Parks' dahlia plants he had 45 flowers and 62 buds at present.

A smouldering and smoking tree set on fire by the careless dropping of a cigarette stub or other lighted material into its decayed interior, gave firemen a busy run early on the end of Burton Street at ten thirty o'clock Friday evening.

A WARMER WEEKEND BUT MAYBE SHOWERS

It will probably be warmer over the week end. But there is also the spirit dampening possibility of showers, forecast by the weatherman. Temperatures dropped during the early morning Saturday, with the lowest point registered at 50. On Saturday the highest point reached during the morning was 66.

Rev. A. L. Geen Completes 62 Years as Business Proprietor

Oldest Active Druggist in Ontario, Probably in Canada

On September 30th, 1871, Albert L. Geen purchased the Holden Drug Store of this city from the proprietor J. C. Holden after Mr. had been in existence since 1835 (nearly 100 years ago now). Previous to his taking over the business, this old-time proprietor of a business in Belleville, had been employed by the Holden firm for 5 years. Mr. Geen is today (Saturday) completing his 62nd year as proprietor of Geen's Drug Store. Not only is he the oldest merchant in the city, but the oldest active druggist in Ontario, and probably in Canada. The same year this venerable, business man of Belleville started in business for himself was married also by the opening of a branch of the Dominion Bank in this city, and the incorporation of the Ontario College of Pharmacy.

Business in Old Days

Geen's Drug Store for years did a large jobbing business from Kingston to Colborne and from Lake Ontario to 100 miles north of Belleville. In the old days the firm dealt largely in coal oil and lamp goods, buying the latter commodities in carload lots. For some years Mr. Geen had a coal oil route to Picton, Isle St. with a capacity of 1000 barrels; the older residents of the city will recall this forward enterprise on the part of the, then, young business man of 1871. The Geen Drug Store also did a large business in window glass, which was imported direct from Belgium and had to be ordered months ahead of the use delivery was to be made and the compounding of medicines, pills and tablets was the main business of the store in these days.

Other Activities

The life activities of the Rev. A. L. Geen have by no means been confined to his mercantile career. He has found time to serve his fellow citizens and his Maker well and faithfully in many capacities; first unstintingly he has given of his time, energy and thought to the forward civic movements of Belleville and the services and social work in the church. He is senior past president of the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association of Canada and the only living member of the first City Council of Belleville. He is a life-member of the Board of Education in which body he served for many years, and is the oldest member of many fraternal orders, as well as past chief officer of most societies in which he has been affiliated. The Rev. Mr. Geen is the oldest member of the congregation of Christ Church, and the oldest active Anglican clergyman in the Diocese of Ontario. He lies in the same bonds he occupied when he entered business 62 years ago, in fact, he established his home in "Meadow Cottage", West Bridge St. 2 years previous to that event in his life.

A Mohawk Chieftain

His interest and active participation in the work of his church with the Indians of the Mohawk Reserve is well known throughout the city and district in appreciation of his untiring efforts on their behalf, a number of years ago the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte tribal chiefs, designating him as chief Shojiyowanis (a big Indian) and Mr. Geen is very proud of this recognition on the part of his Indian friends.

Going in at a high noon old in years this fine elderly druggist of the Dominion, is still active in his, surely at his place of business, and the day that marks the completion of his 62 years as proprietor of Geen's Drug Store finds him at his desk or behind the counter of his mercantile establishment as usual.

LARGE TANKER ENTERS LOCAL PORT

Weighing with its heavy cargo of gasoline for the British American Oil Company's refinery, the motor tanker Ottawaite, entered port late Friday afternoon and discharged her fluid cargo at the large company tanks. Residents of the lower end of the city awoke shortly after dawn to the long blast of the whistle as the boat got to make the return trip east.

OBITUARY

MRS. SARAH JANE HAGGERTY

Stirling, Sept. 30.—Special—An aged resident of Stirling passed away on Thursday evening, September 28th, in the person of Mrs. Sarah Jane Haggerty. Deceased who was in her eightieth year was born of Irish descent in the vicinity of Madoc, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Brown. After her marriage to William Haggerty she took up residence on their farm about three miles west of Stirling on the Campbellford Road. A few years ago the couple retired from the farm and moved to Stirling where they have since resided on Isabella St. near the Frankford corner.

The late Mrs. Haggerty was an Anglican in religion and until recently took an active part in church affairs. Left to mourn her loss besides her husband are two sons, John T., of Frankford, and William James of Bonarlaw, and four daughters, Mrs. Peter Farrell (Margaret), of Rawdon; Mrs. H. Leonard (Stella), of Sidney; Mrs. Hagerman (Ena), of Rawdon, and Mrs. Gay (Maude), of Foxboro.

The funeral which will be held on Sunday, leaves her late residence at 1.30 p.m., to proceed to St. John's Anglican Church where funeral service will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. S. McConnell, assisted by Rev. Rural Dean H. F. Hall, of Belleville. Interment in the Eighth Line cemetery, Rawdon.

BABY LILLIAN G. WARREN

Little Lillian Grace Warren, 9 months-old infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Warren, of Franklin Road, passed away this (Saturday) morning in the Belleville General Hospital following an illness of three weeks' duration. Besides the parents, two sisters, Verna Isabelle and Frances Jean are left to mourn the little one's loss.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the parental residence and interment made in the Belleville cemetery.

RETURNS AFTER THIRTY YEARS

Brig. F. R. Bloss to Conduct Harvest Festival Service For Army

The Special Harvest Festival Services held at the Salvation Army Citadel this week-end are being conducted by Brigadier F. R. Bloss of Toronto.

The Brigadier conducted some very successful revival services in Belleville thirty years ago, and has had wide experience in Army work being one of the pioneer officers to the Klondyke in 1898 under Commander Eva Booth. The Brigadier will relate some of his experiences in addition to the Army's Harvest Day afternoon, entitled "Early Day Reminiscences of Army Work".

The subjects in the morning will be "Walk of Living Water" and at night "Sowing and Reaping". Special music will be rendered by Belleville Citadel Band, under Bandmaster Evin.

On Monday evening the Young People are giving a special program and the annual sale of goods will be held.

Adjutant and Mrs. Martin extend to all old friends a hearty welcome to attend these services.

E. McQUILKEN IS INJURED

Car Strikes Pole, Driver Thrown Partially Thru Windshield

Ernest McQuilken, reported to be from Rochester, N.Y., with relatives at Carrying, is in the hospital suffering from injuries received in a motor accident on Highway No. 2 at 1 o'clock this (Saturday) morning when his car struck a hydro pole on North Front St. McQuilken was proceeding south on North James St., when at the intersection of College St., it is claimed, he struck a car in the road at the turn, and his car, turned on its side, overturned and ran along the street, finally striking the pole. McQuilken was partially thrown through the windshield and his throat badly cut, and also received a dislocated and broken knee cap. The car, a Chevrolet sedan, was wrecked. Constable Taylor answered the call, and the unfortunate man was taken to Mr. Henry Hale's car, to the office of Dr. J. J. Robertson. Following preliminary attentions there, he was taken to the local hospital in the city ambulance with Constables Arnott and Thompson in attendance.

ONE DAY FAIR IS SUCCESS

Picton Fair Goes Over Top Despite Decrease in Grants

Picton, Sept. 30—The experiment of one day fair at Picton on Thursday proved very successful and despite the fact that nearly a thousand dollars less in grants was received this year than last, the Society will have a good surplus. The county grant was entirely abolished.

Perfect weather favored the event, though it rained all day Wednesday and rain began to fall shortly after the night performance ended at 10.30.

According to local opinion it was the best fair here in over ten years and on the one day ten thousand people attended. The whole district turned out.

The event was really a County Fair. Exhibits, except two horse entries, one from Belleville and the other from Peterboro were from all parts of Prince Edward County. Two of the three horse races were won by county race horses. The night performance featured Ontario with the Mohawks of Deseronto as the only outside entertainers and they did not fail to put on the best given here in a long time. Local talent was utilized to the fullest possible and this added interest.

The results of the various races are:

The night performance saw a packed grandstand and hundreds of others. The pageant "Landing of the Mohawk at Deseronto" by 25 Mohawks from Tyendinaga Reserve was beautifully done. The Indian dances by both the men and women will rest soon be forgotten. The Pickering Revue put on a first class tabling tumbling dances and stunts that brought down the house.

Belleville Motorcycle Club put on several stunts including riding a plank and on dropping off the raised end, going through a flaming wall. In the light weight exhibition boxing between Micky Sargent and Cecil McKenzie, a draw was declared. Will Brooker and Walter Lewis gave exhibition wrestling and boxing, Lewis winning the wrestling and Brooker the boxing. Brian Dodds was announcer and Cy Welch referee.

EGGS MOVE TO 30 CENTS DOZ.

Highest Price For Year is Obtained On Local Mart

Steadily advancing until they attained a new season's high price of 30 cents egg was the chief article of barter on Saturday's local market, it being the highest price in Belleville since the sudden increase in the price of eggs. The local market was always. Macintosh Reds sold at 75 the prices of dressed fowl was noticeable.

Many fine specimens of milk-fed chickens were offered for sale and ranged in price from 50 cents to 90 cents each. Smaller broilers brought 50 to 70 cents a pair while fine looking ducks were offered at 75 cents each. Butter remained stationary selling at two pounds for 45 cents. Vegetables for fall and home cooking was in evidence and sold at the season's prevailing prices.

The outside market presented a very handsome appearance with the usual display of autumn fruits and vegetables blended in perfect harmony with the many beautiful flowers displayed but no advancement in prices. St. Lawrence corn sold at Wealthys at 75 cents. Snows at 75 cents. Local corn sold at 50 cents a dozen. The market was over-supplied with melons with the large watermelons selling from 30 to 50 cents and canteloupes at from 5 to 10 cents each, according to their size. Wild grapes brought 15 cents a basket. Pears were plentiful and sold for 25 cents the basket. Many fine displays of pears were also observed. Fall apples were in plentiful supply added beauty to the market square thoroughfare.

No variations in the prices of vegetables marked selling interest, when tomatoes sold for 50c a bushel and potatoes brought 30c a peck. Cabbage was plentiful and sold for 5c each or three for 10c. Cauliflowers at 10 and 15c each. Pumpkins at 5 and 10c, cabbage at 5c, cauliflowers at 10 and 15c and green corn at 15c a dozen also predominated.

Over on the eastern side of the market square fine looking young porker pigs were offered for sale and early with a limited amount of cord wood also being offered for sale. Saturday morning's attendance throughout the early morning hours was exceeding and well on into the afternoon.

POLICE COURT

John Thompson and Thomas Worden, two transients, who were arrested on a charge of vagrancy last Tuesday, were fined and remanded in custody, pleaded guilty to the charges preferred in the police court this morning. They were given a four-day sentence from the time of their arrest and after a severe lecture by Magistrate Mikel Ponton. Both Thompson and Worden were caught in the act of "panhandling" on Bridge Street last Tuesday.

B. W. Stein, Detroit, who was arrested by the Provincial Police following an automobile accident on the Dundas Road, early Friday morning last, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving. He was fined $25 and costs. One fine was paid.

HICKORY NUTS ARE PLENTIFUL BUT SMALL

Due to Abnormal Dryness of Early Summer

Hickory nuts are plentiful in the district, but the residents, who have already bought the first of the crop find them a little smaller this year in size, although with quality unimpaired. Farmers of the district account for their smaller size as being due to the abnormal dryness of the first part of the summer. In some of the less favored districts the hickory nuts have not had such a late start, that they appear useless and unfit to pick. Whether the farmer, who owns the old tree on his land will be able to pick any of the harvest depends on how close watch is kept of the trees in order to ward off the thieves in the empty flour sack, and his chief enemy, the squirrel. By Halloween they should be in their prime.

QUINTE COUPLE IN RIFT

Tweed, Centre of Rural Community Gathering as Best Fair in History Held

Autumn Tingle in Air Adds to Freshness of Exhibition

5,000 ATTEND

Speeding Events Best Ever Seen in That District

The Tweed Agricultural Society's Bigger Better Second-to-day Fair terminated at sundown Friday with officers, directors and visitors delighted with results. It was the biggest and best fair yet staged by the association and all who had aught to do with it are jubilant regarding its outcome. With summer weather just tinged with autumn brightness, the foliage changing reds and golds, and the surrounding hillsides, the grounds and crack in fine condition, everything seemed to make the second day of the fair an invitation to the good folk of the vicinity and countryside to make it an afternoon of outing. And right well they responded to the call. Friday's attendance was the greatest yet seen on the Tweed fair grounds.

Exhibits

While a number of classes were not represented with entries, there was a goodly showing and judges were kept busy in their responsibility of rendering awards justly. The cattle judges were five hours in making their selections s-t judges of horses had a harder time to choose from. The people of t...Tweed section of the country certainly know how to turn them out, and how to make them step to show to best advantage. The show ring in front of the grand stand was a centre of interest, while the parading of awards in all classes of equines progressed.

Speeding Events

The speeding events called out good crowds of interest. Under the 2.36 class there were seven starters and three heats were run; five heats were run in the 2.50 event with 6 entrants; while the 2.16 called out six other trackmen and they were all keen to win it. The sun had dipped low in the horizon before the last of the races terminated and interested spectators avowed it was the best afternoon's racing yet sponsored by the Agricultural Society of Tweed.

There were two mishaps to the afternoon's track events, both fortunately without serious injury to man or beast, and with little damage done. A runaway first took place on the home stretch in the first heat of the race terminated and interested spectators avowed it was the best afternoon's racing yet sponsored by the Agricultural Society of Tweed.

There were two mishaps to the afternoon's track events, both fortunately without serious injury to man or beast, and with little damage done. A runaway first took place on the home stretch in the first heat of the race, Driving Miss Grattan Bars had the misfortune to lose control, and on the fourth place in that event. And in the second heat of the 2.36 class Harry Mulloy of Rna McGlinney, driven by J. W. Connor was overturned. It however, was but a matter of a driver and the heat was finished: eventually the horse won second place in the event.

COLLEGE STREET SCHOOL AT TRENTON WINNER OF TROPHY

Many of Graduates Watch Children Perform

Trenton, Sept. 30.—(Special)—The annual field day of the Trenton Public Schools was held yesterday at Bayshore Park, the first time the event was held in Firemen's Park where the new plant of the Dupont Coulter Co. is now located. Points gathered by the schools are loaded yearly with the winner capturing the Weddell Cup. College Street School amassed enough points after yesterday's sports to hold the cup for another year.

College St. School made 14 points to Dufferin St. School's 12 yesterday. College St. had already scored 20 points on the boys and girls' softball tournament. Basketball and hockey are left yet for competition.

Some real fine athletes (s)ve been developed in the schools and yesterday the spectators watched the youngsters put to they had into their annual sports day.

Mr. V. P. Carswell is principal of College St. and Mr. W. H. Osterhout, C.A., is principal of Dufferin.

COST OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Few people, unless they have given the matter close study, have any idea of the magnitude of the League of Nations and what it costs in dollars and cents to keep the organization going. This year with expenses pared by ten per cent. the League's expenses will be six million dollars gold. Great Britain contributes $600,000, or this Canada's cost. The membership is a considerable sum annually. There is a feeling within the League that cost of operation is too high, and the subject is discussed by the Montreal Gazette in the following interesting article:

"The Assembly of the fifty-seven member states of the League of Nations at Geneva has many knotty problems to face, ranging from the old one of disarmament and the newer one, which is derived from Hitlerism, of how to own budget problem. The latter, if less acute than some of the others, is nevertheless vital. Already it has stirred lively debate. The bill that has to be paid this year amounts, approximately to $6,000,000 gold, which is ten per cent. less than last year's account, but still too much, according to certain members' views. For example, M. Stephen Osusky, Czechoslovakia's Minister to Paris, looking ahead before the budget commission that the League's secretariat exceeds proper proportions. It is too much like an army with all generals and no privates, he declared. This was but one of the protests which found expression against the costliness of the League. Other delegates united with M. Osusky in his fight for economies. On the other hand, champions of the conference methods maintain that to further reduce the League's budget would mean crippling the activities of the League to a harmful degree.

"The financial difficulties of the League would be considerably lessened if the budget commission were more exacting in demanding that all the member states should punctually pay their just dues. Great Britain sets a good example in this respect, though her contribution of $600,000 is the largest of any. The Canadian Government is not far in rendering its Dominion liability, but twenty-eight members are behind in their dues for a total, since the League began, of more than $2,000,000. And, according to authoritative information, twenty per cent. of last year's dues is still unpaid."

EMPIRE TRADE

Nothing is more clear at present than that our future is with the British Empire. There was a time, six months ago, when there existed prospects of fairer trade with the United States, of a revival of reciprocity. Those prospects exist no longer. They have been swallowed up by the meaning and consequences of the NRA and we shall be lucky if United States will not holds even greater penalties upon our export to that country. In the circumstances, Canada's clear duty is to do everything possible to further trade within the Empire, to avoid everything and anything which may militate against it. The Empire today is and will continue to be our greatest market, certainly our most dependable market, and that market ought not to be trifled with. Not by a country like Canada, whose economic life is the sale of her surpluses.—Ottawa Journal.

HELP FOR THE POTATO GROWERS

Two years ago, when the potato-growers of this province were receiving as little as ten cents a barrel for their product, they were contributing their share to ensure the orderly marketing of wheat. If it is fair to support wheat even to the extent of the Dominion Government becoming a partner in the business, then it is equally fair that the potato growers' demand be favorably listened to. They are asking less than the wheat-growers are getting. With the example of the West so strikingly before us, in which millions of dollars have been raised to support the price of wheat, there should be modesty in New Brunswick in demanding similar treatment for the potato growers of this province. —St. John Telegraph-Journal.

TOO MUCH CONTROL

Mr. Roosevelt is considering adopting a "controlled" dollar. The whole trouble is that dollars are already so thoroughly under control those who need them most cannot get them.

FLYING BOATS FOR CANNIBALS

They no longer eat you in the Fiji Islands, but still they lack much of being altogether happy, for there are too many islands too far apart, with a mere handful of retired cannibals on each and mighty little doing, whereas the most Christian of retired cannibals craves excitement.

Welcome, therefore, is the report that at last every Fiji Islander can hope to go places and do things, travelling by air. A dispatch from Cawaci to La Presse (Montreal), informs us, "after twelve years of fruitless effort, aviation has become a reality in the Islands, where the British Government had subsidized the Fiji Airways Company and given it a pair of hydroplanes, so that trips requiring eight or ten days when made by motor vessels or sailing boats will be made without difficulty in two hours." Islands are far from exhausted.

THE MYSTIC UNION

I do not ask that many understand
The mystic hidden deckly in my deed;
Why should, a stranger, who has never scanned
My spirit know of all its urge, its need?
It is enough that one with clearer eyes
Shall look beneath the surface and discern,
Deep down, the plan, the purpose I devise
Where thoughts through brain's strange mazes wind and turn.

But, ah! to one I would lay bare my soul
With loving secret, willing furtive there,
No impulse veiled, no wish denied; the whole
Revealed as to my God, avowed with prayer.
Such is the mystic union love must know
When two souls into one soul's semblance grow!

SING SING PRISON inmates to the number of 2,000 saw a fine game of baseball when the prison nine held the New York Giants to a final score of 9-3 in a seven-inning game. National League champions started the game with the regulars, retiring them gradually to give the rookies a workout—and a good time was had by all. Incidentally it may be mentioned that in the last inning the Sing Sing team loaned the Giants one of their pitchers and it was in this inning that Sing Sing scored three runs.

CUTS IN SALARY to a maximum of $60,000 for railway officials, suggested by the United States Government, have been agreed to by all railroads except the Pennsylvania, which persists in paying its president $109,000 a year. Perhaps he feels that the unkindest cut of all would be to cut his salary almost in half, but he should have some thought for the shareholders who would like to see a dividend once in a while.

BANK BANDITS IN CHICAGO ran up against a tough proposition when they tackled a Canadian branch bank there. HERBERT HOOVER, ex-president of the United States, visited the World's Fair at Chicago recently as a plain citizen. He couldn't get away with it. Recognized from his photo so frequently published in the newspapers, he was soon the centre of a huge crowd, and ere long was accorded the presidential salute of twenty-one guns, or whatever it is. The crowd about the ex-president grew so large that a squad of police had to come to his assistance and escort Mrs. Hoover and himself to the gate and waiting automobile. LOOK ON YOUR BODY AS JUST MECHANISM

Wear And Tear Must be Compensated by Rest, Etc.

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The human body is really a machine, a highly efficient and complicated one. It possesses a certain structure which is designed to perform certain kinds of work. In order that such work may be accomplished, energy is required. This energy the body obtains by breathing in oxygen, by eating food, and by assimilating into its very structure the mineral elements of the food.

As in every machine there is a certain amount of wear and tear on the bodily structure. This is constantly being remedied. So smooth, in fact, is the functioning of the average body that we substitute the body as a whole that one is unaware of the many changes and processes as "anabolism"; the two together as "metabolism."

Forty-one per cent of the entire human machine is made up of muscular tissue. The bony framework comprises 18 per cent of the total. The rest is composed of the organs within the chest, the skin, the brain and the blood.

As regards waste products, the kidneys alone excrete about three pints of urine in the average twenty-four hours. The skin through the sweat glands, excretes about one and one half pints.

The waste matter from the lungs, in the air that is exhaled, is largely carbonic acid gas. This is a chemical product of the oxygen breathed in by the lungs after it is utilized by the blood.

In general terms it may be said that the body excretes a day about as much water as it takes in as food and drinks. Also, carbonic acid about equals in volume the oxygen breathed in.

The real waste must be made up by the food that is eaten. Hunger is a fairly good guide as to the amount that is needed although a knowledge of the fundamentals (proteins, fats, starches and sugars) is necessary in order that all the bodily requirements may be supplied.

Meat contains protein in a highly-concentrated form. Protein is also found in peas and beans, milk, etc. Fat, starch and sugar foods are easily obtained. Bread, for instance consists of one kind of food value alone except that in addition to this diet is therefore essential.

Although the human machine gets exercise, so to speak, simply while it is functioning, it has been found that a certain amount of exercise is highly beneficial to the general well-being of the body.

Since the nervous system is a truly co-ordinating system, the slightest part of the body not being connected up with the nerves, or nerve—it is likewise necessary to divert the mind, "which is the organ which senses and controls and directs all the rest.

In other words, you cannot allow the human machine to stand idle as you would a motor car. The body is alive and, as a living thing, it must function continuously for best results.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Although nausea and even vomiting may accompany a severe headache, especially the type designated as "migraine," a sufferer may readily come to the conclusion that the cause is something that he has eaten. As a result there are those who eliminate one article of diet after another. Needless, however, the food has little or nothing to do with the condition. What needs correction, as a rule, are general living habits, as well as emotional conflicts.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went home for supper yesterday and found a note under the door, saying on it, Important meeting tonite at Post Number One, we will keep up and find you the password. The Mystick 3.

The Mystick, 3 means Mr. Mystick and Leroy Shoester, and we started to eat supper with the Mystick 3 in mind. I'll go, that's profesorly for me, I'm extremely fond of pickles.

Well O. pop, maybe it's for me, I said.

Who knows, pop said.

And he went and answered it, and the weird guy he's here, but he's eating his supper, just at present, he said, I'll tell him to call you when he's through, pop informed me.

And he came back, and in about one minute the same guy again appeared saying, This must be my call now.

And he went out to see me.

Why you, Hello, no you cant, confound it I just told you he's eating his supper, just at present, he said, I'll tell him to call you when he's through, pop informed me.

And he came back, me saying, Who was it pop?

By golly I forgot to ask him, pop said, and I said, Did it sound like Pudd?

Why yes, I believe it did, pop said, and I said, Did it sound like Mystick?

Now that you mention it, I think it did, pop said, Why does you call them tech up after supper? he said.

Which I didn't baff to, on account of calling Pudd fernt and it was him, and I'm nearest to the hardware, and I quick ran out to Post Number One, being the lam and pop's telefone call hadn't came yet and maybe it never did.

PETER THE LAND GRABBER

ON THIS DATE, in 1808, there died at York (Toronto) a man who is an illustration of the fact that there is often a lot of romance intermixed with every phase and practically every figure in the early history of Canada. Peter Russell, who was Administrator for three years after Simcoe left, broken in health and heart, the first due to the malaria he contracted in the swamps where he was busy at the blocking of his plans by Dorchester, Peter came of a good but poor Irish family, (born at Cork in 1733), entered the army when 16, earned his Captain's commission before his 24th birthday, fought under the 84th regiment in the expedition against Savannah and Charleston, in 1779-80, did garrison duty at Gibraltar and various places in the West Indies, came to live a while in London on half pay until finances ran very low, was promised the nice soft job of secretary of the British legation at Washington, only to be tricked by political cabals, then content, as a time when any job looked good, to accept the position of collector of customs in the new colony that was to be opened up in Upper Canada at a salary of £200 a year. Simcoe, who recommended him, seems to have had a high regard for the Irish captain from the start. He made this member of his first executive council at Kingston and of the legislature. Indeed, even later made him a judge though he was not a lawyer and knew little law. His office of collector of customs developed into public auditor and receiver-general, all for a miserable pittance on which it was practically impossible for a gentleman to live.

Was it any wonder then that Russell took advantage of the liberality with which Simcoe granted land to soldiers and all who could put on some sufficient excuse and almost as soon as the capital had been located at Newark got an order passed by council granting him 1,000 acres? No specific place was mentioned, either by accident or design, a fact which loomed to Peter's advantage since land was able to pick his land; and he was a good judge from then on until his death on Sept. 30, 1808. Some people have described him as a land grabber; nowadays he would be classed among our "Successful realizers"; but in reference of course to the benefit to the Russell family! She was official locator when Peter was administrator from July 1796 to August, 1799, and conducted the domestic affairs of Russell Abbey, built on the bay shore at the foot of Princess Street, both before its destruction by fire in 1797 and afterwards to her own home on the adjacent old Peter's property by will, made August 28, only a few weeks before his death. Most of that property in course of time passed to the Baldwin family and is now worth countless millions.

Jack Miner Sanctuary

Every person who has visited the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary or read of it and its amazing activities is naturally wonders—"what will become of the place when Jack Miner is no more?" However, every citizen of Canada and the United States will be pleased to learn that Miner has sprung into existence what is known as "The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc." This organization has entered into a tripartite agreement with Toronto General Trust to accept contributions and bequests for the purpose of perpetuating the Jack Miner Sanctuary, so that moneys from said trust will not be made available both during the balance of Jack Miner's lifetime and after he is gone, to feed and care for the birds on the Jack Miner Sanctuary.

Jack Miner plans, as soon as the public has contributed sufficient money to insure the upkeep of the property in perpetuity, that he will on his part turn over the Jack Miner Sanctuary to The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc.; and at the death of present trustees he has named the Premier of Canada and the President of the United States to be a committee of two to name their successors.

If you are a man or woman of wealth and interested in God's outof-doors, where can you place a large amount of your wealth that will be used for the purpose intended. The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc. These contributions are all to be placed with the Toronto General Trust, which is charged with the trustees of the Foundation. Washington Has Edge In Outfield; Giants Trail 'Em in Batting Power

By HAROLD GEORGE
Central Press Sport Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—In comparing outfielders of the two world series hopefuls, New York Giants and the Washington Senators, the Washingtons would appear to have the advantage, as their game fans say, "behind the plate" and "in the infield."

The Mannush-Schulte-Goslin trio isn't the heaviest hitting outfield department the world series has seen by many points, but it has shown considerably superior stick work over the Giants all season.

Here is the way the outfielders of the two teams compare—man for man:

Left Fielders

THERE CAN be no arguments that the Washington Senators are better fortified in left field than the Giants. Would you rather have Henry Rossman Mannush or Joseph Gregg Moore on your ball club? Why, Mannush of course!

Mannush has been thumping out base hits and doing a good defensive job for the Senators for the last five or 11 seasons. First he was with Detroit, then in his first year as a Tiger he hit for .334 and in his fourth year, 1931, he was in the top of the batting averages in his league with .377.

Mannush has had only two seasons under .300 and twice he batted .311 and .312. Only one player in the American league is .326 and for the last five years he has averaged better than 40 two-base hits. This year he will be a few under, but will undoubtedly be around average.

Baseball writers, if they select Hitnic on their all-star lineup, will point to three things as justification for their selection: (1) He was the first American leaguer to get 100 hits for the season; (2) he is the only leaguer to get 200; (3) he is fifth in the major leagues in runs scored. (4) he is the leading outfielder in the American league according to batting averages; (4) he is second to Jimmy Foxx in the matter of handling the league batting champ. (5) he has had two hitting streaks, which ran to more than 30 consecutive games, one of them to 36.

Moore has been on the Giant pinoch-season last year and in 86 games last year showed evidence that he could hit, batting with .305. This year he is crowding .300 and has the best average for the Giant outfielders. With added experience that he will gain, Moore is apt as long as Bill Terry is at the steering wheel of the Giant machine he may add to the batting fame that has been Mannush's all these years.

Unlike Mannush, the Giant leftfielder is not of sturdy build. Last year he was supposed to have built himself up to 185, but has lost considerable and looked and doesn't look a bit over 155, his old weight.

Until Moore finishes something more in the way of hitting and defensive work, he will have to be classed as just another outfielder when compared with Mannush.

Centre Fielders

ANY PERSON not a close follower of baseball might have to consult a record book to learn there to be the center field performers in the impending world series between the Giants and the Washington Senators. Players at this position haven't been in the headlines much this season.

Fred Schulte will do the work for the Senators, and Hughie Critz will be George Davis's most of the time. He will be there, of course, because Bill Terry may take a notion to pull Davis out of the lineup, move Hall or Ott over to center and put Lefty O'Doul in right field.

Terry's juggling of the Giant lineup thus becomes an admission that there is something missing in his outfield and unless Ott plays regularly in center instead of in right, Fred Schulte will be given a big margin over Davis in comparing combinations.

Yet Fred Schulies —his family name—has proved a best hitting outfielder. He is just a good steady player, a great one to cover ground, certain to hold the ball if it can be held possible to get near it, and possessing a gun and accurate throw that affects his six-year average of .294, compiled with the St. Louis Browns with whom he played before going to Washington this season.

Right Fielders

OUTFIELDERS are expected to supply a big share of the punch and the "young" men who will do right field duty for the Giants and Senators in the world series have batting promise to live up to expectations.

That is the reason Ott's batting is slow slightly more promise than the patchwork the Senators have had assigned to the right pasture all season. There are good arguments for and against, but there, as the case may be.

Mitchell Alvah Ott has been performing there for the Giants this year, except when the team's shifted over to center. On those occasions Frank J. "Lefty" O'Doul took over the job to the right. Both are lefthanders who plays right field for the Giants, but the job is Ott's by right.

Leon Allen Goslin is the Senator at this position, another of the affectionate name this player is called by fans and writers. He has enjoyed a better year as a batter with Washington as far back as 1922, the Rube Foster year, when Goslin, hanging to his belt, won in 1923, when he beat out Heilmann by .001, been averaging .327 all these years at Washington and St. Louis, where he spent two and a half seasons.

But the Goose is getting gray and he isn't quite what he used to be. Past performances are not generally, but this year's form, even with the Goose's batting and fielding, is no better than in 1932 when he hit .296 with the St. Louis Browns.

While the Goose is batting approximately 10 points better than either Ott or O'Doul, Ott is leading the Giants in batting by more than 100 to his credit, and O'Doul, with about 150 times at bat, has hit safely more than his almost as many runs.

Ott can throw, and accurately, too; Goslin had a notoriously weak arm at one time, though he has shown much improvement in it of recent years. Both have been fielding well. The edge in this department this season in the East. The Goose, while getting better than in the days "Chasing Ivy Day and Oct. 4th," has been unable to get to the outstanding fielders and pacers racing through right field for the Giants, but Canadian West, Leo Hanover the three year old Futurity winner, Pompoon, Jr., and the two-year-old record from the Hanover Farm, Jr., Terry, are all scorn under colors at Belleville.

BOWLING

ADVANCE SALE FOR SERIES NOT HEAVY

Chances of Sellout in Either Park Not Likely

BATTLE KEEN

Players Should Receive Highest Cut in Years

By Alan Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor

New York, Sept. 30 (CP)—Most of the stress and strain for the world series opening tomorrow revolve around the box offices between now and the opening blast of baseball warfare at the polo grounds next week-end.

Joe Cronin and Bill Terry well may be concerned about "keying" their players to the desired overwrought pitch. Old Gus Fan may be worried over who the Senators will nominate to hurl against Carl Hubbell in the opening game, as well as his chances of squeezing into one of the scant 9,000 bleacher seats at the polo grounds for $1.10. But the club owners today were more deeply involved in the job of trying to unload the high priced tickets that mean profits for the climax of an otherwise lean year.

The chances of sellouts, especially for the polo grounds, appear unlikely, although officials of both contending clubs insist the advance sale is "satisfactory."

However, there are some 44,000 seats altogether in the two grounds, exclusive of the small centrefield bleachers in the Giant park, and 38,000 are the capacity at Washington, including extra stands erected in the outfield, is around 36,000. The prospects of a full house at the capital appear somewhat better than in New York, where the big series is no novelty.

Nine years ago, when these same rivals last fought for the world championship, the total sale at the polo grounds was 49,343, for the first game, and 46,842 for the second at Clark Griffith stadium numbered 35,629 each occupancy, at the second contest. It took seven hard-fought games to run the gross receipts above the million mark in the 1924 series.

The battle between the Giants and Senators will be no less keen because of the financial stakes involved. The player pool now totals up to $250,000 nine years ago in similar surroundings and with a similar impulse to conduct a knock-down-and-drag-out fight. That meant close to $6,000 for each leading performer and around $4,000 for each loser. Since then depression and knock-down developments have caused these sums to be greatly reduced in every walk of life. There is no exception in baseball, except where salaries have been well pruned since the past two years.

The opinion still holds around Washington will trot out Monie Weaver, young right-hander, for the opening game against Hubbell but nothing around the "gashouse district" or otherwise known as world series headquarters—developed some belief today that Earl Whitehill, the strong-armed southpaw, may get the nod from Manager Joe Cronin.

FAST RACE TO BE GOOD ONE

Walter Stone And Margaret Dillon to Renew Lindsay Battle

A race that is attracting unusual interest, is the meeting again of Walter Stone No. 1, and the Margaret Dillon, credited with a mile at Toronto Grand Circuit in 2.02 with the last half in a minute, at Toronto Exhibition Peterboro and Lindsay this mare whipped practically all the leading pacemakers of the year. She made Baldwin go a mile in Lindsay in the fastest time of the season, and came right back next day in 2.03 1-4 to defeat the mighty Walter Stone after winning two heats.

With such horses as Walter Stone, Jim Whitney, Ajl. Abdell, Bertha Patch and Margaret Dillon fighting it out for the honors this race will be the feature attraction event this season in the East. The mile, which is the fastest time for two days "Thanksgiving Day and Oct. 4th," has been the entry list for the outstanding trotters and pacers racing through Ontario and the United States, but Canadian West, Leo Hanover the three year old Futurity winner, Pompoon, Jr., and the two-year-old record from the Hanover Farm, Jr., Terry, are all scorn under colors at Belleville.

Senators and Giants' Infields Are Compared; Appear Evenly Matched

By HAROLD GEORGE
(Central Press Canadian Sport Writer)

New York, Sept. 30.—When Washington and the New York Giants clash here October 3 in the world series baseball championship of 1933 the strength will be matched.

The Senators would, perhaps have the edge at shortstop and third base but the Giants appear stronger at first and second.

Here are comparisons of the regulars of the two teams at each of the infield positions:

First Baseman

One thing is certain in the approaching world series between the Giants and Washington. There is going to be plenty of first baseman provided in capable fashion by Bill Terry and Joe Kuhel.

A veteran against a youth. A veteran who is regarded as the Giants' greatest first baseman in many decades and one who will go down in history as one of the best of all time. That's Bill Terry. The youth is Joe Kuhel, who shows promise in his third season as a regular and also becoming one of baseball's great.

Terry cost John McGraw $500 back in 1925. What a bargain Terry has proved to be! In ten seasons he has won a National league batting championship—401 in 1930—and batted a .343 average for his major league years, topped the National league in mid-season, 1932, and this year led the Giants to the National league championship while being the lofty hitter on the club with better than a .300 average. This fact dispels the belief that managerial duties affect his batting eye.

With all due respect for Terry, Joe Cronin thinks he has as good a man at first base as Joe Kuhel.

"Kuhel's an ideal man," the youthful Washington manager says. "I think he's a wonder around first. He gets all kinds of throws. He's a fine fielder of our infield. If any of us chance to get hold of a groundor fast infield he hasn't to get over to Kuhel we just peg it somewhere in his vicinity and you can be almost sure he'll get it. We're very lucky to have him there for the rest of the season."

And as a hitter Kuhel is coming along splendidly. His first year with as a regular found him hitting only .269 in 138 games. Last year he boosted it to .291 for 101 games, batting the winter months Cronin declares, for Joe Judge would be needed any longer to school Kuhel in the fine points of hitting. Joe Kuhel has more than justified Cronin's confidence and is now giving Heinie Manush a run for the best batting honors. His average is only a few points behind.

Yes, sir, there'll be some good first baseman in the 1933 series.

Second Baseman

The Giants and Senators are fortunate in having second base well protected.

Hughie Critz has been famous in the National league for years for his defensive work, first with Cincinnati and then with the Giants, particularly this year, when he and Blondy Ryan have formed the best work of the Giant infield machine.

For Washington, Buddy Myer has his peculiar earnings value to the capital fans nearly all season, as he never did hit much.

There isn't much to choose between the two Washington and Giant of Myer. Their high fielding averages at the close of the season for the past three years will be the owners' defensive ability. Critz has not been under .970 since 1927 and Myer's lowest average was .939 in the same period. Myer has been going up ever since. Last season he was .970, Kryziers were only a point apart. Critz at .974 and Myer at .973.

Third Baseman

They call it the hot corner, but it will be only luke warm in the 1933 series at least.

Travis Jackson, shortstop for the Giants from 1923 until last year, will be seen at third base for them against Washington, trick knee and all.

Ossie Bluege, never a star with the Senators, but just a steady ball player, will keep the hot corner third for Washington.

Bluege's best station of the infield undoubtedly belongs to Jackson, in spite of reputations that has been revived in the Senators' pennant drive. He's not a spectacular fielder, but a consistent, reliable, and outside of Manager Cronin the only Washington fans' idol. He is so well thought of that he was given an automobile recently.

Bluege is not the type of ball player who "grandstands." He doesn't make many plays that look hard, but hard, he isn't a .300 hitter. The Giants have had a couple of them together in eleven seasons as a regular, Jack Rothrock in 1927, but generally get his hits when they're most needed.

Shortstops

The key to the success of the Giants or Washington may be found right out there midway between second and third.

John Corbin (Blondy) Ryan who had more doing such nice defensive shortstopping this season, is one of the Giant players who has definitely had so much up-and-at-'em spirit. Manager Edward Cronin, the fresh-man manager of the Senators, has injected his life into the Washington party, just as Ryan is doing the sparkplug of the Giants.

One doesn't see many Blondy Ryans in baseball. It was something entirely new in baseball when Ryan that it made the Giants a last ditch team and it was by Ryan's determination from the lineup for one earlier in the campaign. When Ryan was missing the Giants were in the cellar. They started to slip. But when Ryan was ready to join his mates he sent that now famous telegram to Terry: "Terrapin back in. Am on route." The Giants started to win right there and have been winning ever since.

Cronin has been called the "Baby Face" since he made the Senators a pennant-winning team. He's always pulling something new in the way of strategy and he is far from being the baby-faced player he was around ball. Other managers in the American league recognize him as a smart baseball player, and he makes so many "baby" plays that some fans have come to believe they have a single baseball head.

King football will be played in Belleville this year, when the local R.C.I. junior Seniors journey to Trenton and Belleville to play the Trenton and Belleville juniors respectively. The Belleville team will be composed of the C.O.R.A. football, this year will be declared eligible to play in the junior series, C.R.A.F. title. It seems the winner of the Belleville-Trenton match will play Niagara Peninsula winners with the winner of the Kingston-Peterboro group for C.R.F.U. play-downs.

In short this merely means that the winner of the local junior-senior series will play the winner of the Trenton-Belleville football play-downs. Should the Belleville team win, as there hope by the local R.C.I. seniors, they will play against the winner of the local collegiate heads are recommended. Naturally with such a team Belleville will be a strong contender for the junior C.R.F.U. championship, however, a much better test will be given the local boys if Belleville this fall than in years past. The opposition is more keen and experience throughout which naturally will assure better football from a standard point of view. The only draw-back in the entire affair is in the entire affair is in the inadequate seating accommodation at Belleville's Athletic Park. Maybe this will be better before another season rolls around, however.

Spying on Sports

BASEBALL it seems isn't such a healthy game after all.

In recent years it has been the custom to depreciate the game as being a sport in which a big fellow, burning with energy, would hit the ball a mile, while a little fellow, bursting with energy, would run like a deer to get it. Now it is the fat men who are getting the "best years" of his life only to find that in early middle-age, with some cheap managerial job with some bush league whistle stop—baseball gets lucky.

Gold, capturing the popular fancy, has attracted many youths, who saw in it a chance for a swell life as a star pro, wearing good clothes, hobnobbing with the exclusive golf set and generally enjoying the high life only to find that in the end they'll be working for $18,000 winner open ers.

So why play ball 156 days under the hot sun and amid the dust of a diamond?

However, two young men have proven that a youth with a baseball can be made into an excellent career. A youth has brains, certain athletic ability and the yen to be somebody worth while.

The young men are Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants and Manager Cronin of the Washington Senators.

It is just a coincidence that Bill and Joe reached the top the same season. Both were headed for it and they did it in the same glorious way who don't miss.

Neither have been lucky, but luck alone did not get them there.

CRONIN'S path from batter-to-man player than ball player when he took up baseball. He was a 156 net ball player in California, and before him he had the luscious prospect of possibly some day becoming Clara Davis's cup star, a national championship and recipient of all the evidences of affection that a star tennis man receives.

Terry loved baseball.

Bill Terry started as a pitcher, but when his arm went dead he dropped out of baseball. He was determined to make a success in baseball somehow. He got a fair bush league player. However, when he was assured of an opportunity to play major league ball as a first baseman, he grabbed it.

And he has no need to feel sorry.

TERRY AND CRONIN did not have a lucky break. Both offered the ambitious athlete a chance at real success.

When they chose the classes for their careers, they had before them, the spectacle of what the late Charley Comiskey, Clark Griffith, Connie Mack and John McGraw had done.

All four began their baseball careers as unknown players. By dint of ambition mixed with skill the four rose to the heights. Comiskey became a millionaire and sole owner of the Chicago White Sox, Griffith is president and a large stockholder in the Senators, Mack became half owner of the Athletics and a well known figure, and McGraw is setting pretty with the Giants.

CURRENT SPORT

Although no complete schedule has been arranged for the R.C.I. senior basketball team, it is hoped that games for all games will be played at the local gym. Yesterday afternoon Manager C.O.S.S.A. Bradford held the dates for their own practices and we find the Belleville senior basketball team will play on Friday, the 13th. They play at Lindsay on the 16th, at Oshawa on the 17th, Peterboro on the 18th, Trenton on the 20th, Lindsay here on the 27th, Peterboro here on the 28th, Oshawa here on the 30th, Trenton here on Nov. 11th. Coach Shiels is reviewing the material at hand and has chosen Gerrard, if at all possible, as the opening play game. Many new faces will appear this season as there's only a single letter man.

King football will be played in Belleville this year, when the local R.C.I. juniors journey to Trenton and Belleville juniors respectively. The Belleville team will be composed of the C.O.R.A. football, this year will be declared eligible to play in the junior series, C.R.A.F. title. It seems the winner of the Belleville-Trenton match will play Niagara Peninsula winners with the winner of the Kingston-Peterboro group for C.R.F.U. play-downs.

In short this merely means that the winner of the local junior-senior series will play the winner of the Trenton-Belleville football play-downs. Should the Belleville team win, as there hope by the local R.C.I. seniors, they will play against the winner of the local collegiate heads are recommended. Naturally with such a team Belleville will be a strong contender for the junior C.R.F.U. championship, however, a much better test will be given the local boys if Belleville this fall than in years past. The opposition is more keen and experience throughout which naturally will assure better football from a standard point of view. The only draw-back in the entire affair is in the entire affair is in the inadequate seating accommodation at Belleville's Athletic Park. Maybe this will be better before another season rolls around, however.

For the information of the local fans it might be fortunate to know that the first time in the history of the game that in the course of world series will actually have two players from the same city playing on opposing teams. That year was the all-Chicago affair between the Chicago Cubs and that of Chicago, played Joseph Sewell the best of the Chicago White Sox. This year 17 years later Bill Terry manager of the New York Giants will lead his home-town team against Joe Cronin manager of Cronin's Washington Senators.

Of course there have been individual batting titles won by players on losing teams, such as Rogers Hornsby of the Cards this year's series is the fact that two players will play in the series on the ball's clock of 1933.

Today's questions—How many players in the history of baseball have there been who have played in two World's Series as batter in the entire affair—to be in the inadequate seating accommodation at Belleville's Athletic Park. Maybe this will be better before another season rolls around, however.

Correct Manners

WEDDING INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Brennan: I am living with my brother's mother-in-law and shall have her name on my wedding. Is this wording correct? "Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Powers request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter to

Mr. Lafayette Thomas Buston on Saturday the fourth of November one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three at nine-thirty o'clock in the morning Trees Drive, Plaza Chicago

As my last name is different than hers (she has been like a mother to me, though) I have inserted my last name instead of my middle name.

My husband-to-be is an engineer in the thinks. The wording is very proper, but asked me to ask your opinion, anyway.

Even if the relationship is so close and dear to you, I think that it would be inappropriate for you to use "their daughter" in the third line of your invitation. I suggest that, instead, you use only the words "at the marriage of."

Also, under the circumstances, I suggest that you use the title "Miss" before your name. This is usually done when a man marries a girl whose name differs from the last name of the bride. Also, if you wish, you might use the full name of

Miss Mary Elizabeth Leigh

This is the first time I have seen to spell out the names:

Mr. and Mrs. Everitt Powers

And 15 is not usual, in the invitation, to use the year. We include the year on the announcement, but not in the invitation.

GIFTS FOR A FRIEND

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I. Two years ago I had a teacher in school and I thought a great deal of her. I am always asking her for Miss X, but now I would like to call her by her first name and don't know whether to ask her permission or not. Shall I do so, or just start calling her by her Christian name? I don't think she would take offence.

2. Has anyone ever engaged to a man whom I have never met. That is, I send him a letter and he would you suggest.

3. Is it quite proper to give her some little household gift, instead of the regulation present, at the Christmas season? Birthdays, and if so, what would you suggest?

I am writing to correct to make hand-made trinkets and give them to her, but something a little more all?—B.

L. A. An outsider couldn't of course say whether the relationship has become so friendly and personal that it would be appropriate for you to call this former teacher by her first name. Only you can be the judge certain of, and that is that you should never use her name after you have asked her for this privilege.

2. Send her, by all means, some message of well-wishes for this important occasion, but don't send a card. Rather, send a telegram, a box of good wishes from you. And—may I suggest?—be sure to write that note on the lined paper on which you wrote to me. Get yourself some plain white notepaper, with matching sheeted, white, and plain.

3. Yes, I think she would rather have a gift for her home for Christmas . . . a piece of fine glass, or a leather portfolio for a table or desk (with her name or monogram or initials on it), or a photograph frame (the new plain crystal ones are handsome), or a small clock for her dresser, or a handsome cigarette box and set of ash-trays, or a library set of scissors and letter-opener, or a linen telephone book cover, or a linen tea cover.

4. Yes, this would be generous and gracious.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers.)

Fashion Flashes

The first arrivals of the season are always so important. Therefore one should not be carried away by novelties. Buy very carefully, clothes that will suit well with your wardrobe. A useful outfit is a beautifully tailored suit of black faille crepe, the fitted jacket being worn over a dress of black faille with a white top and tiny tiered sleeves.

A ready welcome is being accorded to squirrel, furriers reporting everywhere that that fur has been among the best sellers. A charming squirrel coat is made with deep yoke extending to the waist in back and made in one with the dolman sleeves.

Stripes are striking the mark of public favor for autumn sports wear. A typical example consists of a dress of striped woollen in rust and black on cream, and a long, loose coat of the rust-colored woollen, lined with the striped combination in the dress.

There is no need for furs to be expensive. A very smart coat is a sports model of gray kiddskin with a yoke of gray Persian lamb, that ties round the throat in a collar.

Just a touch of fur marks many of the new autumn frocks, especially those for general wear. A smart black woollen, on allin lines has a collar and shoulder creats of white galyak. The black self belt is edged with the white fur and closes with silver buckle.

MAMA SAYS "NO!"

And Millville Youth Loses Chance to Star for Connie Mack's Athletics

By DON BASENFELDER

Central Press Sport Correspondent

MILLVILLE, N.J. — Because his mother rebelled at the thought of having a big league pitcher in the family, Adam Lloyd, Jr., is to become a manual training teacher when he grows up.

The youngster who is 18 years old, weighs 200 pounds and stands almost six feet tall, has reached decision after much thought. Connie Mack, Cella Lloyd, forbids him to join the Philadelphia baseball team.

Just before the Mackmen left on their last swing around the western circuit of the American League, Connie Mack, manager of the A's, told him to report in September to spend the remainder of the season with the big Major club. At the end of that time a contract would be offered him, Adam was told, and he would go south with the Mackmen next spring.

Adam's mother thought the matter over. She and her husband operate a small grocery store on Vine street, Millville. Neither were ever blessed with fortune. A good big league job means much money.

To help the family financially, Adam sells ice cream from a truck during the summer.

Mrs. Lloyd talked it over with her husband. Harry Lloyd is a fisherman. them would be an asset. Away, he was lost entirely. He still had two years of high school to finish and perhaps some normal school training. was required before he could qualify as a teacher of manual training.

"Adam, you're not going to join the Philadelphia team," was the final decision of Mrs. Lloyd. "You're going to stay right here in Millville and finish your schooling. Your father and I have worked hard to get you an education."

"This baseball idea," concluded Mrs. Lloyd, "is a lot of foolishness and you're not going to gallivant around baseball, but used to being away from home for long and the big city might teach you bad habits. No, sir, you're not going into baseball now."

And that settled Adam and the athletics.

Evidently whaling to settle the controversy that ensued in the newspapers, Manager Mack declared later that he had not intended to sign the youngster, but merely give him some valuable experience at the hands of Pitchers George Walberg and Bob Grove.

But Floyd (Chalky) Clunn, of Millville, one-time left-handed pitcher with the New York Highlanders, tells a different story.

"Connie Mack was impressed with the youngster's fast ball," says Clunn. "Adam, who is a left-hander, has a fine curve. He was thrilled with his Athletic possibilities."

When Child Dislikes Home Is Shared

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

I believe there are two definite reasons why mothers run into trouble when they try to get their children to share the home responsibility of small tasks about the home.

The first usually crops up when little toddler tries to help wipe the dishes, or make the bed or dress himself. Most mothers are inclined, because time is short, to do a thing for a child how to do a thing than to while it is learning. The saving of time at that particular moment is shortsighted and presages the taking of greater periods of time when the mother, and the child, decide that the latter should be helping a little.

The second reason for reluctance on the child's part to share the tasks, is, I believe, because so often there is no reward, laughs or otherwise, waiting for him when he has performed them.

Reward For Task Well Done.

I don't advocate rewarding a child for every bit of work he does. That is, by giving him gifts, etc. There is a reward for him, in your praise, your giving him credit for what he has done.

The reward of going out to play with the other boys the moment one's task is done, is a reward terrific and properly, is along the line I have in mind. Work can be done well and thoroughly, with a feeling toward a definite end—don't forget this next word) immediate reward.

Immediate Praise.

Children can't project themselves into the future as we can. For me, I can work and save up for that trip next winter and carry the ambition along. Invisibly. A child is incapable of such a long stretch of imagination and preserve to a set purpose. His reward must immediately follow the deed.

If the dishes are washed quickly and well, the story hour or the automobile ride must come at the conclusion of the task, not next Sunday or next week. This is a conclusion we have to make to young minds that only lights on one idea for a very short period of time.

Make something joyous follow a bit of work. It isn't hard. Few of us work happily just for the work itself. It is only because we like it because, at the end of it we look forward to the higher reward something we desire.

TORONTO BACK ON STANDARD TIME

Clocks Will Be Set Back One Hour Sunday

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP)—One of the last stiles to cling to the trappings of summer, Toronto will set the clock back at one o'clock tomorrow morning and revert to Standard Time. Residents will get back the hour of sleep they lost exactly five months ago, but will not be so happy about it as if the change came on a work-day.

Ottawa and Montreal switch over to Standard Time at the same hour as Toronto.

GOODIES FOR "THE BOX FROM HOME"

If you have just recently said a tearful goodbye to a son or daughter returning to boarding school or college, why not consider yourself, in sending him or her a big box of home made goodies? At school, invitations to be "clean up on a box from home" are received with whoops of joy, and thoughtful mothers who send them are promptly elected to the "Top-Best-People-in-the-World" Club.

The most essential thing is to send only such delicacies which can stand the bounding the package will receive en route. Cake could be sent but small cookies and macaroons are just as delicious and much easier to handle. A compact little jar of home-made cheese spread is very welcome, packed in with week-end paper in the box. The Christmas pudding for which a recipe is given can be wrapped in several layers of wax paper and sent without any further worry. If you have a bit of extra room cuddle in a package of good nuts and a box of unsweetened biscuits for the cheese spread. Then slip a dainty note in a bit of wax paper, ship the box and await the enthusiastic thank-you note.

Date Crunchies.

1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk; 1-2 cup butter; 1 cup brown sugar, packed; 1 pound of pitted dates (1 cup); 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Thoroughly blend butter, sweetened condensed milk, the graham crumbs, cinnamon and sugar mixture. Drop by spoonfuls on to buttered baking sheet. Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.). Makes three dozen.

Marvel Peanut Cookies.

1 1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk; 1 cup butter; 2 cups sifted flour; 3 cups shelled peanuts, 2 teaspoons cinnamon.

Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk and butter. Add flour, which has been washed and put through food chopper. Fold in chopped peanuts and cinnamon. Drop by spoonfuls on to well-buttered baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven, moderately slow oven (325° F.). Remove from pan at once. Makes three dozen.

Chocolate Crumb Cookies.

1 cup toasted bread crumbs, 1 cup unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup peanut or pecan nut meats, few grains salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Toast bread until crisp and put through the finest knife cutting meat. Thoroughly blend sweetened condensed milk, chocolate, vanilla and salt. Add bread crumbs and salt. Chop nut meats and add. Blend thoroughly. Drop by teaspoonfuls on to buttered baking sheet. Press half a walnut into each and bake in moderate oven (350° F.). Makes 2½ dozen.

Christmas Pudding

½ cup sweetened condensed milk; 2 teaspoons water; ½ pound vanilla wafers; ½ pound dates; ½ pound nut meats. Thoroughly blend the sweetened condensed milk and water. Roll vanilla wafers to crumbs with rolling pin; finely cut dates and chop nut meats. Add to sweetened condensed milk and knead mixture thoroughly. Form into roll and chill on a platter. Cover with wax paper and refrigerate for several hours or longer. To serve cut in slices and garnish with hard candy or whipped cream.

Marvel Cheese Spread

½ pound package American Cheese; 1-1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk; 3 tablespoons butter; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon pepper; Paprika. Cut cheese in small pieces and melt over boiling water. Add sweetened condensed milk, salt, pepper and paprika. Beat until smooth. Pour into glass serving jar. Serve on crackers, between slices of bread or as filling for pears or peaches in salad.

Try a Quart of Citizen's Dairy Milk.—It is good flavored milk.

ONDERDONK—LLOYD

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. E. F. Swayne of Cobourg, on Wednesday, September 27th, at 3 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lloyd, Gilmer, Ontario, when their third daughter, Ina Mabel, became the bride of Ronald Earl Onderdonk, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Onderdonk of Albury.

The bride entered the living room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Miss Anne Lloyd, looking lovely in a gown of delicate peach chiffon velvet, made with long sleeves, cowl neckline and ankle length with cape which was caught on the left shoulder with a brilliant ornament; pale blue moire shoes completed the costume. The bride carried a bouquet consisting of Templar roses and lily of the valley. Miss Lloyd was dressed and wore the groom's gift, an engraved wrist watch.

Miss Thelma Lloyd was her sister's only attendant, wearing pale blue chiffon velvet, ankle length with cowl neckline and cape. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Keith Onderdonk, brother of the groom, was best man.

During the signing of the register Misses Edna and Mona Rupnow, cousins of the bride, sang "At Dawning."

The wedding party received about sixty relatives and friends before a very arch of evergreens banked with baskets of bronze and yellow dahlias. Bronze dahlias also decorated the living room and streamers of white and peach were prettily arranged, centering at the top of the arch from which hung a pretty wedding bell. The dining room was nicely decorated with numerous bouquets of Autumn flowers. The table was very pretty, centred with the bride's cake, iced in white, a bouquet of white asters and flanked by two pink candles in silver candlesticks.

The buffet lunch was served by Misses Marion Adams, Mildred Lloyd, Edna and Mona Rupnow, Mabel Hartwell and Helen Clarke. The latter two normal friends of the bride and the former four cousins.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an amethyst finger ring and to the best man, a signet ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Onderdonk left on a honeymoon through Western Ontario and New York. On their return they will make their home at Albury.

MOTHER... never give children a grown-up's laxative

If your child is fretful, listless, has no appetite—he probably needs a good laxative.

But — careful, mother! Many laxatives — made for adults — are far too harsh in action for the sensitive system of a little child. Yes, even "reduced" doses!

Give your child the laxative made especially for children—Castoria. It is gentle, safe — yet effective. It does not gripe, contains no narcotics, and children actually like to take it! Purchase a bottle today — at your druggist's.

LIBRARY CORNER

Among the new books this week are three interesting additions to the library's collection of Canadiana, Albert-E. Robson has hoped to arouse a national art consciousness through the pages of his book "Canadian Landscape Painters". The appearance of this volume with its seventy-five illustrations in full colour merits a long felt need for a comprehensive collection of Canadian artists interpreting the Canadian scene. Mr. Robson has made a comprehensive study of the history of our landscape art with the result that it may convey more familiarity with the works of our painters and stimulate a greater interest. The history of Canadian landscape art is also so short in years that the pioneers "almost tread on the threshold of to-day". Paul Kane and Cornelius Krieghoff, the two outstanding early painters date no further back than the middle of the last century. From there has sprung a relatively large group of artists. The handsomely bound volume includes a fine collection of landscapes by Watson, Walker, Reid, Suzor-Cote, Gagnon, E. W. Hamilton, Horne Russell, Lismer, Jackson, and many others. Of particular interest is the work of Manly MacDonald, A.R.C.A. born at Point Anne, Ontario.

Marjorie A. Rowe's book, "The Happy Islands", takes his readers to the Islands of Georgian Bay. From his journeys about these shores he had gathered pen-pictures of the bay in all its moods and has interpreted it in incidents, stories, legends and character studies. The record of a "high summer" spent in this fascinating region is enlivened with black and white sketches by Thoreau Macdonald.

Mr. T. Morris Longstreth, has in his book "Quebec, Montreal and Ottawa" made his visit to these leading Canadian cities a colorful pageant of people and places, of history, day and to-day. The author has written of his travels with a spirit of joie de vivre that is contagious to the reader. "It people knew of the joys of writing a book of this sort there would be no more unemployment". He compares himself to those excavators, who peeling layer after layer of clay find the real and more fascinating Troys beneath. He has found that the sights of Montreal and Quebec are really stories turned to stone and even Ottawa, commonplace and important, has her surprises. "I had intended a guide", the author remarks, "and it turned to an ode, a history, a dramatic pageant of three centuries, a collection of personal opinions interspersed with diversions for the reader who quickly label the opinions personal to offset any other reproaches; all of which, expressing opinions is half the fun".

Romance Leaves by Freight

by Joseph Sexton

Christina was not enjoying the picnic. Yet she knew she should have been very happy, for she had been engaged to Jimmy now for more than twelve hours. Of course, Jimmy wasn't able to be here—he was working—but that was not the chief reason for feeling depressed. It was her doubt that troubled her. They kept asking her if she hadn't given her word to Jimmy, and despite Jimmy's very definite ambitions to become an architect, it could not be denied that he was still only a junior clerk in a building firm. He had been affectionately termed a hopeful smile; yet when she thought of the obstacles before him, she could not help feeling a bit weak.

And she quailed, somewhat, too, at the thought of announcing her step to her family. They had been quite prosperous and prominent before hard times had forced her to find a job. Could they understand how Jimmy's grin and his voice and his ways and all that had won her themselves around her heart?

Christina knew that another member of the force from Marley's was there, Isabel Hodgkinson. Miss Morton was sitting under a tree. Nobody ever paid much attention to Miss Morton. She was of pity size, and in Christine, and she strolled over to join the older woman.

"It's beautiful here, isn't it?" Christina greeted her.

Miss Morton looked up, pleased that the lovely Christine should accord her the notice.

"Yes," she said. "It has always been a favorite spot."

"You were telling me," Christine went on, "about the picnics you used to have, years ago."

"Yes," Miss Morton answered. "It seems that nothing has changed except me." There was a look of pain in her eyes. "It is a long time ago, the wonderful days that Alfred and I used to have here."

So there had been a romance in Miss Morton's life! Christine's ears fairly pricked up. "Alfred?" she said, eagerly.

"His name had been Alfred Shaw, he appeared, Miss Morton, when she spoke of him, seemed to become a boy again at a private school where she had first met him. "Alfred Shaw" was brought to her that her cousin was waiting to see her. She never knew the name was not unfamiliar. There was a visitor usually.

Sights and Scenes About the Great Middle Sea
By F. T. GRAFTON
Letter No. 3—A VISIT IN SPAIN

OUR previous letter (No. II) on Gibraltar closed where our driver left us—at the "Neutral Ground" that separates the "Rock" from the great mass of Lines in Spain.

We entered the city by its only entering gate and sauntered through its quiet sun-baked streets. A lazy silence seemed to be a characteristic of the citizens, especially on a hot Sunday afternoon. Occasionally a painted donkey pattered along with its youthful rider or a team of oxen drew a low, light wagon, freighted with earthware half galvanized jugs containing clear drinking water brought from some cooling springs in the rural hills. Up a straight level half mile street we took our observant way (it at the northern limit) we came into open spaces. Occupying the central area was a large circular walled building like a bull-fight ring—about the seventh largest in Spain. Galleried seats for about 3000 spectators surrounded a central ring or pit. There was nothing attractive about its vacant spaces though when a big event would be on—usually once every few weeks on Sunday afternoon—this sleepy hollow would rouse to a state of electric and tense excitement.

CADIZ

Just a few miles to the west along the coast lies the much more important and historic city of Cadiz which was passed a couple hours just before debarking in Gibraltar. But scarcely another city in Spain shows the Spanish characteristics to such good advantage. Its cleanliness, absence of beggars, high average intelligence of its people and the attractiveness of the women all contribute to a peculiar charm. Here also are varied elements. Sailors from every nation, Moors, Negroes, Spanish soldiers and whole regiments of fishermen along the ocean walk.

Duties on imports being very high smuggling is common. There are ten taxes in any event go largely not to city or municipality but to enrich the official classes. Political corruption under the present monarchy was common and the new republic has done little to stem the tide. This contributed largely to Spanish decadence. Another obstacle to progress and development was the profound ignorance of the peasants. Even in remote districts where living conditions are almost barbaric. Olive oil and wines from the rich valleys and from the interior might find a high priced market but its leisurely methods and pig skin storage makes it unfit for export. Necessarily Spain is rich in other natural resources too such as cork, lead and varied fruits and with modern methods and methods might still hold rank as in the great days of Spanish power as a rich and powerful nations of Europe.

Cadiz was founded by the Phoenicians 1000 years before Christ and was the earliest limit of the western world made it an outpost trading station about 1100 B.C. and during all the period when the Hebrew race were ruled by Judges, by Saul, David and Samson and a century before David was bounded by King Saul.

Cadiz 600 years later belonged to Carthage. Then Cesar made it one of the most important fortresses of the Roman Empire. Their writers waxed eloquent over its palaces, aqueducts, its commerce and its fleets of war.

Later it fell to the Goths, then to the Arabs.

The Moslem swept over it with his Koran, crescent and sword bringing new culture, learning and the splendid Moorish architectural ruins which still draw the tourist to Spain such as such spots as the Citadel, Maqoue and Palace of the Alhambra at Granada.

Just before 1600 Cadiz fell to Lord Essex and marauding English who came to carry the plundered treasures to England. Then followed her commercial supremacy and prosperity till about 1650 when her downfall began with French invasions, Spanish civil wars and intrigue, lethargy and degeneracy characteristic of all. Yet out of her ashes she rose to the zenith of her former power and she still can laugh and dance, sing and play and love. She is proud of her harbor, her favorite but hopeful word "mañana" which means "tomorrow" —the tomorrow that seems long in coming.

But our afternoon fades. It is nearly tea time and we prefer the chances in Gibraltar tea-rooms to that in a Spanish town, where you do not know if in the words of a menu card mean white cake or red herring, doughnuts or dumplings, Spanish onions or Saratoga chips.

Outside the gates of Linea we board a waiting car, rather the worse for mileage travelled, but what do you expect when a car costs but a penny you are hurried across the neutral ground, quizzed by a cheery English sentry, and you find you have in the interior—of your luggage, not of yourself—any tobacco or liquors or anything else not good for you.

The same penny takes you past a Mixed English park, suffering from the long drought, and past the little cemetery where lads from the lands of the Rose, of the Thistle or the Shamrock lie. Lonely lads some of them, must have been too. They were England's hearts of oak. They lie in British soil—under the shadow of a Great Rock. They have no more bugle calls—nor will they till the Last Trump shall sound and the Prince of Peace holds the Great Review. Meanwhile, Rest in Peace.

The bus swings past the foot of the old Moorish castle on the slopes of Gibraltar Rock. We pass out at the city gate where walk inside with a new homey feeling of security, spend the remaining time and take the last tender from the end of the long pier at 11 p.m., board the waiting "Roma," and court the Queen of Slumber.

Quietly at the midnight hour the ship lifts anchor, slips quietly away and dawn finds us sighting more further east with prow pointing towards a new city—set on old ones—the famous Spanish seaport Malaga, and we think of those large luscious Spanish grapes next winter—Malaga grapes.

MALAGA

We had always called it Ma-lags, with accent on the second syllable, but the people of this city, nestling between the beautiful sheer rimmed remnants of their majestic Sierra Nevada ranges, have a more sweet sounding name for their city—they pronounce it Mal-aga, not ma-lags. More classical, more sweet.

And it was a charming morning—our first this trip—on the blue Mediterranean. We stood on deck. A mighty and massive cathedral held the centre of the view. The city clustered close about it and then stretched away across the plain and climbed up into the lap of the nestling hills. The fishing boats with glistening sails in the crimson morn of dawning day were about to put out, surveyed, surrounded us and sped away. How boats with sails and fishy smells always hovered close below to tempt our purses. A long gray low rakish freighter silently stole in and anchored at her wharf—a tramp. She had just brought an overnight cargo from a Moroccan port across in Africa.

One of our party, a nice young lady from Barrie, had a nice young brother who had been in business in Malaga, Mr. Thomas Smith, a missionary there. He was originally, I was his wife's, from Leeds in the old heather but he had been also a Canadian for a long time and lived in Toronto. So that was a tie—two countries—tying us to him and to seen him—he did not know us. Milton, the mutual friend in Toronto, had written we were coming. A welcome was mutual expectation. Our party with a morning delicacy to "a little more sleep" after a tired day and late night' made no effort to announce he might be even now waiting at the dock a half mile or more away. So, armed with the description that he was tall, rather slim and about forty, I took my first shore tender for shore. Horses, carriages, motors and a motley group of curious native costumed Spaniards and wharfingers were decorated the dock. Approaching I observed what I thought was my man among the crowd. He seemed taller than the smaller survivor. He was slim and he looked about forty or so. He was waiting eager boat and its occupants. Unobserved I passed through the crowd and approaching this British looking and English dressed gentleman I asked him if he spoke English. Answering in good Canadian speech, with a British Edinburgh accent he said he did. Then I said, "are you Mr. Smith?" He pleaded guilty and inquired if I were Mr. Grafton. Was he glad to meet a Canadian for the first time in about ten years—the only the second party of Britishers who had had furlough since he had leved too far though his Toronto friend had by hybrid letter from the name, all he knew of the friend's lady was that she was "Nela". He had failed to say what her other name might be. She was just his Nela.

The other day one of the gas station bill boards had a catchy slogan: "Love is blind, often deaf and sometimes dumb."

We took the tender back to the ship, got acquainted, had breakfast, and all landed in Malaga. A charming city, strange language, strange and crooked streets. We were appreciated our pilot and the welcome in his home and by his good family. Their home a little white walled cottage, one other white walled homes on a side street from the main street and through an iron gateway in an iron fence, was in a tidy native environment.

From here we sallied out to shop and see the sights.

Without the court yard street we met the milkman. He was making his morning rounds. He had a flock of about a dozen black and white goats. He filled the orders and then on all the same time from one of the walled houses. The milk was always fresh.

We went downtown. Part way we changed street cars and walked a half block, or rather platted our way, over the transfer. They were replacing the track and roadway in block. They had been torn up for few months at this section. It would be done sometime—tomorrow —tomorrow. What matter—sometime.

We visited the stores, curio shops and large and varied market, fruit, flowers, supplies. It is a prominent place on the street side was displayed rich red beef—quite fresh but not protected from flies or insects. My guiding friend said it was the meat of the bulls slain in the great bull fight ring the day before which was Sunday. It was a great day —that day in Malaga. Such a holiday only one day on Sunday in every month or so. Hundreds from without had excursioned in to join the city celebrants at the famous bull ring. Many cars had come over from Gibraltar, ninety miles of Spanish highway. We could see the wisdom of depriving any sporty Spaniard of this delicacy. So we modestly abstained.

But I must hurry. Mr. Smith and I talked of his mission work, of the change from a monarchy to a republic, of the bitter opposition and suspicions towards any Protestant—or evangelical work from a church and priest, fanatical people who had long ago planted her fortresses and her faith. The red blood of Church and Christianity had soaked the soil of Spain when under Charles Martel, the great champion of the faith, she had met and hid defiance to the northern and Europe overlying Moslem hordes. She not only defied but defeated. She drove them back. She saved Europe for Christianity and from Islam. But in recent days tortured, neglected Spain rose against her Imperial monarchy tore down her throne, drove out her royalty and at the same time bade defiance to the church and religion linked up with the monarchy. Some Spaniards go into these thirty-two Roman Catholic churches in Malaga, Bishop's palace, a great square and her mighty and glorious cathedral. The last alone remains. Some of these churches was put to the flames in the recent revolution, the bare and roofless walls pay mute tribute to an enraged populace. The great glory of these churches was put to the flames in the recent revolution, the bare and roofless walls pay mute tribute to an enraged populace. The great glory of these churches was their wealth of gold and silver ornaments, their treasures of the ages stored therein. But their wealth would be required to finance the strike and pay strike wages, should they approve a walkout.

It is not expected there will be an immediate decision to call out the men and anywhere in the country transportation system. Further negotiations with the railways were looked for in railway circles.

No detailed figures have been released as to the vote but it is understood the men have declared themselves by a substantial majority in favor of the strike.

SAVES BANK ROLL BY ACT OF SNEEZING

Akron, O., Sept. 30.—(CP)—Jim Doran had his handkerchief poised ready for a sneeze, just as this youth rushed into his cigar store and held up a gun.

"Don't move a finger," they told Doran and six others.

Watching the bandits, Doran slipped an envelope containing $300 from his hip pocket into his handkerchief. Then, pretending to sneeze, he dropped the money in his brow, he slipped the valuable ring from his finger. The robbers got seven hundred dollars' worth of loot, but they didn't get the $300 or the ring. And Doran didn't sneeze.

MILITIA REINFORCEMENTS SENT TO STRATFORD TO QUELL STRIKE RIOTS

Despite the opening of furniture factories, and the offer of employers to take back all who would go back to the old standard, there are still at a standstill with some 7000 workmen engaged or due to go back to work until their demands are met. So serious did the strike threaten, that detachments of fully-armed troops from London and Toronto were sent and the strike area along with four baby tanks of the latest machine-gun-bearing design. In the above layout is shown, upper left, Toronto troops unloading supplies and ammunition onto bottom left-hand corners. Upper right shows steel-helmeted troops marching through the jeering throngs around the armouries. Lower left shows one of the tanks which paraded through the city. At lower right is shown a section of the huge crowd which gathered at the arrival of troops with bocs and jeers. A huge parade of some 3,000 strikers and unemployed was staged yesterday after the arrival of the militia.

Fight For Mayor in New York Biggest One in Years

By JAMES H. STREET
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A triumvirate of contrasting personalities—a broad sword, a rapier and a lance—has changed Gotham's mayoralty race into a bout and has the city gasping with excitement over the keenest political war in years.

Mayor John Patrick O'Brien, Tammany Hall leader, is gladiator. He is the broadsword. Behind him are the cohorts of the wigwam, embellished.

Fiorello H. Laguardia: His dash and tenacity are the swift rapier of his name—is the rapier. A Italian Republican, who claims allegiance to republicanism and who wooed disgruntled Democrats. Laguardia is the fighting type who asks no quarter and gives none.

Joseph V. McKee: He taught Greek once at Fordham University —is the lance, studious and soft-spoken.

Quiet, unruffled, McKee is a Democrat, who tried to pull Tammany sky-hi and then jumped aboard. He was acting mayor from the abdication of Jimmy ("Will-You-Quit-Me-In-Decency") Walker until the location of O'Brien.

Ran Into Storm

He always has contended public office is a trust. He attempted reforms ran into a political storm and then quit politics and returned to the plush carpets and big desk of the mortgage business.

He might have stayed there, but his friends—some say Postmaster General Jim Farley's friend was on the deal—urged him to make the race against O'Brien and Laguardia. He came out yesterday with a blast against Tammany and a thrust against Pushon.

McKee was born in the Bronx 44 years ago. He wanted to be a fireman—he once was a newspaperman.

Laguardia was born on the ranges of Arizona, but his parents came from Italy. A black-haired, heavy-jowled man of 51, he was a diplomat at 29 and in Congress at 36. He was a flyer in the Great War —a bomber—and he's been shelling Tammany ever since he became a power in New York.

O'Brien is a Tammany loyalist, and Tammany has always for him. He came to New York from Massachusetts at the age of 8, hung out an "Attorney-at-Law" shingle, joined Tammany and began a steady climb. He became a city counsel in 1901 and was promoted by Mayor Hylan, in 1922. Meanwhile, later Tammany made him surrogate and last year it made him mayor.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL SECY. UNDER ARREST

Police Allege Thefts of $4,561 of School Funds

Hull, Que., Sept. 30 (CP)—Emile A. Gutcher, secretary-treasurer of the Aylmer, Que., Roman Catholic School Board for the past 12 years was placed under arrest today on a charge of stealing $4,561 from the board's funds. The charge is based on alleged shortages over a period of four years. He was brought to Hull jail and will appear in court later in the day.

SEARCH FOR IDEAL MATE IS BROKEN

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—The search of Mrs. Eugenia Bankhead Hoyt, Tululah Bankhead's sister, for an "ideal husband" has had a temporary setback with the announcement that her engagement to a handsome 28-year-old Englishman was broken.

Thus her seventh venture into matrimony has been postponed. Her engagement to Mr. Kennedy MacDonell, son of a retired coal magnate, was cancelled yesterday for an unannounced reason. The betrothal was announced Sept. 13.

Mrs. Hoyt recently told interviewers that if young MacDonell was not an ideal mate she would "have" to start seeking again.

The slater of the film actress arrived in London early in September from the Riviera in preparation for the wedding, which would have been her seventh.

SUPPORT RESOLUTION TO ABOLISH TAX

Believe a Necessity Like Sugar Should Not be Taxed

Stratford, Ont., Sept. 30 (CP)—Members of the Stratford City Council finance committee have unanimously endorsed a resolution from Kitchener City Council urging the abolition of the sugar tax in Canada. "There are lots of things which can be taxed. Surely, put this heavy tax on sugar because everyone uses it and because it is a necessity," Alderman Alexander Graham in moving adoption of the resolution.

ROSTHERN MAN KILLED

Saskatoon, Sept. 30 Ernest Montegue, St. Andrews, Sask., was killed and his sister, Mrs. F. S. Barfield, was seriously injured when the automobile in which they were passengers struck a wagon on a highway 32 miles from here last night.

Thousands benefit in this way

The thousands of men and women all over this continent and in the British Isles, who own Canada Life policies, have protection running into hundreds of millions of dollars.

The thousands of policyholders who have had Canada Life protection through the years have found the same premium which maintained their policies can also provide a fund for their later years.

The thousands of policyholders who have lived to draw substantial sums for their personal use have a real appreciation of Canada Life Service.

They have told us repeatedly their Canada Life policies have been their best investments.

Ramblings . . . . . .

Writing of the human side of the news in his daily column of the New York Evening Journal, Ed Sullivan, ex-Belleville, reporter, recently related the story of the late Bert Leston Taylor, poet of Oakland, California, who was killed in a party car accident back in 1909. He was the headmaster of a private school, Belleville for a time, after teaching hours—verses that nobody wanted, that no editor would buy. He took to the party a new set of verses he had moulded under the inspiration of wine, and his chance came he stood up, this tall, bearded schoolmaster, and read the poem with fire and gusto.

It just happened that a reporter for the San Francisco Examiner was in the party and heard the teacher recite his striking lines with all the power of his soul. The reporter liked the poem so much that he told the author he would do his best to get it printed in the Examiner. So Edwin Markham, needing money pretty badly, gave the verses to the Examiner man who took them to the editor.

The verses were set up in type, and there they lay for days. They ignored and forgotten. But one night the make-up editor of the Examiner had a hole to fill in his page hardening and he had to find it to a hurry, because edition time was minutes away, creeping hard. He paved around for every proofs until he came to a proof on which this had been pencilled: "Dumo this junk into some but dog edition when you get a chance. The author is a friend of B.P."

So the make-up editor found the type from which the proof had been struck, and dumped it into the hole in his garden page, and the next day half San Francisco was telephoning to the Examiner office to praise the "Man With the Hoe" and its author, Edwin Markham.

Sale of the poem and of Markham swept the country. Probably half a million copies were sold. The hard up school teacher was suddenly elevated to fortune and celebrity. And now he offers a new poem, The Forgotten Man, which he dedicates to the Hon. D. Franklin Roosevelt.

Edwin Markham is a white-bearded philosophical man past 80, genial, tolerant, busy and hopeful.

How often does the average man who has written a verse or a ditty or business get a shinplaster handed to him in exchange for a larger sum? A local poet who has published one of them quite often, if the truth be told. He has written epics to money as well as commercial travellers and theme salesmen. So many in fact that the teller himself must be weary recently of looking at them, and also of handling them. They don't count as nicely as the regular sized bill. They're harder to manage—and a bit of a nuisance to bank tellers, take it all around. According to a recent census at Ottawa, there are approximately 3,000,000 of them, currently in circulation in Canada at the present time. In an attempt to trim their origin, the local teller has been given a bit of investigation. He finds that shinplasters are usually on the piece of poorly secured paper available, especially if greatly appreciated in value," according to Webster's dictionary. Another source from which the name was coined comes from the fact that shinplasters were once just small pieces of paper, saturated with vinegar or tar, formerly used as a poultice for sore shins. Possibly they played bridge in those days also.

Writers who strive for brevity might re-read the following in one sentence of seventy-five words, appearing in Variety last week under the name of a Texas correspondent: Man supposedly killed in a high tension electric wire received on the safety table, explained he was cold, got his clothes and went home.

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

CHAPTER VI.

The boat, which was a yawl rig about forty-five feet over all with an especially competent auxiliary motor, was the property of a friend of her father's in Nassau, and he had brought it to Miami Beach aesthetically a yawl is neither fish nor fowl, but for service it is the very practical design. Once Wright had been a fast and powerful yawl, probably a real winner in her class. Now she was old and tired and creaky, compared with the dapper yachts with their fresh paint and complete lines that she left behind in the harbor, but the meeting swept a wistful look into the boy with reminiscence and harmonized with the carried her age like an old actress; one felt that when she perished it would be all at once and with the sound of applause in her grain and oak.

Irene had the wheel and Vernon was sitting on deck coiling the lines that which had been left in a shirtsleeves by somewhere and over and washing a deck which was evidently the accumulation of many days the previous evening.

Irene noted his activities with interest, and when they had passed Ellis Island and were in the comparatively open water of the upper bay she called him to the helm.

"Any experience as a sailor?" she asked briefly.

"Navy during the war, that's all."

"Try your hand at the wheel."

He did while she explained the peculiarities of the yawl's helm. All vessels from rowboats to liners have certain individual habits.

"You'll do," Irene commended. "Head her for the Narrows while I cook some breakfast."

There was a small galley forward and presently the propitious aroma of coffee and bacon came back to his stormcoat. It smelled like good coffee and good bacon, too.

It was better than anything that Vernon had tasted in years. But then, he had never before been served by interesting a steward on the dawn of a promising adventure.

The sun was breaking up the mist now and the morning looked more like a picnic than it had the night before. Were it not for the fragrant evident coffee that they make all possible speed Vernon would have felt like quite sorry was a lark encussed to Coney Island from which they were going to return in the afternoon.

The girl volunteered no further explanation of her situation nor did she enlighten Vern as to their ultimate destination. Apparently she did not trust anyone with her secret troubles. Vern rather resented that being the daughter of a notorious criminal's father such as hers, had forced her to develop an independence of thought and action which was probably not to her means to her character.

Vern liked her more by daylight. He was inclined to scoff a little to himself at the stand he had taken on the night before when he had stated that destiny seemed to have appointed him her protector. He had been kidding himself out of a stagnant boredom by the prospect of romance. Under the searching rays of the sun it scarcely seemed likely that Providence had picked him out. But on the other hand, the instant sympathy was still just as compelling as ever.

His hair which for practical reasons was cut short like a boy's was a light-brilliant golden shade. Her skin had that clear cool pallor which is the envy of many indoor complexions which do not burn. There were bounds in her face, but they were gentle and a few weather lines around the mouth and eyes. Anyone with a face like that would be bound to have those light little wrinkles.

The thing that was most characteristic of Irene Harrowe that Vern had much corroboration of this later, was her calm poise. In a world's where most women would have run unruffled. She gathered instinctively that her position was not right now, but she sat calmly at the helm, her eyes roaming sometimes quietly in her lap, no movement to give grossly the impression of the beginning of the slow roll of the yawl. Despite the fact that he had known her but a short time, Vern was crowned yachts and the millions in Irene Harrowe's possession to himself that he had never known a young woman who was better or better against the background of the sea. While clothes entwindered with their wearers were not necessary to stamp her as a good sailor. Irene was the personification of capable grace directed by a thoroughly competent mentality. Poise, is the definition of a natural born sailor master. By pre-eminence was devoid of jewelry. She was better so. Some women are charming because they add to the splotch of red on a grey canvas and others, with a few added touches gradually win restful and eternal admiration by being the perfect point in a harmonizing background. Irene was the personification of a mellow, diffused light in a bonfire by Whistler.

Vern had made his jump-off conclusion of the night before had been right. She was a girl who in his skipper very much. She was a thoroughbred. Nothing that she would have looked for in a man friend plus a certain fineness and sense of honor that belong only to pure thoroughbred women. He hoped that he might earn the right to be rated as worthy of her regard. Her confidence and companionship were well worth winning. She deserved to gain it.

But now he was on trial. This girl bore no malice against the world but she did not trust anybody either. She had been fooled too often to go around planting her faith in the unasked strangers. He hoped there would come an opportunity for him to prove his worthiness. Most people are like that. Upon meeting them you feel that you must qualify for their approval.

"Outside, with the wind in this quarter, we can run nearly as fast under sail." She was thinking out loud.

By that, taking the onshore breeze into account, Vern knew that their course would be considerably to the west of south. There was a slight suggestion of softness in the air, perhaps he guessed that it would be south.

Beyond "The Narrows" lies Sandy Hook mail. Irene hoisted the jib for headway and then took the wheel while Vern got up the mainsail and spanker. The sail-cloth was all old but considerably patched.

Irene laid a course due south and gave Vern the wheel again while she went below to stop the motor. "She was more like it, Vern told himself as he felt her draw enough to the wind to bring the sails and sagging bubblingly awash. Irene was right; the old yacht could make time under sail. If the canvas held ripping held she would do quite as well as with the motor.

Irene was gone a long time. When she came up the companionway her face wore a look of comical chagrin.

"I had forgotten the old men," she explained. "We've got three sleeping passengers besides the father below decks, not one of them under sixty and all still unconscious from whatever it is that they apparently feed old men in New York before they let them. What am I going to do with them?"

CHAPTER VII.

"Shall I put about so you can take the old men back?" Vern inquired suggestively.

"No," Irene vetoed instantly. "That would take hours and we can't spare even a minute now."

"Put them in the life boat and leave them to be picked up."

Irene shook her head. "Our life-boat would break up in ten minutes. It hasn't been in the water for years. We had a newer dinghy that we used but it was stolen while we were tied up in the Hudson River this time. No, we'll have to take them along whether they want to go or not."

"Consider them shanghaied, captain," Vern concurred. "Have you a belaying pin to jaw as a persuader in case they get obstreperous?"

"I don't need a belaying pin." She smiled. "Not if you will back me up. With your—"

Vern knew that the question was asked in semi-jest but his answer was distinguished. "I'll back you to till the devil begins harvesting ice."

Irene accepted his oath of allegiance as a matter of course. She regarded him as a penniless adventurer whom chance had brought to her out of the jaws of death and of the streets ready for a fight if without much cause that was worth fighting for.

That she was thinking something like that came out in her next speech. "You'd better go below and wash down and get a decent breakfast on that cut over your eye. It's probably too late to do much good now but there is some salve in the medicine chest and a clean towel in it which you will find on the wall by the cabin."

When Vern got a good look at himself in the mirror he did not wonder that she had feared that he had gotten into her confidence. He had seldom seen a more unmistakable ruffian. He rather wondered that she had dared trust herself on the same boat with him far from police protection. The cut was not bad. It looked worse than it was but it was distinctly disfiguring. It had closed the left eye, as per specifications, a swollen eye for the left cheek and the left ear. All indiscriminately inked with dried blood, grease and whiskers. Vern sighed. It was going to be harder to feel like a swashbuckling hero of romance that he knew what he looked like.

Well, the cabin was comfortable the saloon of a liner either for that matter. There were two bunks one on the floor for one thing. They were not only old, they were also threadbare and dusty and musty. They relied about in spite of the cushions which, also, probably Irene, had propped under them. Evidently the old men had been a little after a squall they would rather than not. Vern decided that she'd best over again they'd slide into a homogenous mass, inarticulate with the sea that overwhelmed when they came together.

Vern found a razor in the medicine chest and Vern looked longingly at it but he did not borrow it. One of his ten commandments was that no man should ever shave with another man's razor without permission.

Vern did manage to wash up a trifle and paste a strip of adhesive over the worst of the cuts. This was more a badge than a protection. He felt that it helped his appearance the fact that the general untidiness of his features was not of his own choosing.

On deck once more he offered to take the wheel but she refused the relief graciously.

"As long as I am up and about I'd rather be doing something. And besides, I know the boat, I can probably get a few more inches per hour out of her than you could."

"You might turn in," Vern suggested, "that is, if you would trust the deck to me."

"Later, perhaps, but not now. Things will begin to happen presently when our involuntary crew begins to come to life."

She was quite right. The motion of the boat combined with freshness of the air proved to be a wonderful reviver to the ancient quitters below decks.

One by one at intervals they straggled up and hung themselves over the windward rail for a thorough airing.

They were all well dressed old gentlemen with non-ons-going figures. Nothing is so out of place in the foreground of a morning seascape as a portly gentleman in the formal habiliments of evening. Two of the visitors were so attired. The other wore black, too, but cut on clerical lines.

They had six headaches...two apiece. That was evident to the most casual observer. None of them mentioned the headache as he emerged from the companionway but the merest tyro of a diagnostician could tell at a glance from the way that they each and severally cast one look at the brightly smiling April sky and then turned their backs as if the sight was too painful to be borne that there was a light bearing in their general gait that could not be loosened without a Stillson wrench. Perhaps a gasoline blow torch. The reproachful looks which they cast upon God's fairest handiwork, the scroll of heaven and the rolling sea, could only be interpreted in terms of deepest condemnation.

CHAPTER VIII.

But bye and bye swaying consciousness, curiosity and even apprehension forced the men in a cognizance of the unusual palace of their surroundings.

"What," demanded one of them ingratiatingly of the burly bearded ruffian who was binding a worn canvas sleeve backstay, "what am I doing here?"

"As well," Vern responded courteously, "your place in the scheme of things has not been definitely assigned. What did you do in your former existence?"

A look of apprehension scurried across the fat features of the old gentleman. "Me, I—I—"

"No," Vern reassured him. "What I mean was what is your employment in New York city—the village whose famous skyline has recently disappeared over one taffrail?"

"I'm a banker." And a look of evil and painful concern chased all the remaining from the speaker's face: "And I've got to be at a board of directors' meeting at ten o'clock." He fumbled in his pocket for his watch. It was not there. "You stole my—" he began—"what is my watch?"

"I can't say. But you're late for the meeting, that's a cinch."

"But I have to be there."

Down the field thundered the two rival knights. Sir Guy was intent upon Blake before he discovered that Jimmy bore no buckler. It distracted his attention for one fatal moment during which Blake's short-blade-slinged between the backer of the knight of the Sepulcher. Its point pierced the gorget of his adversary and passed through his throat. With a cry, from the stand where watched the people of Rimmr, Sir Guy rolled to the ground while Blake's sword was mad with joy.

Sword in hand, Blake swung from his saddle and approached the fallen Sir Guy. By the rules of the great tourney, after vanquishing his foe, Blake should have ridden back to his own tilt. When then, the spectators saw his unheard of action, a gasp arose from the stand where watched the people of Rimmr, while from the opposite side where sat the followers of King Bohun, came an angry roar of protest.

Blake approached the fallen knight who lay upon his back, feebly struggling to arise. The spectators looked to see the black knight run Sir Guy through with his sword. Instead, they saw him toss the weapon to the ground and kneel beside his wounded foe. Tearing off Sir Guy's helm and gorget, Blake tried to check the flow of blood. "Leave him to the attentions of his friends now," spoke one of the Sepulcher knights, the whole three days.

The winning by Blake of this first event of the day was but the forerunner of a series of successes on the side of the knights of Nimmr. When the last event—the one area between the opposing factions was almost even. The most spectacular and important combat was the grand finale of the great tourney. Now beginning, it was one to which the spectators looked to furnish the greatest thrill of the whole three days.

BUSINESS BAROMETER shows favorable readings, and the autumn opens with prospects encouraging all along the line. Business recovery has been slow but it has been steady and there is every reason to believe that the improvement will be permanent.

Belleville has had its ups and downs in common with other cities in Canada but continues to carry on with all the courage and optimism which British pluck inspires — and believing that the best is yet to come.

"Buy Empire Trade and the Bay of Quinte Route to the Sea," is a slogan which has become popular throughout the district and is the forerunner of the beginning of the St. Lawrence Waterways project which will connect the Great Lakes with ocean navigation and make Belleville and Trenton ports for ocean borne traffic.

Canadian courage and British pluck make a grand combination, sure to achieve great results in the near future. Our forefathers faced cold and hunger to lay the foundation of Canadian prosperity, and while they shivered over fires of green wood o'nights they planned for the greater things which we are now enjoying. The poor man of today is rich compared with the early settlers whose toil and tribulation put backbone in the Canadians of today.

WALKING IS GREAT EXERCISE—In fact it is said by some authorities to be the best form of exercise, however, be this so or not there is no denying the fact that one feels exhilarated after taking a long brisk walk. Striking out with a free stride, with shoulders thrown back and breathing deeply of the fresh air seems to put new life and energy into one. Even at that it is said to be advisable to vary the route so that different views will be encountered and the mind interested. There are times, however, when "shanks mare" fails to supply what is desired in the way of getting from one place to another—perhaps the distance is too great, haste is necessary or the weather is disagreeable. It is that one is quite justified in deciding not to walk but to make the trip in the desired destination while comfortably seated in a motor car. If you have not a car of your own you can easily engage a taxi and if you engage H. W. Clare to take you to where you wish to go you will be well taken care of and will travel at a safe rate in a clean, comfortable and nice appearing car. The charges, too, for this service is very reasonable, being only twenty-five cents to any place in the city, day or night. To outside points the rate charged is moderate. If you are going away call Clare and he will take you to the station—if you are caught in the rain while at the theatre or at a social function send for Clare and he will give you prompt and satisfactory service. His phone number is 196.

RAISING THE DOUGH — You know what that means, and no doubt it keeps you hustling to raise it just the same as it does everyone else these days. Dough means money and it must be had by everyone in varying amounts in order to keep going. When prosperity puts in an appearance from "around the corner" where it has been loitering for such a long time then more "dough" will be available for all who work for it and everything will be "as merry as a wedding bell." In Belleville there is one man who makes lots of "DOUGH," but in doing so he is performing a public service and the public is perfectly satisfied with and satisfied to pass on its "Dough for his "Dough" which he delivers perfectly baked in the form of bread and buns. This man is Glen Thompson, the proprietor of the Purity Bakery which is situated on Sinclair Street. The bread, buns, pies and cakes made at this bakery are delicious and they are enjoyed daily in hundreds of homes in Belleville and the district within a radius of twenty-five miles. Purity bread is buttered in the "old standby" in food and Purity bread satisfies the most exacting lovers of wholesome and tasty bread. Try some of the products of the Purity Bakery—phone 1976 and a driver will call.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

DEEP SEA THRILLS!

Those who go to see motion pictures for the thrills they afford—and when don't—will be more than amply repaid by visiting the Capitol Theatre, when "Below the Sea" opened last night (Saturday).

No sophisticated drama of talk, this! Action, that's it. It's a tale of a treasure hunt on the ocean floor—and treasure hunts always are exciting. Then there's a battle between United States destroyer and a German submarine, and the sinking of the U-boat, with only two survivors from its crew. And—topping any exciting moments shown on the screen in recent years—there is tense, life-or-death battle on the sea-bottom between a diver and a huge octopus, most dreaded creature of the deep.

"Below the Sea," is a picture of action, from the very first sequence to the last, with the suspense growing greater and the thrills multiplying until the breath-taking climax.

The melodrama is splendidly cast. Ralph Bellamy, most virile of the younger screen leading men, is the heroic role of the hero, whose defeat of the octopus in the battle royal between the two is the thrill of a beautiful young heiress. Fay Wray is this girl. Fay's titian loveliness is well known.

A Danish actor of great renown in Scandinavia and on the Continent, but entirely new to the American screen, here makes his first appearance as the villainous submarine commander, who survives the wreck of his vessel and plots to get away and with the treasure that sank with her. He is Fredrik Vogeding, and his performance in "Below the Sea" indicates he will go far in Hollywood. Columbia has a real find in Vogeding.

Esther Ralston, famous in the musical comedy world aids Vogeding in his villainy. She too is a comparative newcomer to the screen but she puts plenty of realism into the portrayal of the proprietress of a San Francisco water-front saloon where the plot originates.

Al Rogell did a splendid job of directing this fast-moving picture.

Underseas scenes are photographed in technicolor.

"Below the Sea" remains at the Capitol Theatre for three days and is supported by comedy and Canadian Sound News.

Monday and Tuesday are dinnerware gift days for ladies.

Announcement.

Manager Holmes announces the securing of "Lady For a Day", the new Columbia special which rated four stars in "Liberty". This extraordinarily attractive picture contains no less than ten Hollywood stars headed by Warren William, May Robson, Glenda Farrel and Guy Kibbee, and is due for exhibition at the Capitol Theatre in the very near future.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT HEADS DUAL BILL

Claudette Colbert's recent ultimatum in Hollywood seems her ability to portray wicked women better than heroines of saccharine flavor bean luscious fruit, in her latest picture, "Torch Singer," now playing at the Belle Theatre.

As the torrid torcher of cabaret and radio fame, she displays a fiery and dangerous personality and later contrasts this with another and very tender side of her character.

The cunning manipulation of these qualities La Colbert fits snugly into the personality of Mimi Benton, created by Grace Perkins for Liberty Magazine story, "Mike."

"Torch Singer," produced by Paramount is the drama of a girl who thinks of no revenge beyond upon the man who hurt her by hurting others. Deserted, she has a child by him, and tried to end up for adoption. Then is born the Mimi Benton, the night hawk, the woman with little regard for men aside from what they may mean to her in the way of comfort and fame. At a time when she all but resigned to a life of abandon, the tender memory of her child comes back to her, and then begins her long struggle to true happiness and romance.

Ricardo Cortez essays the role of Tony Cumnings, a radio impresario, who ironically presents a cabaret siren on a children's radio hour. David Manners is Mike, the father of Mimi's child, and the infant is played by Baby LeRoy, who gives another performance like the one that brought him fame in Maurice Chevalier's "A Bedtime Story." Others on the imposing roster of supporting players are Lyda Roberti, Florence Roberts, Charley Grapewin, Kathleen Burke, Helen Jerome Eddy and Albert Conti.

New Zane Grey Story

George O'Brien and Zane Grey join forces again in "The Last Trail," the new Fox Film production to be presented on the same program. It is the latest story by the dean of adventure authors, and presents O'Brien with what is said to be one of his best vehicles.

The film is a "western" only in that its locale represents the plains of the West, but the plot has a central theme that involves adventure and intrigue of a truly cosmopolitan nature.

In selecting Claire Trevor as his leading lady in "The Last Trail," O'Brien pays tribute to her performance as Spanish Kit in the recent "Life in the Raw." Miss Trevor is a newcomer to the screen, whose success on the New York stage is said to have aroused the interest of Fox executives.

"THE LAST TRAIL" HAS "A" TWIN

"The Last Trail" has a twin keynote—romance and comedy. While the romance is in the hands of O'Brien and Miss Trevor, the comedy is reported as capably handled by such veterans of the laugh parade as Al Bridwell, Matt McHugh, and Lucille La Verne. It is this combination of actors, representing the leading artists in each of their fields, that is said to make this film one of the outstanding adventure films in recent screen history.

A funny comedy cartoon, and "Blocks and Tackles" a delightful sportlight reel will be exhibited on the same program.

"DINNER AT EIGHT" COMING TO BELLE

The finest product from the leading studios of the world will be shown under the banner of "Belle Entertainment"—Canada's Finest—this season. Famous Players Canadian Corporation, owners of the Belle, will present, among other great features, leading productions from the Metro-Goldyn-Mayer studios.

One of the greatest pictures of the year, "Dinner At Eight" is included in the impressive array of M-G-M- hits. Here is a production that is now playing as a roadshow in a couple of cities and greater, both as to cast and story, than "Grand Hotel." The cast includes Marie Dressler, John and Lionel Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Billie Burke, Edmund Lowe, Jean Harlow, Wallace Beery and Karen Morley.

"Night Flight" is another of the M-G-M specials to be offered under "Belle Entertainment" banner. This spectacular story includes John and Lionel Barrymore, Myrna Loy, Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery.

Marie Dressler, most beloved of film stars, is featured with Lionel Barrymore and other stars in "The Late Christopher Bean" and other big specials will include "Bombshell," starring Jean Harlow; "Stage Mother," with May Robson, Alice Brady, Franchot Tone and Maureen O'Sullivan, "Penthouse" from the famous Cosmopolitan story with Warner Baxter, Myrna Loy and other stars; "Solitary Man", with Herbert Marshall of "Michael and Mary" fame and Mary Boland, and "Broadway to Hollywood" with Frank Morgan, Alice Brady, Jimmy Durante and many other notables of stage and screen.

Historic Sites And Monuments Board Marks 9 Sites

OTTAWA—With a view of increasing interest in Canada's historical background and of preserving for all time, the monuments and memories of a glorious past, the Department of the Interior, on the recommendation of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, marks sites and commemorates persons and incidents of national importance by the placing of suitable tablets at different places throughout the dominion.

Each year for the past fourteen the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, the members of which are recognized authorities on the history of the Dominion has met at Ottawa to take under consideration the list of sites recommended for its review. The recommendations of this body are submitted to the Department of the Interior, which through its National Parks Service, carries them into effect.

Since the inauguration of the work in 1919, memorials to the number of 191 have been erected, the most recently unveiled being those commemorating the centenary of the Carillon-Grenville canal on the Ottawa river. In addition, the Department of the Interior has acquired control of Fort Chambly and Lennox in Quebec and Fort Wellington in Ontario. The same portion of the site of the fortress of Louisbourg, Cape Breton, is being progressively developed as a place of interest to visitors.

At the 1932 meeting of the board held recently the following members were present: Brig.-Gen. H. M. Sherwood, Ottawa, chairman; His Honour Judge P. W. Horwy, New Westminster, B.C.; Dr. A. G. Doughty, London, Ont.; Hon. R. Fabre Surveyer, Montreal, Que.; Dr. O. D. Harvey, Halifax, N.S.; Dr. J. C. Webster, Shediac, N.B.; Dr. J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of National Parks, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Ont.; Mr. John B. Hunter, National Parks Service, Secretary.

Many proposals respecting the marking of sites were submitted and approved. The board recommended nine for action by the Department of the Interior. These include placing tablets at the following points to commemorate persons and events connected with Canadian importance:

Three Rivers, P.E.I.—To commemorate the establishment founded in 1732 by Jean Pierre Roma as a base for control of the fur trade with the Micmac Indians and France, Quebec, and the West Indies.

Liverpool, N.S.—To perpetuate the memory of the privateersmen of Liverpool bay who maintained and defended their trade with the West Indies and the mainland of America against the enemies of Great Britain.

Guysboro, N.S.—To mark the site of Fort Chedabucto, founded by Denys de Bellefonds, 1660-66, as an economic struggle for control of the Acadia Indian trade.

Near Cornwall, Ont.—To commemorate the settlement and services of the regiments of United Empire Loyalist refugees, known as the Royal Highland Emigrants, the King's Royal Regiment of New York, the Loyal Rangers, and the King's Rangers...in the defence of Quebec, 1783-83.

De des Chenes, southwest of Winnipeg, Man.—To mark the site of the old land and water route from Fort William to the Red River Settlement located and surveyed in 1858 by S. J. Dawson.

Methye Portage, Sask.—To mark the site of one of the most important portages in the west, lying between the Churchill and Athabasca rivers. It was first crossed by Peter Pond in 1790.

New Westminster, B.C.—To mark the site of one of the largest early historic middens on the Pacific coast of Canada. Bone and stone implements found in it have thrown much light upon the culture status of prehistoric man in the vicinity.

Vancouver, B.C.—To commemorate the public services of Capt. George Vancouver, who in 1792, 1793 and 1794 carried out the first systematic exploration, survey and charting of the Pacific coast.

The board also recommended that a tablet be erected at a point to be selected to commemorate the services of Admiral Henry Wolsey Bayfield in connection with the surveys of the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence, and Atlantic coastline.

THIEVES BUSY WHILE BUILDINGS BURN

Numerous Articles Carried Away, Store on Street

Chaplin, Sask., Sept. 20 (CP)—While flames were levelling eight business blocks in this West Saskatchewan town Thursday night, at a loss now estimated at close to 100,000, thieves were busy carrying off seven automobile tires, cartons of cigarettes, canned goods and an adding machine. Police investigating the thefts have made no arrests as yet.

QUIP SCHOOL CHILDREN

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 20 (CP)—Today all school children of families on relief in the Sault are being equipped with shoes and stockings and next month the issue will consist of winter garments. It is expected the resumption of work at the steel plant, however, the city relief list will be reduced to 600 families.
